Willkie Offers Plan to Avert Totalitarian Rule

Would Rescue U. S. From 'Incompetent' New Deal, 65,000 Told in Los Angeles

(Willkie Text, Page 4)

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Los Angeles, Sept. 19.—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for President, tonight answered the question of what he would do to make America stronger and more prosperous.

Addressing a crowd of 65,000 in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum—one of the largest ever to hear a G. O. P. Presidential candidate on the West Coast—Willkie said he would rescue the United States from an "incompetent" New Deal Administration by taking four steps dealing with business recovery and then appoint a special commission to study the whole tax question.

"Chance to Make Profit"

The four steps, which he said would turn the country away from a "totalitarian system," were:

"1. The rules under which business is conducted must be clear and must be stable.

"2. Government policies affecting business should be consistent.

"3. Government competition with business must be kept within well-defined limits. It must not stop the flow ov capital into new productive enterprise.

"4. Business must be given a chance to make a profit."

"Pour It On, Wendell"

The crowd frequently cheered him, and there were cries of "Pour it on them, Wendell."

He accused the Roosevelt Administration of having concluded that America's economy had "reached maturity—become static." This, he said, had brought about "industrial stagnation," "idle money by the billions and idle men by the millions"—and had endangered the production of airplanes, tanks and other weapons needed to make America strong.

"We don't have to have a third term," he said. "We don't have to have 9,000,000 unemployed. We don't have to hate business."

Once he had got the United States started in the right direction, Willkie said, he would turn to the tax problem.

Urges Immediate Tax Study

"If elected," he said, "I propose the immediate establishment of a special commission to study the whole tax question.

"Such a commission must be composed of Government officials, members of both Houses of Congress, businessmen, representatives of labor and tax experts.

"It should study the needs of the Federal, State and local governments. The effects of taxation upon the individual and upon the Nation must be analyzed, together with the

Visiting Marine 'Jaywalks,' Riot Call Results

A United States Marine from San Diego, Calif., who took strenuous exception to Washington's pedestrian control law, was arrested last night after three scout cars and a patrol wagon were summoned to the scene.

Crossing against a red light at Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, Patrick Jones, 25, of Marine Barracks, San Diego, was called back by Police Private A. R. Newcomb. The insuing altercation alarmed some unidentified bystander, who put in a riot call. Jones was released after posting $2 collateral.

The Gallup Poll

Roosevelt Now Leads Willkie in 38 States

Latest Survey Shows President Would Get 453 Electoral Votes to Republican Candidate's 78 if Election Were Today

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 19.—The third state-by-state survey of the American Institute of Public Opinion—conducted in the month between Wendell L. Willkie's acceptance speech at Elwood and the start of his active campaign this week—reveals striking Nation-wide gains in the strength of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Not only has President Roosevelt taken the lead away from Mr. Willkie at this stage of the race, but the President's majority would likely be of landslide proportions if an election were held today, the Institute survey indicates.

Completed returns from every State in the Union show President Roosevelt ahead in 38 States with a combined total of 453 votes in the electoral college. Mr. Willkie, leading in 10 States, has 78 electoral votes.

However, it must be noted that approximately one person in nine (11 per cent) says he is still undecided about his choice in the coming election. Also, the Institute's studies of "opinion intensity" show that about a third of the voters on each side today have no very firm convictions about how they will vote.

The survey offers an interesting measurement of the Democratic and Republican campaigns to date. As in the past, President Roosevelt has gained ground with the voters following an intense flare-up in the European war. The sur-

Byrnes to Aid 3d-Term Drive

Concentrated Republican fire on the third-term issue and term limitation demands by prominent Democrats before a special Senate subcommittee will bring a nationally broadcast Administration reply tonight.

Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, the President's floor manager at the Chicago convention, will defend Mr. Roosevelt's reelection course in his first major speech of the campaign.

Byrnes disclosed plans for his speech following renewed assaults by Wendell Willkie on the third-term bid and testimony against abandonment of the two-term tradition by John W. Davis, 1924 Democratic nominee for the Presidency.

Davis told the Senate Judiciary subcommittee he would not trust "the fateful powers of the Presidency" for more than eight years to any man born. Vance McCormick, of Harrisburg, Pa., a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was scheduled to urge

Army to Relax Tests in Draft

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Officials revealed yesterday that the physical standards for men drafted into the Army will be lower in some respects than those now maintained for voluntary enlistments.

Despite the belief of many Army officers that with so many men available, physical requirements should be stricter, members of the Army and Navy Selective Service Committee said that the war-time standards contained in mobilization regulations, rather than the peace-time rules, will apply to prospective draftees.

Physical requirements for the draft have not yet been announced, but it is said that the minimum height and weight requirements will be 5 feet and 107 pounds. No men under 5 feet 4 inches tall and less than 120 pounds are now accepted for enlistment.

Present maximum height and weight standards will prevail in the draft, however. Those bar any men more than 6 feet 6 inches and having

Ramspeck Civil Service Bill Gets Action in Senate Today

By Edward Ryan

Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, late yesterday announced that the Senate will act on the Ramspeck civil service bill today.

Mead told 200 delegates of the United Federal Workers at Almas Temple, that Senate Majority Leader Barkley had promised to have the bill taken up as soon as two majority reports are out of the way.

"Whether you're from California or Florida," Mead told the delegates, "you'll want to have a chat with your Senator."

There were some Senators, he suggested, who would have to be convinced by the Government employes, that "if you have the protection of civil service, along with the penalties of the Hatch Act, you will be better and more satisfied employes of this great Government of ours."

The Ramspeck bill would authorize the President to bring into the classified civil service all employes not now covered by the Civil Service Act, or nearly 25 per cent of the Government's more than 1,600,000 employes. It has been awaiting Senate action since June 18.

Mead's announcement came as the Federal workers convention mapped a sweeping program of change in Government employe relations and pressed for adoption of their first constitution, to take effect when the C. I. O. approves it. The delegates

Senate Votes Profits Tax Bill, 46-22

Measure to Speed Defense Work Sent To Conference; Changes Expected

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The Second Revenue Bill of 1940 passed the Senate yesterday by a party vote of 46 to 22.

The bill is designed to speed the National defense program and will increase existing corporation taxes and impose an excess-profits levy. Disavowed by the Treasury and vitally different in some respects from the Houes-approved bill, the measure now goes to conference.

Just before passage, the Senate added to it by voice vote the Connally war-profits tax, which would boost rates on individual incomes to 88 per cent upon declaration of war. This proposal, is expected to be rejected by the House conferees.

The Brown amendment, removing tax exemption from future issues of Federal, State and local securities, was turned down by vote of 44 to 30 after nearly three days' debate. Although the proposal had been indorsed in the 1940 Democratic platform, Administration leaders indicated that they thought it had no place in the present bill.

Measure Has Three Aims

As it finally passed the Senate, the complex bill embodies three distinct aims:

Speeding of national defense. This it undertakes to do by suspending the profit limitations on ship and aircraft construction in the Vinson-Trammell Act, and by granting special tax privileges to private concerns building new plants for defense purposes. Specifically, these firms would be allowed to deduct from taxable income 20 per cent of the cost of their new plants for each of the next five years. (A much longer period to write off new plants would normally be required.)

Preventing corporations from growing rich on the defense program, by imposing a tax on so-called excess profits. This tax, in the Senate bill, would yield a sum variously estimated at from $115,000,000 to $250,000,000 for the current year.

Raising revenue. The Senate bill would accomplish this purpose through both the excess-profits levy and a flat increase of 3.1 per cent in the normal corporation income tax, which would yield this year a maximum of $240,000,000.

After various deductions have been made, the Senate bill (aside from the Connally amendment)

Mickey Rooney Here Again To Ohs and Ahs of Girls

Mickey Rooney came to Washington yesterday and it was the same thing all over again—girls!

Girls between 8 and 18 went crazy, frantic, jittery, excited, hysterical and goggle-eyed and pushed against the stage door of the Capitol Theater where the dynamic young star is billed. A policeman shooed them away, at least back to the stage alley entrance where ushers had thrown up a rope barrier against another horde of girls.

In order to accommodate the crowd a five-show schedule was put into effect and the doors were opened at 9:30 a. m. All records were broken, it was reported, when more than 15,000 admissions were tallied for the day. Rooney also figured in the previous high days, once in the film "Boy's Town," in which he starred with Spencer Tracy, and again in a personal appearance with Judy Garland.

Well, girls, you probably saw him at the show yesterday, so we will skip that and tell you a few things

U. S. Imports Are Halted By Argentina

Temporary Action Is Taken on Eve Of Economic Parley

By the Associated Press

Buenos Aires, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Argentine Exchange Control Commission today ordered an informal and possibly temporary embargo on imports from the United States in a drastic move to conserve dollar exchange.

The move was taken almost on the eve of the arrival here of Warren Lee Pierson, president of the United States Export-Import Bank to discuss measures to give this country financial and economic assistance.

Officially, it was stated that applications for prior permits to import United States' products had been returned to importers marked "re-apply after 15 days," because no dollar exchange was available.

Financial circles, however, were inclined to consider the possibility that the move was toward a better

Ribbentrop, Mussolini Hold 2-Hour Parley

Spain's 'Cooperation' Against Britain Believed Their Topic

By the Associated Press

Rome, Sept. 19.—German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop came to Rome today on an armored train equipped with antiaircraft guns and conferred for two hours with Premier Mussolini on joint Axis plans to defeat Britain and rule Europe.

Spain's "cooperation" in winning the war, with Gibraltar as her reward, was widely discussed here as a likely subject between the two leaders.

From Mussolini's side, the future of Greece and Turkey—last holdouts against Axis domination in southeastern Europe—also were believed brought up.

Serrano Suner Stays in Berlin

In the war to the finish against Britain, Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, declared other European nations, "particularly friendly ones," are involved "not as spectators alone."

This was considered a reference to Spain, and there have been unconfirmed rumors of Axis attempts to persuade Spain at least to permit troop passage for a land attack on Gibraltar.

Ramon Serrano Suner, Spanish minister and pro-Axis adviser to his brother-in-law, Gen. Franco, is still in Berlin, where Ribbentrop had

Britain and U. S. Discuss Joint Use of World Bases

Cooperation for Defense May Be Extended To Australia, South Africa and New Zealand; Hull, Lothian and Casey Explore Possibilites

By Frank L. Kluckhohn

Conversations have been taking place between the United States Government and representatives of the British Empire upon the possibility of an informal but closer cooperation of the English-speaking parts of the world, particularly with regard to joint use of naval and air bases for mutual defense, diplomatic circles learned yesterday.

These conversations which are being conducted by Secretary of State Hull jointly with the British Ambassador, the Marquis of Lothian, and the Australian Minister, Richard G. Casey, are as yet, it was stressed, in the preliminary stages and no decisions have been asked for or taken and no commitments made on any side.

The successful completion of the destroyer-base deal between the United States and Great Britain gave rise to questions as to whether base-use arrangements embracing South Africa, Australia and New Zealand would not be mutually beneficial. That possibility is now being explored. Informal defense arrangements already have been agreed upon between the United States and Canada and mutual staff conferences are in progress to arrange for joint military and naval action for defense.

In Commons yesterday Richard Stokes, Laborite, had asked Clement Atlee, lord privy seal, if the House would have an opportunity to debate any plan for a union of the United States and Britain. This caused interest in Washington as did Atlee's response that "the prime minister is prepared to give assurances that if ever any such far-reaching scheme is put forward every opportunity will be given for discussion by the House."

[Last June Churchill revealed to Commons the ill-fated plan for union of France and Britain. The merger would have been accom-

R. A. F. Pounds Enemy Ports; Le Havre Bombed Five Hours

By James MacDonald,

London, Sept. 19.—Royal Air Force bombers poured a destructive rain of high explosive and incendiary bombs early today and last night on more than a dozen important German targets, the principal ones being big-gun positions at Cap Griz Nez and enemy invasion ports strung along the continental coastline from Flushing, in the north, to Le Havre, in the southwest.

Everywhere they went, the air ministry said, they spread havoc, causing explosions and big fires. Damage was particularly heavy at Le Havre, which was singled out for the night's heaviest aerial bombardment—an attack of nearly five hours.

Meantime, other bombers of the coastal command overtook a convoy off Borkum, and, according to London officials, scored a direct hit on an escorting German destroyer. Whether the convoy consisted of supply ships or troop ships was not stated.

The air ministry announced also that several strategic inland supply po[illegible]tribution centers were [illegible]her smashing. Seven [illegible]es failed to return from these operations.

British authorities, who have been reticent regarding details of R. A. F. attacks on German "Big Berthas" at Cap Griz Nez, indicated that the lat-

German Raiders Use Giant Bombs, Havoc Widespread; Navy's Guns Pound Fascists Along 350 Miles of Coast

The War Today

GERMAN PLANES continue to rain mammoth bombs on central and suburban London and other parts of Britain.

STRIKING BACK, Britain's air force launches a fierce, five-hour attack on Le Havre and other German-held Channel ports, as well as on cities in Germany and Holland.

BRITAIN'S NAVY meanwhile goes into action in the Mediterranean, shelling Italy's advancing forces along the 350-mile Egyptian-Libyan coast line.

AXIS PLANS for furtherance of the war are discussed at length at a secret conference in Rome between German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop and Premier Mussolini.

By Larry Allen,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Alexandria, Egypt, Sept. 19.—Britain's battle fleet has gone into action to demonstrate its mastery of the Mediterranean and to harass Italy's advancing expeditionary force along the 350-mile Egyptian-Libyan coastline.

All along the coast, the British say, the bombardment caused heavy damage to the invading columns.

The fleet's mighty guns burst against Italian land positions night before last after it had made a three weeks' sweep of the Mediterranean and Aegean seas.

"This new sweep of the Mediterranean and this blasting of enemy concentrations ashore is new proof of our mastery of the sea and air," said an officer aboard one of the warships.

"In the entire 2,500-mile trip no Italian warship appeared and though the fleet frequently was shadowed by enemy planes, they made no attempt to bomb us. Destroyers made an attack on two submarines with depth charges. Huge patches of oil appeared on the surface of the sea after both attacks."

Italians Surprised

From Sidi Barrani to Salum—in Egypt—the fire of the fleet raked Italian troop concentrations and newly established supply bases.

The shelling came within 48 hours after the Italians had dug in at Sidi Barrani. The British maintained that it took the Italians by surprise and caused widespread damage to the bases they had prepared for an intensification of the drive into Egypt.

Principal objectives were water and fuel supplies and Fascist heavy artillery rolling into Sidi Barrani. Further west, the British said, a big motor transport concentration moving between Salum and Sidi Barrani was fired.

First Major Resistance

Successful R. A. F. attacks also were made on Tobruk, Derna, Bengazi and Bardia, in Italian Libya, the British said, as well as raids on Italian bases in the Dodecanese Islands at Maritza and Calato, in the eastern Mediterranean.

The fleet also heavily shelled the Libyan port of Bengasi, 300 miles west of Salum, simultaneously with a British air bombardment.

The British claimed destruction of many hangars and airplanes at Bengasi and of enemy transports at Buqbuq in Egypt.

Day Raids Fail

By Frank R. Kelley

London (Friday), Sept. 20.—In thick clouds and a driving rain German planes are bombing London blindly this morning at ten-minute intervals, while the city's guns are crashing their salvos at the unseen foe buzzing overhead.

[The Associated Press described the bombs as "mammoth" and declared they shook buildings from top to bottom.]

It is the capital's thirteenth night of ordeal. The bombs screamed down and spread death and ruin and some nestled silently in the city, until their mechanism should explode them in hours or days. The antiaircraft shells are bursting with a deep twang that sounds like a god plucking a gigantic bass fiddle.

Attackers Glide In

The nightly bombardment of London began at dinner time, after a day in which this city found itself pelted with rain instead of explosives and incendiaries. Lowering clouds and head winds slowed up the German attacks during the daylight hours, but a few raiders, gliding silently with cut-off engines, swooped on the East End and scattered their missiles indiscriminately on working men's homes.

At least 35 districts from the north to southwest of the capital had reported at 2:30 this morning the wrecking by Nazi bombs of houses and buildings. Casualties at that hour were stated to be slight. A number of families had been forced to evacuate their homes because of time bombs. In the central London area one raider was reported shot down.

A lull in the bombardment at 2 a. m. was followed in the central and west end areas by the dull thud of exploding sticks of bombs. As the first bomb found its mark antiair-

Carol Married Magda in 1929, N. Y. Paper Says

New York, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—The New York Daily News, in an undated copyrighted dispatch appearing in Friday morning editions, reported that Carol II of Rumania, who recently abdicated his throne, and Magda Lupescu were legally married in London in 1929.

The News said that according to a member of the Lupescu family now in New York, the marriage was performed in strict secrecy and that the details were known only to a few persons in high positions, one of them being Queen Mother Mary of Britain.

The marriage occurred before Carol returned to the throne in 1930.

Carol had been divorced from his royal wife, Helen, on June 21, 1928.

craft guns roared into action. The raiders, beaten off their targets, would return from a different direction and so the bombardment went on throughout the night.

The north and northwest neighborhoods were singled out by the raiders for the opening three hours of the night attack. By 2 a. m. the bombers, on a sweep from north to southwest, had taken the number of attacked London areas to more than 30.

[The Associated Press reported that, just before dawn, a new squadron of bombers rocked the northwest area of London with a sudden, concerted attack. At the same time another contingent struck at an east London area.

[The new outburst came after the Nazis' activity had been reduced in the early morning hours.]

Civilians Machine-Gunned

One plane dropped three or four bombs which smashed houses and a store and killed several persons. The raider came so low that a World War veteran said he could have hit it with a stone. Another machine, before zooming into the clouds delayed a moment to machine-gun people as they ran through the streets to shelter.

In the suburbs a lone raider dropped five bombs which wrecked three houses and two sheds and trapped three boys in one of the houses. Rescue squads quickly extricated two of the youths but the third was not found until hours later.

In a town in southeast England a raider dropped a screaming bomb on streets of a working class and residential district. More than 20 dwellings were damaged and three casualties were reported.

The air ministry and ministry of home security announced jointly last night that no large-scale air action had been reported during the day, but that British fighters intercepting a large proportion of the enemy, had destroyed five enemy bombers.

One Falls in Sea

One of these was knocked down into the sea off a southeast coast town. It was a large Dornier and flew low over the housetops before plunging into the water with its crew.

Crowds along the promenade cheered. A second bomber fell off the southeast coast, and a third in East Anglia.

The ministry said two planes dropped bombs in a district of east London early in the day, causing some damage and casualties, but both were tackled by fighters and one was shot down.

Coastal towns in Essex and Sussex and one point in the west of England reported that they had been bombed, but casualties were few.

After Wednesday night's punishment London had many new wounds yesterday, from humble houses in the East End to landmarks in the central area.

One district in the eastern area of the city suffered its most vicious and indiscriminate night bombing, entire streets were wrecked and shops were blown up. For a quarter of a mile along a main thoroughfare it was impossible to find a side street that had escaped.

With daylight however, the inhabitants stuck Union Jacks in the ruins, and storekeepers hung out "business as usual" signs, even if it wasn't to be the usual business.

More Shelters Demanded

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 19.—The London press today made insistent demands for better air-raid shelters and better arrangements for the 10,000,000 who are the involuntary participants in this war.

The authoritative British Press Association reported that the government is convinced that "deep or heavily protected" shelters were impossible to construct in wartime and that the job would be "more or less impracticable" even in peacetime.

William Mabane, the parliamentary secretary to the ministry of home security, urged the public not to leave the small "Anderson" shelters at their homes for public shelters, saying it deprived others of shelter.

"We're going to improve the amenities in existing shelters," he added. "We're setting about providing better lighting and better accommodation for sleeping and better sanitary arrangements."

The ministry of home security, recapitulating the effect of the daily and nightly raids, said the Germans had done little military damage. It said they had destroyed only 2 per cent of the supplies of oil, damaging one aircraft factory and one big gas plant.

Arsenals, Shipyards Little Harmed

There had been no serious damage to shipyards, it was added, none to heavy industry and only negligible damage to arsenals.

As to oil, it was declared that the loss already had been made up and that there was a great reserve storage capacity for incoming stocks.

The ministry's spokesman acknowledged that London had taken a terrible beating, but said the damage was not vital industrially or militarily; that all losses here had been more than compensated by increased production elsewhere.

During the day the censorship was sharpened to prevent publication for cabling abroad of the time of London raid alarms—their beginning or their end. The censor said instant publication was prejudicial to security.

The censors, who usually act within a few minutes, held dispatches for an hour in most cases and sometimes for several hours.

Study Plans for District's Registration

'Tentative' List Omits D. C. Unit From 1940 Service

The War Department yesterday issued a "tentative" list of 15 National Guard units in 26 States to be called into active service before Christmas.

The District's 260th Coast Artillery Regiment, which had expected to be inducted into Federal service November 15, on the basis of a War Department "warning order," was not included.

While yesterday's tentative announcement was issued "in an effort to aid members of the National Guard arrange their business and personal affairs," the more than 800 officers and men of the 260th were left in a state of indecision. Instead of making yesterday's announcement definite, the War Department emphasized its tentativeness and said "these dates of induction and composition of priorities are subject to change."

Texans Go November 18

A War Department spokesman said, however, that they would not be changed.

As revealed by the announcement, the Fifty-sixth Cavalry Brigade, Texas National Guard, will be sent to Fort Bliss, Tex., November 18.

On November 25, three divisions and 11 smaller units will be sent to various camps for a year's training.

"Present plans," the announcement continued, "provide that no National Guard units will be ordered into the Federal service during the period Tuesday, November 26, 1940, and Thursday, January 2, 1941, and that on a date or dates yet to be determined during the period, Friday, January 3, 1941, and Monday, January 20, 1941, additional National Guard troops will be ordered into the Federal service."

Information already has been published that the Twenty-ninth Division, composed of District, Virginia and Maryland troops, has been tentatively scheduled to be called about January 6.

The 260th's quandary, a high officer of the District National Guard indicated, was the result of its taking a "warning order" too seriously. That order, he said yesterday, "did not mean anything except a warning so the regiment could be ready if the War Department decided to call it out."

35,565 Men Called

Units to be called next month on the basis of yesterday's announcement include an authorized strength of 2,456 officers, 35 warrant officers and 33,074 enlisted men, a total of 35,565 officers and men.

Besides the Fifty-sixth Cavalry Brigade, they are:

Thirty-first Division, from Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, to be trained at Camp Blanding, Fla.

Thirty-fifth Division, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri, to be trained at Camp Robinson, Ark.

One Hundred and Sixth Observation Squadron, Alabama, to be trained at Jacksonville, Fla.

One Hundred and Tenth Observation Squadron, Missouri, to be trained at Little Rock, Ark.

One Hundred and Eleventh Observation Squadron, Texas, to be trained at Brownwood.

One Hundred and Twelfth Observation Squadron, Ohio, to be trained at Columbia, S. C.

One Hundred and Fifty-third Infantry, Arkansas, to be trained at Camp Robinson, Ark.

One Hundred and Forty-seventh Field Artillery, South Dakota, to be trained at Camp Ord, Calif.

One Hundred and Second Radio Intelligence Company, California, to be trained at Camp Ord, Calif.

One Hundred and Twenty-eighth Field Artillery, Missouri, to be trained at Columbia, S. C.

One Hundred and Ninety-second Tank Battalion, Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio and Kentucky, to be trained at Fort Knox, Ky.

British Buyers Take Entire Willard Floor

But Headquarters Of Purchasing Unit Will Stay in New York

The British Purchasing Commission has taken over the entire ninth floor of the Willard Hotel for Washington offices, it was revealed yesterday.

Headquarters of the commission, which is charged with the responsibility of buying aircraft and other war essentials, will remain in New York, said Charles T. Ballantyne, spokesman for the local branch.

Difficulty Overcome

Explaining the expansion, a formal announcement said:

"It has become increasingly necessary for senior officials of the British Purchasing Commission to visit Washington. Some difficulty has been encountered due to the fact that the office accommodation previously at the disposal of members of the commission in Washington has been inadequate for their requirements.

"In consequence, the renting of the space in the Willard Hotel will overcome this difficulty, and in order to service the representatives of the commission in Washington a small administrative staff will be maintained here. The main force of the commission will, however, remain in New York."

The "small administrative staff" to be maintained here will number at least 100 workers, Ballantyne said. In addition to the 50 rooms on the Willard's ninth floor which have been leased for the duration, office space now held at 725 and 729 Fifteenth street northwest will be retained.

Successor to Anglo-French Unit

Successor to the Anglo-French Purchasing Board, which was dissolved when France surrendered, the British Commission has placed $2,000,000,000 in contracts—60 per cent for aircraft—in this country since war began last September.

This figure, Ballantyne explained, includes French obligations which were assumed by the British commission, whose general director is Arthur B. Purvis.

Occupancy of the Willard Hotel's ninth floor was begun last week. About one-third of the available space was in use yesterday, with hiring of clerical help proceeding rapidly. Both British and American workers will comprise the staff, Ballantyne said.

Accuse Hungarians Of Atrocities

By the Associated Press

Bucharest, Sept. 19.—The Rumanian government officially accused Hungarian soldiers and civilians tonight of "massacreing" Rumanian peasants, burning villages and committing 13 specific "horrors" in northern Transylvania since the occupation of that recently ceded area.

The government's statement alleged that nails had been driven into the body of a peasant in whose home a Rumanian flag had been found; that 100 school children had been forced to become street cleaners; that the family of one peasant was "massacred."

In several towns, it was asserted, Hungarians hanged school teachers from church crosses; filled the wounds of injured men with quick lime and raided homes, "maltreating the occupants and stealing anything of value."

est visits there by the British fliers accomplished something in the effort to prevent the Nazis from shelling the southeast coast of this country.

It was reported that the pilot of one R. A. F. bombing plane attacked gun emplacements from a low altitude. Members of the crew of that plane related that as soon as their bombs burst great quantities of material were flung high into the air. When they were several miles out to sea en route home they said they saw a flash and what appeared to be a great explosion.

Many waves of raiders flew over La Havre, where they dropped hundreds of high explosives and large cargoes of incendiary bombs in defiance of fierce antiaircraft fire and undeterred by the handicap of low clouds.

The raid on Le Havre began shortly before 11 p. m. The first arrivals started fires that lit the objective for succeeding waves.

Homecoming fliers told their superior officers they saw at one time a blinding sheet of flame after their bombs landed and this was followed by another explosion that seemed to come either from a vessel moored alongside the marine basin or from a large warehouse on the dock. The second explosion caused a fire that could be seen for 50 miles.

Fliers reaching Le Havre in later waves said they saw fires raging in many parts of the harbor by the light of which they distinguished some sort of large vessel tied up at a pier burning "strongly" and another ship of about 7,000 tons about a mile north of Honfleur "well alight."

Docks and ships were bombarded again and again as the raid continued early this morning and new blazes were started as the old fires burned themselves out.

One new conflagration engulfed the harbor power station, and the crew of a low-flying R. A. F. bomber related seeing red-hot girders within that furnace.

The air ministry said another big fire broke out among the buildings near the Gare Transatlantique after numerous incendiary bombs were released.

The crew of one R. A. F. plane had a narrow escape during the raid on Le Havre and the perilous journey homeward. The pilot of this machine dived within 1,000 feet of the harbor, unmindful of the fact that big fires below made him an easy target for German ground gunners, and flew directly across the center of the harbor.

Antiaircraft shrapnel hit his plane three times, tearing many holes in the fuselage and puncturing a tire of one landing wheel. The pilot managed to bring the plane home and, despite the useless wheel, landed the craft safely. All aboard stepped out unscratched.

Illinois Labor Group Indorses Third Term

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 19 (AP).—The Illinois Federation of Labor convention today indorsed President Roosevelt for a third term. The vote was 314 to 78.

Only twice before had the Federation taken similar stands. It indorsed President Roosevelt for reelection in 1936 and in 124 indorsed the elder Robert M. La Follette for President.

Army Volunteer Standards May Not Apply in Draft

a "degree of obesity interfering with military activity."

Restrictions against "extreme ugliness of face" or "indecent" tattooing are expected to be realized, also. Besides lengthy specific requirements, it is prescribed that as a standard a registered man "must be able to see well, have comparatively good hearing, his heart must be able to stand the stress of physical exertion, he must be intelligent enough to understand and execute maneuvers, obey commands and protect himself" and must be strong enough for sustained marches.

Meanwhile, plans for registering of men between the ages of 21 and 35, inclusive, October 16, went forward throughout the country, but a White House announcement indicated it may be several days before the draft machinery is officially created by Executive order.

There were these developments during the day:

The House, waiving its rules by unanimous consent, passed a $338,263,902 appropriation bill providing housing for the conscripts. Part of a $1,941,000,000 budget estimate asked by President Roosevelt last Saturday, mostly to finance the draft program, the housing funds were rushed through though printed copies of the bill were not available. The speed with which the draftees can be inducted into service depends upon making adequate housing available.

The Army announced that 37,000 additional National Guardsmen would be ordered into active service in November, under present plans, but that no others would be called before January. Draftees beginning their service before then will fill up vacancies in Regular Army units and in seven Guard divisions and miscellaneous units already ordered into service.

Both the Senate and House Military Affairs committees approved legislation authorizing the setting up of "home guards" to take the place of Guard units mobilized for Federal service. The War Department would furnish arms and equipment for the home defense bodies under the bill.

The selective service committee, nucleus for the national draft board, sent master forms for the registration blank and certificate to the 48 States by air mail. Through the Nation, some 32,000,000 blanks and 24,000,000 pocket-size certificates of registration will be printed for use October 16, it was estimated.

The Census announced that on the basis of latest population figures, 16,404,000 men from 21 through 35 will be required to register next month.

Representative Patman (Democrat), of Texas, told a House committee considering legislation dealing with the civil liabilities of draftees that the conscription law already was "freezing" credit and deterring installment sales.

The Army announced that 48 selected regular and reserve officers and one civilian will begin a special course at the Army War College here Monday. They are specialists in personnel classification and will be trained in a system worked out to fit draftees into duties in the Army for which best qualified by previous experience.

Officials said in connection with the physical standards regulations that several changes would be made in the wartime rules to be applied.

Registration Setup for Draft Is Expanded

A new draft registration setup for Washington, comprising 24 districts instead of the 19 originally proposed, was approved yesterday by the District Commissioners in conference with Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, local draft executive.

The 24 districts were laid out, Gen. Cox said, roughly on the basis of one to each 30,000 population. Two schools in each district will be designated as registration places for the District's 95,000 eligibles except in one district. In that one, a large high school building will be used for the purpose.

As far as possible, Gen. Cox said, personnel of the District Board of Education, including school teachers, will serve as registrars, of which 4,000 will be needed to handle the registrations October 16. Should this personnel prove inadequate, he said, volunteers will be drawn from such organizations as the American Legion, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and others, all to serve without pay.

Only one paid employe will serve on each of the 24 local boards. This employe, to be designated the board's executive secretary, will be paid, Cox said, probably on the basis of the daily time required to accomplish the board's work. In addition to the three board members and the executive secretary, each local board will include an advisory commissioner for registrants, furnished by the Government. Clerical assistants at draft headquarters will be paid.

Personnel of the local boards will not be announced, Cox said, until his recommendations have been approved by the Commissioners.

Married Women Would Impose Tax on Bachelors

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

WANT TO TAX THE BACHELORS—A novel idea, to say the least, is that of Mrs. J. Winfred Vis (left) and Mrs. Madalyn E. McCrea, president and director, respectively, of the Tax the Bachelors League, Inc. Yesterday the two women launched in Los Angeles a campaign to penalize financially those men who have escaped a marital state for at least 36 years. They would make unmarried women the beneficiaries. Articles of incorporation were filed in Sacramento

McNutt Attacks Willkie Leadership

Can't Even Lead Own Party, He Tells Baltimore Audience

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Sept. 19.—Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, described the Republican National ticket tonight as a "terrifying choice" in "this uncertain world."

He reviewed world conditions in an address prepared for a Maryland State Democratic rally at Baltimore, and declared:

"During the next four years, the nation which lacks strength of determination, the nation which lacks moral fiber, the nation which acts slowly and falteringly will have little chance to survive."

He described Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, as "a man who daily demonstrates his inability to lead his own party."

"He's a good gag-man and his personality is engaging," McNutt continued, "but you can't frighten a dictator by rumpling up your hair and making wise cracks."

"Man Without a Party"

McNutt asserted the Republican nominee's speeches "have no political significance whatever to the future of this Nation," adding "his own party doesn't believe in them. . . .

"Willkie is a man without a party. "Nothing but apathy and almost complete indifference on the part of Republican leaders both in and out of Congress has greeted his pledges and commitments. So far as can be observed, he has not influenced a single vote either in the House of Representatives or in the Senate. His policy is a personal policy, and his platform an individual one. . . .

"What reason," McNutt asked, "is there to suppose that a man who can bring no semblance of agreement or solidarity in that party that is seeking to elect him President of the United States can bring to the processes of government that unity of purpose and resolve which the Nation requires in a world-shattering crisis?"

Qualities of Leadership

He asked, "What are the qualities of leadership which are effective in a Democratic community?" and declared:

"They involve, first of all, the ability to influence other men by the powers of reason—to affect other men's judgment and thereby induce them to action. They require capacity to inspire the common run of citizens, to evoke from them that mysterious wisdom that emerges from their collective judgment—to arouse in them that strange nobility which enables ordinary men to accomplish extraordinary things.

"These are the qualities that have made Franklin Roosevelt a great leader among the men of today's world. They are the qualities that have enabled him to lead the Democratic Party to the greatest achievements of its history.

"And in none of these respects has the titular head of the Republican Party revealed the slightest capacity."

Introduced by Preston Lane

McNutt was introduced by W. Preston Lane, of Hagerstown, Md., Democratic national committeeman, who said, "You are welcome in Maryland because the people of this State have full realization of the services you have contributed in various capacities to the advancement of this country."

Others who attended and spoke briefly included Gov. O'Conor, Senator George L. Radcliffe, Baltimore Mayor Howard W. Jackson and Maryland Democratic Congressional nominees.

78 Electoral Votes for Willkie Today

Note by Dr. Gallup: The reader should remember that some margin of error is involved in every sampling operation, due to the size of the sample itself. In the present survey the statistical probabilities are approximately 95 in 100 that the average error per State resulting from the size of the sample will not exceed 4 per cent. Actually, in 13 election predictions made by the Institute since 1936, the error from all causes (cross-section error as well as error due to size of sample) has averaged 3 to 4 per cent. In interpreting the above percentages for any particular State, these limitations should be borne in mind.

Gallup Poll Now Gives Roosevelt 38 States

vey also covers the period in which President Roosevelt announced the transfer of 50 over-age destroyers to Great Britain in exchange for naval bases.

Meanwhile the campaign of Mr. Willkie has—purposely, say Republican strategists—been in a state of comparative quiet. The Republican leaders point to Mr. Willkie's astonishing feat in coming from behind in the nomination race last spring, and predict that Willkie's present tour of the West is only the beginning of an intensive home-stretch drive.

It must also be emphasized that there is always a margin of error involved in every sampling operation—no matter how carefully conducted—because of the size of the sample itself. In the present study the statistical probabilities are 95 in 100 that the average error per State due to the size of the sample will not exceed plus or minus 4 per cent. Interpretation of the survey results, therefore, must take into account those States where the Roosevelt-Willkie percentages are between 54 and 46 per cent.

While Mr. Willkie has been preparing his home-stretch efforts, the survey shows that President Roosevelt has made gains in all but four States.

In general, the President's biggest gains have come in the States east of the Mississippi—including such important pivotal States as New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan.

Since most of these States were in the Willkie camp by only narrow margins a month ago, the shifts have put many of them in Mr. Roosevelt's column today. The race in many of these States is still close—as close as it was a month ago—but the advantage lies today with President Roosevelt instead of with Mr. Willkie.

Analysis reveals that President Roosevelt has captured 10 States from Willkie in the past four weeks, with a total of 206 electoral votes. The State-by-State picture as of August 25 and today is as follows:

TODAY'S SURVEY	Roosevelt	Willkie
Number of States	38	10
Electoral Votes	453	78
AUGUST 25 SURVEY
Number of States	28	20
Electoral Votes	247	284

Much of President Roosevelt's current strength would be vulnerable on the basis of a 4 per cent shift to Willkie, however. The Institute survey shows that the President's lead is only four points or less in 11 States with a total of 210 electoral votes.

A four-point shift in the Democratic direction, of course, would reduce Mr. Willkie's electoral strength drastically and leave him with about the same number of electoral votes Gov. Landon received.

Gains in Popular Vote

President Roosevelt's share of the popular vote has risen in the past four weeks to 55 per cent, as compared with 51 per cent in August. While the popular vote is of very limited use as an election indicator—due to the fact that it is the State-by-State electoral vote which counts—the President's gains in this department have averaged four points since August.

This is still well below the 62½ per cent which Roosevelt received in the election of 1936.

Roosevelt's Topic Today Kept Secret

By the Associated Press

Tussling with language which the White House declined to analyze as either political or nonpolitical, President Roosevelt labored last night on a speech for delivery in Philadelphia today.

The Chief Executive departed from the Capital by special train intending to inspect some of Philadelphia's defense works this morning, and speak in the afternoon at exercises commemorating the bicentennial of the University of Pennsylvania.

A possible tip-off that the address might take on major proportions was the presence around the White House of Justice Samuel I. Rosenman, of the New York State Supreme Court. Rosenman has frequently been consulted by the President in advance of important speeches.

But Stephen Early, Presidential secretary, said merely that he didn't know whether the address in Convention Hall—where the Democrats gave Mr. Roosevelt his second nomination in 1936 and the Republicans nominated Wendell L. Willkie this year—would be political or nonpolitical.

Three radio networks expected to carry the speech between 3 and 3:30 p. m. Washington officials of the chains said no arrangements had been made for paid sponsorship of the time. Air time for political addresses must be paid for unless equal free time has been granted, or is to be granted, to a rival party.

As a part of the ceremonies today, Mr. Roosevelt gets another honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. He invited Senator Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania, and Anthony J. Biddle, Ambassador to Poland, and Mrs. Biddle to accompany him to the Quaker City.

D. C. Rifle Corps Women Get Medals

Ten members of the "Powder Puff Brigade" of the District Women's Rifle Corps were honored last night with medals for sharpshooting at a meeting of the organization at Waddell Hall, Eighth and H streets northwest. Eleven members of the organization received Red Cross certificates.

Helen Hojak won the highest score with 197 out of 200. Others receiving medals were Iva Rogers, Mrs. Blanche Hutchinson, Harriet Schupp, Gwendolyn Barker, Martha L. Cork, Christine Reed, Dorothy Beall, Elizabeth Knight and Cora Lee McWhirt.

Recipients of Red Cross certificates were Virginia Mauck, J. Florence Dietche, Verna A. Whipple, Marion Johnson, Leda C. Amidon, Elizabeth Knight, Sara Carl, Laura Wallace, Sue Vernon, Arabella J. Scott and Juliette Prosnick.

85% of Veterans for Willkie, California Legion Men Say

Post Staff Writer

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 19.—Will Wendell L. Willkie get the war veterans' vote in the election of 1940?

War veterans, like Elks, Masons and Knights of Columbus, are to be found in both parties, and probably in about equal proportions.

Out here, however, American Legion men are willing to wager that Wendell Willkie—a former captain in the A. E. F. and a past commander of a Legion post in Akron, Ohio—will get better than 85 per cent of the veterans' vote in November.

Thomas W. McManus, chairman of the Willkie War Veterans Committee for California, told The Post reporter today that a recent State legion convention at San Diego, a convention attended by 5,000 veterans, an overwhelming number of the delegates were wearing Willkie buttons.

McMannus gave three reasons why most of World War veterans out here and elsewhere, too, he believed—were favorable to Willkie.

"First," he said, "we take a natural pride in having one of our own, a real veteran, running for the highest office in the land.

"Second, many veterans have never forgiven President Roosevelt for cutting veterans' compensation under the Economy Act of 1933 and then turning around and pouring out millions on other less deserving. The fact that the cuts were largely restored makes no difference now.

"Third, the veterans have long felt that the New Deal was encouraging subversive elements. We didn't like the way Mr. Roosevelt cracked down on Chairman Dies when Dies was tying to run down those subversive elements. Neither did we like the way Mrs. Roosevelt entertained members of the Youth Congress.

"And one other thing: We haven't liked the way President Roosevelt has treated Louis Johnson and Paul McNutt, two of our past national commanders."

President Offers Fare For Refugee Children

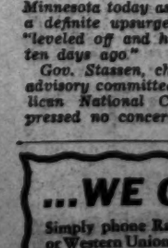
New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—President Roosevelt has offered to pay passage here for two Dutch war refugee children now stranded in London.

The United States Committee for the Care of European Children, announced the offer, saying it already had found a sponsor for the youngsters on arrival.

With their parents, the children, a boy of 15 and a girl of 13, escaped from Amsterdam the night it was invaded by the Germans and rowed for seven days in an open boat before being picked up by a British destroyer.

The Political Arena

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Florence Bankhead removed her name from the list of possible successors to the Congressional post held for 23 years by her late husband, Speaker William B. Bankhead, in a statement today issued through her brother-in-law, Senator John H. Bankhead.



Mrs. Bankhead

[In Washington Carter Manasco, secretary to the late Speaker, yesterday announced his candidacy for the seat caused by the death of the Alabaman.—Editor's note.]

State executive committee members from her (the Seventh) District had agreed to present Mrs. Bankhead's name to the State committee at the special meeting called here Saturday to select the Democratic nominee for the vacancy.

"I am actuated by the knowledge of my lack of experience for this high office so brilliantly held by my beloved husband," she said, "and also by the seriousness of the times, which call for the highest order of statesmanship in our democracy."

Walter Will Bankhead, son of the Senator and nephew of the late Speaker, also announced he was not a candidate for the nomination.

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Willkie campaign was described by Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota today as having "taken a definite upsurge" after having "leveled off and hit a low about ten days ago."

Gov. Stassen, chairman of the advisory committee of the Republican National Committee, expressed no concern over the so-called leveling off and said in an interview that "it was the right time for it to hit a low."

He cited his own campaign in Minnesota, which he said "bogged down at the same stage of the campaign," after which he was overwhelmingly elected.

Columbus, Nebr., Sept. 19 (AP).—Gov. Ralph L. Carr of Colorado charged tonight that President Roosevelt, by trading 50 destroyers to Britain, had proven that "he feels he is a man of destiny whose very position renders him free of legal and constitutional limitations."

The Colorado Republican executive spoke at an anniversary celebration of this Nebraska city.

Postal Inspectors Seek Bomb Sent To Philadelphia

Telephoned notice that a bomb, timed to explode during President Roosevelt's visit to Philadelphia today, had been mailed there from Norfolk Va., set postoffice officials of four States frantically checking parcels last night.

The tip came to Norfolk police yesterday from a man whose voice "sounded nervous and under great stress," and who warned police that the bomb was timed to explode within 48 hours. Norfolk police immediately notified Richard E. Eggleston, postoffice inspector in charge here, who directed a thorough search of all parcel mail directed to Philadelphia, despite the hope the anonymous informant might be a lunatic.

Text of Willkie's Address at Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Sept. 19 (A').—Following is the text of a speech prepared for delivery tonight by Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee:

For the past six days I have been travelling across the great western half of our country. I have gone through the fertile fields of the Middle West, the great spaces of the Southwest, and have come finally to this beautiful land of Southern California.

I have talked to thousands of your people here in the West, and I have heard about some of your problems. Many of them, like flood control, for example, are of national importance because they involve the conservation of our natural resources, of human life, and of property.

We have short-sighted men in Washington who would have us believe that America has reached the limit of its growth. But out here in the West, the evidence is all around us of the utter folly of this counsel of despair. And that folly has reached its final climax in the effort to persuade the people of America that there is only one man—one indispensable man—who is capable of leading our country in these troubled times.

Two Great Objectives

Now there is no man indispensable to this country. But I can tell you something that is indispensable. The indispensable thing right now is common sense.

We in this Nation are agreed upon two great objectives. We are determined to make our national defense so strong that no nation—however great its military power and however ruthless its leaders—will dare to attack us. And we are determined to create the opportunity for our unemployed fellow citizens to go back to work.

These two purposes go hand in hand. We cannot be a strong nation when millions of our people are without jobs. We cannot become a strong nation unless all of our people join in the work of making us strong. That is common sense. And common sense also tells us what the answer is. The answer is increased production.

Modern war is fought with the products of industry. The task of rearming America is thus primarily a task of mobilizing and directing the enormous productive capacity of American industry.

Dynamic System

But the actual production of airplanes, tanks, and guns is not the only part that industry must play in the job of making America strong. A healthy, active, expanding economy, producing all the things our people need, all the myriad engines of peace, is the very basis of defense. Unless we are strong within we cannot be strong without.

Ours is a dynamic system. It depends upon the constant development and growth of new business, new enterprise, new opportunities for men to work and to produce. We cannot stand still behind the guns of our battleships. In order to be strong, we must grow.

All this is simple enough. All this is common sense. Then why is it that for years we have had idle money by the billions and idle men by the millions? Why is it that during the past ten years, for the first time in our history, we have failed to make any economic growth?

The answer is that the men who have been determining our national policies in Washington have not believed in production. They have not understood the dynamic character of our system. They believe that our economy has reached maturity—become static. They believe that there is no more room for expansion; that increased production might even be dangerous. They have treated our country as if it had no future. They have discouraged productive enterprise.

Issue Is Democracy

I have said that the issue of this campaign is to preserve our democracy. Democracy can persist only so long as its people are busy. It is rooted in expansion and in hope.

I therefore propose to put an end to this industrial stagnation. I propose to establish in this country the only kind of life that you and I understand—a life of good honest work and good honest reward.

I propose to rescue America from an administration which has proved itself incompetent and not to be trusted with the enormous powers that it has acquired.

How shall I do this? Let's resort to common sense again.

The mainspring of economic activity in this country is provided by individual initiative—by men going into business and risking success or failure.

What makes a man go into business? Many of you are businessmen. Think back a minute. What did you ask yourselves when you were trying to decide to start in business on your own?

Questions Asked

Well, you asked a lot of questions. Questions about costs, about markets, and about methods. But they all came down to one fundamental question. What you were trying to find out was whether, after meeting all expenses, there was going to be anything left over for a profit.

That is the question that every man who wants to start a business has to ask himself. It doesn't matter whether the proposition is a gasoline filling station or the formation of a great corporation. It all comes down to that one question. Is there a chance of a profit that will justify the risk?

Now, what has the New Deal been doing? It has been pursuing policies which increase the difficulty of answering that simple question. It has increased that difficulty in many ways. It has done it by making unpredictable changes in laws and regulations. It has done it by setting up punitive taxes. It has done it by increasing red tape, by investigations, and by other nuisances that add to costs. It has done it by vesting broad discretionary powers in the hands of administrative officials, many of whom are hostile to the enterprises they regulate. And it has done all this at a time when the changing and uncertain conditions of world affairs have already made it difficult for businessmen to figure out their prospects and keep up their courage.

Busnessmen are just like all other human beings. If they are subject to abuse, to the imposition of capricious and constantly changing rules and to continual discouragement, they become pessimistic, they hesitate to take risks, they cease to be enterprising. And when that happens, the mainspring of the American enterprise system has run down.

In recent years, we have been moving little by little away from the true course of our American system. We have had a Government which neither understands nor sympathizes with free enterprise. It has experimented with policies and adopted attitudes calculated to weaken enterprise and to carry us step by step toward a completely regulated economy.

Four Proposals

If you poeple want a completely regulated economy, if you want a totalitarian system of some sort, don't vote for me. I'm headed in just the opposite direction. And in order to turn this country around and get started in that direction, I propose to take four steps. I want now to be very specific:

1. The rules under which business is conducted must be clear and must be stable.
2. Government policies affecting business should be consistent.
3. Government competition with business must be kept within well-defined limits. It must not stop the flow of capital into new productive enterprise.
4. Business must be given a chance to make a profit.

Now, I think a thorough application of these simple rules would get us turned around and headed in the right direction. But once headed in that direction we should want to move in that direction. And we should then find that the greatest single obstacle to our progress is the present tax system.

This tax structure that the New Deal has erected is unscientific, repressive, and loaded with punitive measures. It is unjust and discriminatory. It is driving capital out of productive employment. It is preventing the creation of the new enterprises that our dynamic system must have, the enterprises that make jobs. The New Deal taxes put a premium on the investment of money in all types of Government securities, and drive money out of productive enterprise.

Example Given

Let me give you an example of how our present tax laws discourage the kind of enterprise that makes jobs.

A man I know runs a successful business in which he has invested practically all he owns. By hard work, initiative and skillful management, he has built up an organization that employs many people. He is just a typical American businessman.

The other day a well-to-do woman of his acquaintance came to ask his advice about her affairs. She brought with her the records of her investments, of her income and of her tax payments.

The businessman looked over her accounts and discovered a curious thing. Last year this woman's income had been almost exactly the same as his. But the next thing he noticed was that her income tax had been exactly one-fifth as large as his.

Here was a man whose money was productively employed in running a business. It was being used to give work to other men. Here was a woman whose money was invested in tax-exempt bonds. She was not taking any of the risks of business enterprise. She was not directly engaged in any productive effort that made jobs. Both of them had the same income, but the businessman was taxed five times as much. He was taxed five times as much for earning his money in active enterprise as the woman who merely invested in riskless tax-exempt bonds.

Haphazard Tax System

Is it any wonder that this businessman stopped to ask himself why he should continue to work hard, to take risks and to struggle with the increasingly complex problems of business under present-day conditions?

That is just one individual example of how our present haphazard tax system bears down hardest upon those whose enterprise makes jobs. It is a tax system which encourages men to hoard capital instead of encouraging them to put it to work.

Our tax laws are especially hard on new companies which are coming ahead. The big corporations are not hurt so much, but the small growing companies find an insurmountable barrier in their way. The looming figure of the tax collector stands in their path, barring the way of their natural expansion.

We now have a tax burden as heavy as ever in our history. In the last four years the New Deal has collected $22,250,000,000 of taxes—nearly $4,000,000,000 more than was collected in the wartime Administration of Woodrow Wilson.

The total of appropriations and contract authorizations passed in the present session of Congress amounts to no less than $19,000,000,000. The Feedral Government is expected to spend $15,000,000,000 in the current fiscal year. Of this amount, it will raise $7,000,000,000 by taxes, while borrowing the remaining $8,000,000,000 to add to our already staggering national debt.

Complicated Subject

The cost of that terrific bill is going to be paid by all you people. It is going to fall upon the backs of ordinary men, farmers, laborers, and little-business men. All of us are going to pay it. We are going to pay it in a thousand indirect taxes levied upon the clothes we wear, the food we eat, the automobiles we ride in, and everything except the air we breathe. And after we are through paying all this, we pay more in the loss of opportunities that results from the burdens that the tax bill places on every type of American business activity.

Now taxes are an extremely complicated subject. But the principles to be apllied are simple. One object must be to get the maximum amount of tax revenue up to the point of diminishing returns, and in accordance with the ability to pay.

Of course, the best tax system in the world will not balance the budget for us at the present time. Besides the ordinary expenses of the government, we must bear the staggering cost of a defense program. Also, until we get the unemployed back to work, we must spend large sums for relief. And it is our social duty to maintain and expand a program for old-age pensions, and aid to the blind, the needy, and dependent children.

We cannot hope to pay for all these things by raising taxes. That would crush industry and cause more unemployment. The best we can do is to stimulate production immediately and revise the tax system so that it will not act as a brake. In making that revision, common sense will insist upon answers to three questions.

We must know, first, what our present tax structure will yield when business really gets going. We must know, secondly, how high the national income will be when we achieve full employment. And when the national income gets that high, we must know how large the tax revenue will be.

If elected, I propose the immediate establishment of a special commission to study the whole tax question. Such a commission must be composed of Government officials, members of both houses of Congress, businessmen, representatives of labor and tax experts. It should study the needs of the Federal, State and local governments. The effects of taxation upon the individual and upon the Nation must be analyzed together with the cost and complexity of administering various types of taxes.

It was only after a similar exhaustive study of money and banking that the existing Federal Reserve System was evolved. This country has never had a scientifically planned tax policy. It is time we took steps to get it.

I am a businessman by training, and I claim to understand some of these things. I understand some other things, too. I understand what labor's stake in this system is.

It is my considered opinion that labor has been the chief sufferer from the policies of the New Deal The shifting rules, the inconsistent policies, the threat of Government competition, the discouragement of profit, and the fantastic, punative taxes—all these have been sold to the people of America with a false label marked "Liberalism." Actually, these practices have curtailed the number of jobs.

Common sense tells me that what labor wants is jobs. The more jobs there are available, the higher wages will be. I want to increase jobs. And, therefore, I want to abolish those New Deal practices.

Labor is entitled to the protection of progressive labor legislation, such as the Wages and Hours Law and the National Industrial Labor Relations Act. But these laws must be administered in the interests of the whole Nation. Their purpose is to reduce industrial strife, not to foment it. The proper function of our Government is to police the activities of its people so that they do not injure each other or encroach upon each other's rights. It is in this spirit that Government should stand with relation to workers and employers, not as opponents of either party, but as a friend to both.

Labor must remember, and business and government must remember, that we in America are young. Unlimited capacity for growth lies ahead of us. We must remember that for youth almost nothing is indispensable. Youth can adapt itself, invent, grow, and flourish. We are not old enough to have an indispensable theory of economics. The New Deal has imprisoned us in its own notions of what is indispensable, but we shall find that the bars of our prison, if we push them, are purely imaginary. We don't have to have a third term. We don't have to have 9,000,000 unemployed. We don't have to hate business.

All we have to do is to proceed upon the elementary principles of common sense to a new horizon for our people.

Senate Passes Excess Profits Bill

would bring in, for this year, $305,000,000, according to the Treasury, and $432,500,000 under estimates of Congressional tax experts.

Only one Republican, Senator Townsend, of Delaware, voted for the bill on final passage, and only five Democrats, Senators Bilbo, of Mississippi; Clark, of Missouri; Downey, of California; Hill, of Alabama, and Holt, of West Virginia, voted against it.

The Connally war-profits tax proposal would, in time of war, boost the normal corporation levy to 35 per cent, impose drastic excess-profits taxes and raise the basic individual income tax to 10 per cent. On a $1,000,000 income of a married person with no dependents, a tax of $880,510 would have to be paid.

The Connally plan passed the Senate in June as a rider to the first 1940 revenue bill, but was eliminated in conference; and it was generally conceded that this fate is in store for it once again.

Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee, who will head the House conferees, said last night that the conference could not be held before tomorrow. His group spent yesterday afternoon discussing the Senate changes in the House bill with Assistant Secretary of the Treasury John L. Sullivan and other tax experts.

Sullivan, it is understood, reiterated to the House conferees the Treasury's attitude in opposition to some of the Senate alterations.

Although the position of the House members has not been defined, it is expected that they will oppose in conference the flat 3.1 increase in the corporation rates, which carries corporation taxes to a maximum of 24 per cent on those firms with net incomes of more than $25,000.

However, a belief appeared to be growing that no matter what kind of tax bill is eventually agreed on, a new one will have to be worked out next year. Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, said yesterday that he expected the present bill will have to be amended or a new one devised because of the "destructive" effect the excess profits rates would have on some businesses.

And for exactly the opposite reason—because the tax would be too "lenient" toward some large-income corporations—a New Deal Representative declared that he didn't see how a new tax bill could be avoided next year.

In the last few minutes before final Senate passage yesterday, Senator Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada, obtained acceptance of two important amendments. One would exempt industries producing "strategic minerals" from the excess-profits tax. The other would give taxpaying corporations the right to take their average income for any three of the four years 1936-39 as the "base" from which to calculate "excess" profits.

"Excess profits," under the Senate bill, would be determined by comparing income for the tax year with average earnings for the base period; or, alternatively, by comparing ratio of income to invested capital with that for the base period.

No excess profits tax would be paid, however, if income for the tax year was less than 8 per cent of invested capital, or if it was less than $10,000.

The rates on the "excess" would range from 25 per cent on the first $20,000 to 50 per cent on the bracket over $500,000. Under an amendment offered yesterday by Senator George, a series of percentage brackets would be set up in addition to the dollar brackets.

In the debate on the Brown amendment removing tax exemption on income from future issues of Federal, State and local bonds, Chairman Glass of the Appropriations Committee asserted that banks are "afraid" not to take Government bonds.

U. S. Orders 5,022 Planes in 10 Days

Represent Third Of New Army Quota, Stimson Reveals

Answering charges the defense program is lagging, Secretary of War Stimson yesterday announced that orders for more than one third of the 14,394 plane program authorized by Congress September 9 have been placed to date.

While declining to comment on statements of Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, that arms production is bogging down, the War Secretary revealed with obvious pride at his press conference that the Army had placed orders for 5,022 planes in the ten days since funds for their purchase became available.

Questions as to when deliveries might be expected on the large plane orders, however, Stimson would not answer. He declared that "too many hostile eyes are directed at us" to make such information public.

All but 95 planes out of the 4,247 for which Congress provided funds on July 1, are now on order, it was stated. In all, 9,174 of the 18,641 planes voted this session have been contracted for, the War Secretary added.

To a request for comment on Willkie's charges, the former Republican Secretary of State shook his head, adding:

"I'm not in politics."

Stimson also revealed that 37,000 additional National Guardsmen will be called into active service during November for a year's drilling which will emphasize "severe physical training and seasoning." A statement outlining the training program for the Guardsmen stressed the need for hardening the troops, and warned that "many discomforts and hardships" must be expected.

Another announcement stated that 3,600 first and second lieutenants of the Regular Army will be given temporary promotion under a recent act of Congress to meet the needs of the expanding service. During July, August and September, it was said, the Army organized 32 new regiments, 115 new battalions and 729 new companies.

Later in the day, the War Department said that a $29,494,633 contract had been let to Vultee Aircraft, Inc., for airplanes and spare parts. No details were given and it was not disclosed whether this contract was included in Mr. Stimson's summary.

Announcing the award of contracts totaling $13,056,139 for construction of three National Guard camps in Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana, the War Department said that construction of two additional guard cantonments and five permanent tent camps had been authorized.

The cantonments will be at Indian Town Gap, Pa., and Fort Meade, Md., while the camps will be located at San Luis Obispo and March Field, Calif.; Camp Hulen and Fort Bliss, Tex., and Tullahoma, Tenn. It also was revealed that three posts housing the Fifth, Seventh and Eighth Regular Army divisions have been made permanent posts and designated as "forts" instead of "camps." They are Fort Custer, Mich.; Fort Ord, Calif., and Fort Jackson, S. C.

In another defense development, President Roosevelt signed legislation authorizing three large Navy drydock projects, costing $23,680,000 and capable of handling construction of the biggest battleships. They would be a $10,000,000 graving dock in New York Harbor, a $7,500,000 dock "somewhere in the Caribbean area" and $6,180,000 for putting a dock at South Boston, Mass., into service.

An Ocean Couldn't Keep Them Apart

SHE SAID "YES" BY MAIL—Harmon L. Remmel and his British bride, the former Sheila Ducknall, to whom he proposed in a letter

Arkansas and Sussex have met and conquered.

Perhaps you ran into them yesterday somewhere in West Potomac Park or along the Avenue, a red-haired, typically American looking young man showing his English bride, brunette and attractive, the sights of Washington.

He was Harmon L. Remmel, of Little Rock, Ark., and she was the former Sheila Bucknall of Bexhill-on-the-Sea, Sussex, England. They were married only last Monday in Northern New York, climaxing a romantic courtship that began in the Indian Ocean nearly a year ago and which, since last December, flourished with cablegrams and letters.

The couple, who are spending a few days in Washington before setting out for Arkansas, where he'll resume his college studies, yielded a full confession after being cornered in the Hotel Mayflower lobby.

How their paths first crossed on the decks of a steamer taking them from India to Marseilles (she had gone to the Orient to visit friends while he was indulging in a bit of globe trotting); how they parted sadly in France on December 10, 1939, not knowing whether they would see each other again because of the war; how he proposed by letter and she accepted by return mail; how he burned up the transatlantic cable arranging for her trip to the United States—they told all.

Remmel was at the port to meet his bride-to-be when she disembarked from the Atlantic Clipper two weeks ago. They were married last Monday in Fort Covington, N. Y., at the home of his aunt.

From here they will go to Fayetteville, Ark., where Remmel will reenter the State university's school of business administration to finish the course he interrupted last year to go globe trotting.

Mrs. Remmel left behind in Sussex her mother and father, as well as a brother who is in the military.

"I had just completed arrangements to become an ambulance driver when Harmon sent for me," she said.

Jackson Tells U. S. Mayors of Fight on Spies

Counter-Espionage Proves Effective Weapon, He Says

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 19.—Attorney General Robert H. Jackson said today that "counter-espionage is much more effective from our point of view than a number of arrests" and disclosed that the Government was keeping all Nazi and Communist groups under surveillance.

"That is said to be an infringement on civil liberties, but I don't believe that because we are a tolerant people, we also have to be ignorant," he told convention delegates of the United States Conference of Mayors.

He said his department was not interested in sensationalism or "tips" from excited volunteer vigilantes. The Attorney General said the mayors and community figures of good character were the best sources of information the Department of Justice had in its sabotage prevention work.

Ottawa Mayor Speaks

"You are closer to the people than your Government in Washington can be," he said.

Earlier, a Canadian speaker, Mayor Stanley Lewis of Ottawa, said formation of the recently created Defense Commission "may have consequences far beyond any of which we have dreamed and it may lead to the rescue of democracy."

"If the international situation becomes more grave," he said, "and there is reason to believe that it will, the time may not be far off when there may be valid reasons for even closer cooperation between the United States and Canada."

Howard O. Hunter, acting commissioner of the WPA, predicted the $5,000,000,000 in defense appropriations for fiscal 1941 would increase private employment by between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 persons. More than $500,000,000 had been spent by the WPA in five years on national defense projects, mostly in construction of airports and development of highways, he added.

LaGuardia Stresses Defense

Earlier, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, conference president, expressed belief "we have an 80 to 85 per cent possibility of avoiding war—if we proceed with our national defense program."

"But if we are weak in any point, we will find this country in a difficult situation," he added.

Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland emphasized the need for direct Federal-city relations, because "many national interests are critically affected by what happens in the cities and we well know that many city interests are critically affected by what happens in Washington."

Antiaircraft Light Throws Beam 12 Miles

Powerful Ray Permits Reading of Newspapers At That Distance

San Francisco, Sept. 19 (AP).—The United States Army will have antiaircraft searchlights so powerful that persons 12 miles away can read newspapers in their light.

REED

Philip D. Reed, chairman of the board of General Electric Co., said today that among a dozen other things his company, is manufacturing for national defense are 800,000 candle power searchlights, 5 feet in diameter.

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Pratt and Whitney aircraft division of the United Aircraft Corporation announced today it had awarded a contract for construction of an addition to its factory at East Hartford, Conn. To the Turner Construction Co., New York.

The addition will add more than 400,000 square feet of floor space for manufacture of airplane engines.

Boston, Sept. 19 (AP).—The chairman of the American Legion's national defense committee asserted today that "America thus far has preparedness only on paper."

Although great publicity has been given to preliminary preparations for national defense, but little specific accomplishment can as yet be pointed to," declared Warren H. Atherton, of Stockton, Calif., in his annual report prepared for the legion's twenty-second annual convention opening next week.

Atherton said that while "current plans are a splendid start, we must keep in mind that . . . dollars will not fire bullets, and orders cannot stop bullets."

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 19 (AP).—Defense program appropriations will increase the demand for all kinds of consumer goods, Secretary of Labor Perkins said today.

The defense program will create 4,400,000 man-years of labor, Miss Perkins declared in a prepared address to the Illinois Federation of Labor convention.

Cleveland, Sept. 19 (AP).—The American Federation of Labor is watching draft board policies to "avoid the mistakes of the World War in taking skilled mechanics from their positions," President William Green said today at the convention of the International Association of Machinists.

Toland Sees 'Fifth Column' Peril in NLRB

By the Associated Press

Colorado Springs, Sept. 19.—Declaring "A hint of radicalism permeates" the National Labor Relations Board personnel, Edmund M. Toland, general counsel for a Congressional investigation of the NLRB, said today that any "Fifth Column" search "might very well begin within" the board.

"Because it has been given jurisdiction over disputes between capital and labor," Toland told the metal mining convention of the American Mining Congress, the NLRB "is one of the most vital links in our defense program.

Toland declared the board's "latest act of insolence" was its refusal to abolish its Division of Economic Research, headed by David J. Saposs, when it was "the intent of Congress to abolish the division . . ."

Toland, calling Saposs "Russian-born," said he "has been identified through his life with various radical labor movements," and asserted the board retained him and his major subordinates by "utilizing the perfectly obvious subterfuge of merely changing the name of the division to the Technical Service Division."

He said there was "a close and intimate connection" between Edwin S. Smith, NLRB member, and Harry Bridges, Pacific Coast C. I. O. leader, whose deportation has been urged by Congress.

Toland cited, too, that Smith had served as United States secretary for the League Against War and Fascism. He said Earl Browder, United States Communist chief, described this group, later calling the American League for Peace and Democracy, as a "transmission belt for Communism."

He declared a "large number" of the board's legal staff were members of the NLRB Employes Union, a vertical union affiliated with the American League for Peace and Democracy.

". . . Our defense program cannot be accomplished as long as this Government agency is permitted to champion one element of labor, override the rights of employers and other groups, and foster radicals," Toland concluded.

H. L. Pierce, of Cleveland, vice president of the Hanna Iron Ore Co., told the convention expanded steel output for national defense arms and armament "would hardly cause a ripple" in United States iron ore production.

Pierce said a million tons of ore, representing one month's normal operation for one large Mesaba open pit in Minnesota, would be, "in terms of steel, the equivalent of 10 large battleships, 100 auxiliary vessels, including heavy and light cruisers, destroyers and submarines, with a couple of aircraft carriers for good measure."

Argentina Halts Imports From U. S.

bargaining position for Argentina pending discussions with Pierson, who is expected to arrive from Rio de Janeiro next Monday.

These circles recalled there was a similar tightening of exchange restrictions last year shortly before inauguration of the fruitless negotiations for a trade agreement. Despite this general belief, however, trade statistics indicate Argentina may have a dollar shortage. Since the European war began, the United States has been the only major nation producing unencumbered foreign exchange for Argentina. Great Britain, France and others have restricted their activities.

Through 1939 and the first half of 1940, Argentina had an adverse trade balance of more than $18,000,000 with the United States. In addition, this country needs approximately $26,000,000 annually for its dollar debt service.

Pierson is coming here to discuss with Argentine officials the use to be made of a $20,000,000 loan granted months ago but yet uncompleted. Sources close to the government insist, however, bigger things are in the wind, possibly including an effort on the part of Argentina to obtain credits up to $100,000,000 in North America to tide the nation over its period of desperate economic depression springing from the war.

The press has been hinting at the possibilities of an Argentine-United States-Great Britain deal whereby the British would be allowed to buy great quantities of Argentine products through credits which in turn would be arranged in the United States. One British official, when asked the possibilities of such a scheme said: "Nothing on such a plan has been done here but naturally if Argentina and the United States are willing we will be only too glad."

Officials said today suspension of import permits for United States products was "a routine action when available exchange dropped to a certain level," and not the result of a government decree.

Hopson's Attorney Asks Mental Test

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—Counsel for Howard Hopson, 53, indicted former head of the Associated Gas & Electric System, agreed today to have Hopson undergo mental observation.

Attorney Fred A. Ironside had asked Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe to determine Hopson's mental condition before ordering him to stand trial on charges of using the mails to defraud security holders.

Los Angeles Crowd Greets Willkie

cost and complexity of administering various types of taxes."

Willkie pointed out that it was only after a similar study of money and banking that the Federal Reserve System was evolved.

He said that labor, along with business and Government, must remember "that we in America are young.

"Unlimited capacity for growth lies ahead of us," he added. "We are not old enough to have an indispensable man—or an indispensable law—or an indispensable theory of economics."

Saying that the American system is a dynamic one, the nominee continued:

"We cannot stand still behind the guns of battleships. In order to be strong we must grow.

"Democracy can exist only so long as the people are busy. I therefore propose to put an end to this industrial stagnation. I propose to establish in this country the only kind of life that you and I understand—a life of good, honest work and good, honest reward.

Business Man By Training

"I propose to free America from an administration which has proved itself incompetent to be trusted with the enormous powers that it has acquired."

The nominee said he claimed to understand some of labor's problems because he had been a businessman by training.

"Labor is entitled to the protection of progressive labor legislation," he went on, "such as the Wage and Hours Law and the National Industrial Labor Relations Act."

But he declared that labor laws "must be administered in the interest of the whole Nation."

"Their purpose is to reduce industrial strife, not foment it," he added.

Spectacular Arrival

Willkie's arrival at the Coliseum was staged with Hollywood eclat. It was spectacular, dazzling, colossal.

With a spotlight trained on his green, flag-decked touring car, the Hoosier candidate came out of a tunnel and rode around the cinder track of the big football field as the 65,000 screamed their admiration and joy. The band played "Back Home Again Indiana."

An American Legion drum and bugle corps, in yellow shirts and silver helmets, formed a lane for the smiling candidate.

Mrs. Willkie, wearing a blue, pancake beret and a silver fox fur, stood beside her husband as the spot-lighted automobile circled the stadium.

It all seemed a part of the make-believe world that is nearly Hollywood. Willkie might have been Clark Gable or Spencer Tracy. But then the circling automobile halted. Willkie mounted the speakers platform and became the candidate, striking another blow in his fight for the Presidency.

Crowds in the downtown district as Willkie arrived here rivaled those in the Chicago Loop, and behaved much in the same way. Ticker tape, torn pages from telephone books and confetti showered down upon the fighting Hoosier, who stood in an automobile smiling and waving his arms.

Willkie was greeted at the City Hall by Robert L. Burns, president of the city council, who told him that his arrival was a "proud moment in the city's life."

The G. O. P. nominee made a 12-word reply of appreciation, probably the shortest utterance of his short political career. But he was under the orders of Dr. Francis Barnard, the throat specialist, to save his voice for the later oration at the Coliseum.

Evidence of Roosevelt's Strength

Three placards bobbed above the heads of the crowd gathered around Willkie's touring car at the City Hall. One of them read "Jeffersonian Democrats of California."

Another read, "Things are bad but the third term will wreck the country." The third read, "He planned it this way and don't let him tell you different."

Here, as in Chicago, however, there was plenty of evidence of President Roosevelt's strength, particularly in the industrial sections.

At one point on the 50-mile motor trip from Santa Ana, a young fellow threw a luscious Imperial Valley tomato at the Willkie caravan. It struck the automobile carrying Henry Suydam, of the Newark News, and Richard L. Wilson, of the Des Moines Register. The latter is president of the National Press Club, an office he won without a single tomato incident.

A colored motorist paced the caravan all the way through Los Angeles, with a sign reading, "F. D. R. is my man."

Crowds Line Streets

It was in Los Angeles' colored belt along Central avenue, however, that Willkie got his most vociferous reception. Crowds lined the street waving flags and yelling, "We want Willkie!" Some of the most original store signs yet seen on this Western swing were spotted in this district. One of them said: "Bandit Bill's Market—He murders prices."

Leaving Santa Ana, where the campaign train was put on a siding for the night, Willkie started the long motor journey to Los Angeles at 9 a. m.

Thirty-seven cars were in the caravan. The nominee ran into the first big crowd at Dr. Francis Townsend's old home of Long Beach, popularly known out here as the capital of Iowa because of its 40,000 retired farmers from the Tall Corn State.

The streets of the garish town along the Pacific were jammed. Apparently the schools had been let out for there were many children, including quite a few little almond-eyed Japanese waving American flags. The women were virtually all attired in slacks.

The cheers, the strains of "God Bless America," and the general enthusiasm were all reminiscent of Philadelphia at the time Willkie was nominated back in June.

"Hey, you Hoosier," somebody yelled at Willkie, and the candidate grinned and waved.

It was while the caravan was rolling through Inglewood that the aforementioned tomato came hurtling through the air, with a "Hurrah for Roosevelt" behind it.

Tours Plane Plants

Willkie stopped on the Imperial highway to visit the North American Aircraft plant at El Segundo. Here he was scheduled to christen the first plane delivered under the defense program, the AT-6-A, advanced trainer.

The reporters and photographers were crowding into the plant to witness the ceremony when word came that it had been called off. There was much mystery about it. There were reports that the War Department had approved the idea, and then in the last few days had vetoed it. One reason given here was that the plane itself was not ready. Willkie then climbed into the cockpit of a basic trainer and looked over scores of other training planes in process of construction.

At the Douglas Aircraft Co. plant, he was met by Donald Douglas, president, who escorted him through the buildings. He exhibited considerable interest at the two plants.

Approval Expected For 3 P. M. Closing Of Tax Office

The Commissioners are expected today to approve a recommendation to close the office of collector of taxes at 3 p. m. to enable the cashiers to tally balances for submission to the United States Treasury.

Heretofore the cashiers have closed their books at 2 p. m., worked out their daily balances and then received more tax money, which was transferred to the following day's accounts. District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan pointed out the present procedure to Commissioner Hazen in a letter and recommended the change. Hazen said he would indorse it.

Commissioner Hazen also said he would recommend that cashiers in the office of the director of vehicles and traffic also be required to balance their cash receipts at the close of each day's business. It is expected the new rules will go into effect October 16.

Cosmopolitan Club Luncheon Honors Departing Dr. Hart

It is sometimes difficult for people to think of clergymen as human beings, said the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, as he paid tribute yesterday to Dr. Oliver J. Hart, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, who "sold himself to his parish as a man."

The occasion was a testimonial luncheon at the Carlton for Dr Hart, given by the Cosmopolitan Club, which he had served as chaplain since December, 1937. Dr. Hart will take up the pastorate at Trinity Church in Boston on October 1.

Bishop Freeman praised the departing clergyman for his lofty motives, high ideals and devotion to duty and said he was taking over the pastorate of the most historic Episcopal church in America.

John A. Reilly, president of the Second National Bank, presented a specially prepared and illuminated resolution to Dr. Hart expressing the club's appreciation of his inspiring service as chaplain.

Nazis Threaten New Terrors For Britain

But Berlin Press Hints War May Go On Through Winter

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Sept. 19.—The journalistic voice of official Germany threatened England and her civilians today with a whole catalogue of terror and declared that, in a Rome conference, the Axis was assembling its full power "for the last round battle against Britain."

The press, in which there appeared hints that the war might go on through the winter, opened up in angry chorus against British bombing attacks in Germany, and the Nazi high command officially accused British pilots of having killed nine children and wounded 12 in raids on plainly marked hospitals in Prussia.

Der Angriff, the organ of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, demanded retaliation a thousand-fold; Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung thundered: "The scoring of accounts will be terrible."

No Mercy for Civilians

"Hereafter," declared the newspaper Nachtausgabe, "not the slightest consideration need be taken" for British civilians.

Authorized German spokesmen said that "tangible acts" would follow the Rome discussions between German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Premier Mussolini.

These "acts," it was indicated in various quarters, would be against "vulnerable" points in the British Empire; the notion generally conveyed was that the war was going to open up in scope as well as in time.

[In Rome, there were indications that pro-Axis Spain might be brought into an active partnership; perhaps to the extent of permitting a German-Italian legion to cross her territory against Gibraltar, a British rampart.]

To Unify Forces

Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering's National Zeitung summed it up this way:

"Whoever contemplates the situation sees clearly before his eyes the next mission of the Allies (Axis). Reduced to a short formula, it is the unification of all the powers of Italy and Germany for the last round battle against Britain which now is in a decisive stage."

The high command, indicating that its air force was still following an old pattern, reported successful attacks on the Tilbury docks, British shipyards at Chatham, oil tanks at the London Victoria docks, and the firing of several ships, Liverpool port; the Newcastle docks and a series of other objectives of military importance.

Smithsonian Receives Rare Camera

CAMERA WAS RELIC AT VIRGINIA COLLEGE—Dr. Howard C. Cobbs (left), pastor of the Forest Hill Presbyterian Church, Richmond, yesterday presented to Dr. Alexander Wetmore (right), assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, a camera built more than 100 years ago by Prof. John William Draper while on the faculty at Hampden-Sydney College, Va. Dr. Draper, it is said, used the camera and telescope in the foreground to make the first pictures of the moon. C. W. conferred with him.

United States trends since the trade of 50 American destroyers for British Western Hemisphere bases also were considered by observers as involved in the talks.

Some foreign observers thought the Axis likewise might be considering occupation of French North African territories as well as all France.

Balkan Discussion Indicated

Gayda indicated southeastern Europe was on the agenda when he said "not all pending problems in southeastern Europe can be considered settled," and added that the conference would be "busy with clarifications."

Russia has a Slavic affinity with Yugoslavia, Italy's neighbor, and pro-British Turkey straddles the Dardanelles gateway to Russia's Black Sea.

Diplomatic and military experts have expressed the belief an Italian defeat of Britain in Egypt would place both Turkey and Greece in difficulties, possibly depriving them of Britain's naval aid and forcing them into the Axis orbit.

Italy already has proclaimed territorial claims on Greece.

Although Ribbentrop was expected to leave tomorrow night for Berlin after further conversations, those close to his entourage said he might remain here until Saturday.

Spanish Press Eases Attacks

By John P. McKnight
Associated Press Staff Writer

Madrid, Sept. 19 (AP).—Many Spaniards expressed the belief tonight that events on the Spanish Peninsula probably would depend on Axis progress against Britain and Egypt, despite predictions abroad that active Spanish cooperation with Italy and Germany may be imminent.

The British, well-informed sources said, are not wholly dissatisfied with the present position of Spain.

Press attacks on Britain have subsided and the question of "Gibraltar for Spaniards" has not been agitated recently.

Perhaps significant is a recent speech by Ramon Serrano Suner, the key minister who now is in Berlin. He said Spain already had "done her share" by fighting her civil war, which nationalists have termed "antiBolshevist."

Spaniard's believe Serrano Suner's trip to Berlin, followed by German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop's visit to Rome, have made the British think hard; yet the Serrano Suner trip is not generally regarded as likely to have a major influence upon Spain's immediate future.

Asphalt Worker, Struck by Auto, Dies of Injuries

Howard King, colored, 27, of Arlington, died at Emergency Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered when he was knocked down by an automobile at Lee boulevard and Glebe road.

An asphalt worker, King was struck as he crossed the highway. He suffered a skull fracture, multiple fractures to both legs and internal injuries. The police listed the driver as Medford Pence, 24, of 622 L street southwest, and released him on $500 bond for a police court hearing.

Isaiah Hood, colored, 28, of 906 O street northwest, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when the truck he was driving overturned and exploded at Harewood road and Taylor street northeast. He was treated for cuts and bruises by priests at the Capuchin College nearby.

Police said the truck apparently became top heavy while making a curve and turned over on its side. The gasoline tank exploded.

Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze but not before considerable damage had been done the truck. The truck's load of fruit was strewn for almost 100 feet.

Contracts Let For Defense Total 6 Billion

Donald M. Nelson, coordinator of defense purchases, reported last night that the Defense Commission had cleared contracts totaling over $6,000,000,000.

"This amount exceeds by 300 per cent," he said, "contract awards for any entire year of peacetime military procurement." Such divergent products as shoes, ships and machinery for manufacturing tanks were represented in the total.

Outlining in a radio address (C. B. S.) some of the problems involved, Nelson said the broadest was fitting military defense requirements to productive capacity with a minimum of interference with normal business.

To that end, he said, the Government was endeavoring to utilize off-season production.

"We have found," he explained, "in several instances—blankets, for example—that it has been possible to dovetail the military program into production for civilian requirements by utilizing plant facilities that were idle or nearly so because of seasonal demands for the product.

"In addition, placing orders for military requirements in slack times reduces the overhead of the plant by employing its facilities at a higher level of capacity. This, in turn, results in lower prices both for civilian consumers and the Government."

Nelson said that the Government also was making its specifications conform as nearly as possible to commercial standards so that existing productive machinery could be used.

230 Aliens Lose Jobs in Canal Zone Today

Balboa, Canal Zone, Sept. 19 (AP).—The United States Army announced tonight that 230 European-born aliens employed in the Canal Zone will be discharged tomorrow.

The order climaxed weeks of exhaustive investigation.

On Monday, a group of 134 aliens found to be residing illegally in the Canal Zone were sent to Ellis Island, in New York Harbor, aboard an Army transport.

A number of the 230 have permanent or temporary Panama visas, but some of these are expected to be cancelled by Panama authorities. What will happen to them is nebulous, since at least some probably are unable to return to their homelands. Most of them are said to be Germans, Czechs or Jugoslavs.

U. S. Military Observers See Hope for British

Optimism Revealed By Stimson; Axis Oil Problem Held Acute

By Lelend C. Speers.
Copyright by New York Times

Confidential reports from American military observers as to England's chances of winning the battle of Great Britain "are much more optimistic today than was the case six weeks ago," Secretary of War Stimson said yesterday in answer to a question. At the same time it was made known that reports from American naval observers are equally optimistic.

Secretary Stimson declined to go into details, explaining that the reports to the War Department agree substantially with those being sent to the United States by American newspaper correspondents in England.

The American observers—naval and military—are a carefully selected group of the best qualified officers in the service. Rear Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley, former assistant chief of naval operations, heads the naval contingent while the Army group is headed by Maj. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commanding officer of the general headquarters force of the Army Air Corps.

The oil situation for the Axis powers is becoming a serious problem and may be one of the reasons for the conferences between Von Ribbentrop and Mussolini, it was reported. Rumanian production is said to be far below normal, and in the opinion of some naval officers it is doubtful if Germany is getting any substantial amount of oil from Russia.

Secretary Stimson disclosed the optimistic nature of the reports from Britain at his first press conference since he became Secretary of War. Discussing the preparedness situation in the United States, he emphasized the fact that in the existing emergency the United States faces a situation far different and more serious than confronted the country in 1917.

"In 1917," he said, "there existed a stable battle line in France and the British control of the seas was undisputed. As a result we were able to prepare comparatively at leisure. Today the situation is entirely changed. The defense line in France no longer exists and British sea power is threatened. This means that it is now necessary for the United States to maintain its outer line of defense—a line we have acquired from the British and which stretches from Newfoundland to British Guiana in South America.

"Rapid progress is being made in surveying the newly acquired bases, and in the very near future we expect to know exactly what is needed at each of the bases in the form of fortifications or installations.

"At the same time steps have already been taken diplomatically to insure the adequate defense of the southern anchor of the defense line in South America, primarily to provide an adequate defense of the Panama Canal."

King's Brother, Commoner One in Raids

Bombs Spare None, Alight in Fine Courts And in Back Streets

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 19.—King's brother and Chelsea pensioner felt the sickening concussion of German bombs today and London, a bruised and weary giant of a city, pulled itself from the acrid smoke of the fiercest all-night attack of the war.

Through firelit streets, hundreds upon hundreds trudged in the early morning from one deep shelter, smothered by the ruins of a big building, to others not so deep.

In Chelsea, the pleasant Bohemian section where James McNeill Whistler lived, the people waved their hats and cheered from the ruins of their homes for King George and Queen Elizabeth to hear.

The debris slid and sifted in wide streets and dim courts that Dickens wrote about in "Bleak House." But King's counselor in wig and solicitor's "clark" in bowler went back to work.

Bank "Somewhat Upset"

'Way down below Threadneedle street, white-whiskered Montague Norman and the directors of the Bank of England met in the vaults.

The bank, commented Norman, has been "somewhat upset," and he deplored the necessity for gathering "in the dreary catacomb."

Then, the directors declared a 6 per cent dividend.

In southwest London, a time-bomb jarred the motor car of the Duke of Kent, youngest brother of the Sovereign. Rubble showered the machine. The duke got out, unhurt, and men and women slapped him on the back.

"It's good to see you here," they cried.

County Hall Hit

Incendiary bombs showered down on the Chelsea Royal Hospital, established in 1682 by Charles II. Awakened from their sleep, the 550 old soldiers there put out the fires.

Just across Westminster Bridge from the Houses of Parliament, the London County Hall reeled under the impact of a huge bomb. Two waitresses were killed; 15 other persons were injured.

Other bombs hit the courtyard of the British Museum, and the premises of the Wallace collection were damaged in the West End. But the treasures that these buildings normally hold had been taken away long since, or stored deep underground.

Worst at Oxford Circus

In the Inner Temple, ancient Inn of Court, between the Strand and the Victoria Embankment, a bomb dug a big hole by the side of the lofty Library Clock Tower. Law books in a collection of some 70,000 were flung about floors. Across the Strand, a turret of the public record in Chancery Lane was smashed.

Oxford Circus got one of the worst bombings. Peter Robinson's department store was wrecked. Both Oxford street and Regent street were closed.

One West End hotel got the full force of a great bomb which plunged through the roof, but the only missing guests were an army officer and his wife whose room was a smear of debris.

Yet it was the homes and the apartments of the people that got the worst of all "these wanton attacks," the officials said.

"Provisionally," they estimated 90 dead and 350 wounded over last night.

Nazis Show Press Around

Bethel, Germany, Sept. 19 (AP).—German officers, lighting the way with flashlights, led foreign newspapermen through a hospital morgue and a cemetery tonight.

In the hospital were ten injured children; in the morgue were the mangled bodies of eight girls—victims, said the Germans, of last night's bombing of this area by a lone British flier.

In the cemetery, where one bomb was said to have fallen, were bits of caskets and tombstones.

Police here said that the British plane first dropped flares, making the entire area "light enough to see four big Red Crosses around the grounds." Then, they added, the pilot returned, dropping eight bombs.

Two nurses were declared to have been killed in a house about 50 yards from where one bomb exploded. The German officers said that the nearest military objective was 5 miles distant.

British Fleet Shells Italians in Egypt

menacing Matruh, 150 miles inside Egypt.

Matruh, 78 miles east of Sidi Barrani, is the next objective along an asphalt coastal road leading to the great British naval base at Alexandria, and the vital empire lifeline link, the Suez Canal.

At Cairo, Egypt's premier, Hassan Sabry Pasha, also told of the fleet and R. A. F. action after an all-night cabinet meeting weighing nonbelligerent Egypt's destiny in the conflict.

[The Italian high command in Rome said one 10,000-ton British cruiser participating in the flanking attacks was "seriously" damaged, and that Fascist bombs dispersed the other naval units.

[Marshal Graziani, Italian desert leader, reported also that his "tireless" airmen bombed and machine-gunned British land troops fleeing toward Matruh, and attacked fortifications surrounding that next objective. Italy is using 14 Libyan divisions—about 170,000 men—in addition to Italian troops in the offensive. The Libyans marched a total of 150 miles in eight days on a quart of water per man, the command said.]

The British emphasized that British forces had intentionally abandoned the area now held by the Italians, leaving only small harassing forces which they said inflicted heavy casualties.

Egyptian officials said they did not believe the Italian occupation of the western desert strip constituted a real menace to the Nile Valley, in which 98 per cent of Egypt's population lives.

The press rejected Italian assurances of friendship for Egypt.

Since the start of the Italian advance the radio station at Bari, Italy, nightly has assured Egyptians Italy intends to "deliver" them from British domination.

But today the newspaper Journal de Egypt called these Italian assertions "perfidious," and the press generally asked just what Italy had done to liberate Libya.

Jones Takes Oath As New Secretary Of Commerce

Jesse H. Jones became Secretary of Commerce yesterday and immediately announced that he intended to coordinate all the facilities of the department and of the Federal lending agencies to help business meet the demands of national defense.

Jones, who retains his post as Federal lending administrator, was sworn in as Secretary of Commerce by Supreme Court Justice Stanley Reed. The oath was administered at the White House in the presence of President Roosevelt and other high officials.

The new job meant an increase in his salary from $12,000 to $15,000 a year and the prestige of a Cabinet post, but Jones said he was not "excited."

He commented that his work had been "as important as most" in the eight years during which he disbursed about $10,000,000,000 through the lending agencies.

Jones succeeds Harry L. Hopkins, who resigned because of prolonged ill health.

New Demands Peril Parley On Indo-China

Breakdown Feared In Franco-Japanese Negotiations

By C. Yates Daniel
Associated Press Staff Writer

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Sept. 19.—New and unexplained demands threatened tonight to upset the negotiations between the government of French Indo-China and the Japanese, who have sought the right to move troops and supplies through the colony to facilitate their war against China.

The French government issued a statement saying:

"Negotiations between the French authorities and the Japanese mission have reached a delicate state, the Japanese having presented new demands which do not seem compatible with instructions from the French government and which deviate from previous agreements, but the negotiations are continuing."

The statement offered no explanation of the new demands, but informed sources declared the Japanese suddenly had shifted the emphasis in the negotiations from their desire to move troops and supplies through the colony to a request for bases which could have little connection with the Japanese army's China campaign.

[The Associated Press reported from Hongkong that official foreign quarters there said early today they had received information that Japan had given French Indo-China until Sunday to comply with new Japanese demands but that the French were unyielding.

[Upon receipt of the 72-hour ultimatum, the French virtually told the Japanese to "go ahead," these quarters said.]

Meanwhile, Japanese nationals from all points in northern Indo-China gathered at Hanoi and Haiphong awaiting a Japanese order to leave the colony.

Earlier in the day Japan announced her determination to withdraw civilian nationals and consular representatives from the colony to lessen the danger of "unfortunate incidents" when her troops march in to take up "limited military facilities."

However, a spokesman said tonight it still was possible that an eleventh hour turn in the negotiations might delay the departure of Maj. Gen. Issaku Nishihara, head of the Japanese delegation.

Japan's promised foothold in Indo-China is generally foreseen as a base for a "back door" attack on the forces of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

[In Vichy today, French Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin said France had been left "all alone" in the Far East, and hence should not be judged too harshly for yielding to Japanese demands.]

Maj. Gen. Issaku Nishihara heads a delegation seeking a detailed plan for executing the Vichy government's grant of limited military facilities.

Nishihara demands right of way for 12,000 Japanese soldiers and a naval base at Haiphong.

Mickey Rooney Is Here Again

His managers say he wants to be treated like a human being, like the young man of 19 he is. They will not permit him to be photographed with a girl, or a horde of girls, because, first, Mickey is no female chaser and in such situation would be out of character, and second, Mickey likes men first of all and wants to lead a man's life with them.

They do not argue that a horde of girls are not nice, or that Mickey does not like girls, or that a normal 19-year-old boy doesn't like a horde of girls. It's regarded as better that Mickey mix with men, trim them at golf, of ping-pong, or tennis, or checkers, or take a trimming if he meets a better man.

Another thing. Mickey does not go around spouting off on politics, or giving his opinions on the European war and what this country ought to be doing about the South American cartel plan. He wears a glittery American flag in his coat lapel and that gives his views. It was said that he knows he is 19 years old.

His managers have attributed his success pretty much to a sense of rhythm. The rhythm, they said, is demonstrated in the shadings of his acting, in his sense of knowing just how far to carry his parts. The same balance, they think, makes him a good golfer, a good trap dummer and a good ping-pong player.

It is the same thing that makes him know just how wide-eyed to get over all the girls, individually and in hordes.

He was swamped when alighting from the train here yesterday and spent most of his off time in the theater, playing ping-pong and checkers and talking to the men backstage like any 19-year-old would do.

British Plane Repairs in Week Exceed Combined Combat and Accident Toll

London, Sept. 19 (AP).—Britain acquired more fighting and bombing planes last week than she lost in battles and accidents in that period, Lord Beverbrook, minister of aircraft production, said today.

In a message to the ministry's repair organizations scattered throughout the country, Beaverbrook said:

"You are working magnificently. Your night and day shifts, your indifference to air raids, your maintenance of output in the face of danger, your dwindling record of 'time out' in shelters—all this calls for the highest praise."

Vichy, Sept. 19.—After a "temporary interruption" which had been prolonged nearly two months, postal communications were resumed today between the occupied and unoccupied zones of France, but with drastic restrictions. Only postcards will be permitted and these, moreover, must be of a uniform type, with printed indications such as "I am in good health," children all right," and the like. No manuscript additions will be authorized. As small as this concession is on the part of the "occupying authority," it will give a measure of satisfaction to thousands of those separated from their kin.

Commercial correspondence, it is understood, will be limited to 100 letters daily and business firms are advised to limit their mail to urgent matters.

London, Sept. 19 (AP).—The French national committee under Gen. Charles de Gaulle announced tonight that Brig. Gen. Eon, former commander of the First Regiment of Zouaves at Casablanca, French Morocco, had arrived in England and joined the "free" French forces.

Bucharest, Rumania (Friday), Sept. 20 (AP).—At least 15 per cent of the Rumanian oil wells which have been supplying German planes with fuel for the Battle of Britain soon will be capped, oil men said tonight, because of the impossibility of transporting the full output to the Reich.

Official figures disclosed that Germany, so far this year, has imported less than 85,000 tons of oil monthly instead of the 130,000 which Rumania had agreed to let her have.

London, Sept. 19.—It was charged in the House of Commons today that copper, one of the vital metals required for Britain's war effort, is being supplied by Canada to Japan. The mine mentioned by Wilfred Roberts, Liberal, who sought information on its position, was the Granby copper mine at Princeton, British Columbia.

Roberts asked the government whether this company last June renewed a contract, with the approval of the Canadian government, "Whereby the Mitsui Co., Ltd., of Japan, agreed to purchase all the copper this mine can produce in the next triennium." Roberts also asked whether the British government was consulted regarding this contract.

Geoffrey Shakespeare, undersecretary for dominions, replied, "No part of the United Kingdom's copper supplies are drawn from this mine and I have no information regarding the arrangements for the disposal of its output. The mine is owned, I understand, by United States interests."

Cantrel Heads Bethesda Club For Roosevelt

Joseph A. Cantrel, chairman of the Maryland Veterans Commission and a former member of the State Legislature, last night was elected president of a Roosevelt-Radcliffe-Byron Club organized at Bethesda. Other officers are Mrs. E. A. Merritt, vice president; Ralph Chase, secretary, and Mrs. Malcolm Varnell, treasurer. Chosen to the board of directors were Jackson W. Eaton, Jesse Nicholson and Hamilton Wilson.

The Bethesda group will organize a similar club in the Cabin John-Glen Echo area tonight.

Three Great NEW LINCOLNS for 1941

WITH THE THRILLING NEW GLIDER RIDE

IF YOU want to know what tomorrow's cars look like—see the three great 1941 Lincolns—Lincoln-Zephyr, Lincoln Continental and Lincoln Custom—new and future cars in all their eye-catching and heart-winning beauty of line and action.

From their sleek hoods to the graceful swing of spacious rear decks—they're built to make driving a glorious adventure. Doors open at the touch of a button. Interior fittings and appointments are beautifully fashioned.

And there's a new thrill awaiting you—an entirely different ride than you have ever experienced. The new Lincolns are built for fairly gliding over the roughest roads! Get behind the wheel and enjoy deep, restful luxury. Relax in the lavish width and depth of the back seat, chair-high and swung forward of the rear axle for supreme comfort . . . and in the magnificent, road-hugging, low-gravity balance of the car, cushioned on long, slow-motion Lincoln cradle springs! You'll enjoy a ride as thrilling as a glider flight—yet feel as safe as in your favorite armchair.

Created by Lincoln engineers and built to watch-like nicety in the renowned Lincoln precision plant—different in motor, different in basic design, different in construction—Lincolns are becoming known everywhere for their astonishing economy.

Why not take a "glider" ride . . . some day soon . . . in one of the new 1941 Lincolns? Feel the spirited power of twelve thrifty cylinders . . . and know the exciting magic of this new type of car.

House Leadership Showdown Sought

McCormack Backers Claim Enough Votes To Elect Their Man

An immediate Democratic showdown on the House majority leadership was demanded last night by backers of Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, who claim votes "in hand" to elect their man.

But a petition move to force a caucus failed yesterday to reach the needed 50 signatures. Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, who circulated the petition, obtained 38 names and said a dozen more will sign up before the week is out.

McCormack, who is chairman of the Democratic caucus, will not call House Democrats into session until the petition is signed. He is expected to set the time on Monday, and House Democrats are awaiting a caucus call by Wednesday night at latest.

Fear Blow at Harmony

Immediate election of McCormack or any other permanent leader until next session is opposed by an influential group of Democratic "elder statesmen," who say a Democratic fight for leader on the eve of elections will mar party harmony, and leave House Democrats with "a surplus officer" on hand if Republicans organize the House in January.

Pending the caucus call, Representative Lindsay C. Warren, of North Carolina, who soon will retire permanently from the House to become Comptroller General, has been named by Speaker Rayburn to temporarily take over the leadership duties. McCormack forces are opposing a move to elect Warren leader for the remainder of the session.

Also running for the important House post are Representative Boland, of Pennsylvania, Majority whip, who yesterday had Senator Guffey working for him; Representative Woodrum, of Virginia, a ranking Appropriations committeeman, and Representative Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, like McCormack, a member of the Ways and Means Committee.

McCormack Favored

McCormack has scattered backing from Southern and Western States in addition to his native New England, and appeared in the favored position to win if the election is not postponed.

Two influential Georgians are supporting him — Representative Ramspeck, secretary of the Democratic caucus, and Representative Cox, a dominant figure on the House Rules Committee.

Ramspeck said he thought it would be a sign of "weakness" and open to criticism in the coming campaign if House Democrats fail to choose a permanent leader at once.

Army Plans Huge Barracks At Fort Meade

Plans to construct a huge cantonment at Fort George G. Meade, Md., for training a National Guard division and thousands of drafted men were announced yesterday by the War Department.

Approximately 700 barracks and other buildings will be erected at a cost probably in excess of $6,000,000, it is estimated. his will provide quarters for 19,000 men, including one guard division and a tank battalion at the nearby post, according to the announcement. Official figures on the number and cost of the buildings will be announced later.

The cantonment is expected to house the Twenty-ninth Division, composed of Guardsmen from the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia, when ordered into active service, probably in January.

Officials also said that construction had been started on a 1,500-man "reception center" at Fort Meade, for the men to be drafted from this region. Conscripts will spend about a week being equipped and readied for their year of Army service. Many of the local draftees would then be transferred to the Twenty-ninth Division elsewhere on the Meade Reservation, under present plans, with the remainder being sent to other posts.

Forty buildings of various types, including barracks, mess halls and administrative offices are now going forward to house the reception center under a $346,963 contract let to the Joseph Light Co., of Washington. The buildings, under the contract, are to be ready for housing the conscripts by December 1.

Tentative plans for the National Guard and tank battalion cantonment call for the construction of about 300 barrack buildings housing 65 men each. They will be two-story structures similar to those put up during the World War.

Northeast Businessmen Get Down to Business

SEASON'S FIRST MEETING—Starting their fall and winter season, members of the Northeast Business Men's Association yesterday held their first meeting since summer. Byrnes to Broadcast Defense of Third Term limitation of White House tenure today, bringing to four the number of former Democratic committee chiefs reportedly opposed to a third term for anyone.

The President, meanwhile, prepared to speak on an undisclosed subject at the University of Pennsylvania today, as two of his Cabinet officials replied to other onslaughts by the barnstorming Willkie:

Secretary of State Hull released figures designed to answer Willkie's demand that the American Navy buy American beef instead of Argentine beef as one way to help domestic economy. Hull said figures showing increases in dairy industry income and in cattle prices during the Roosevelt Administration spoke for themselves.

Secretary of Interior Ickes replied to Willkie charges that Roosevelt was a "godfather" of the Munich Pact by echoing the charge of Democratic Vice Presidential Nominee Wallace that American elements which believe in appeasing the totalitarian powers also favor election of the Republican nominee.

Byrnes also tonight was expected to reply in passing to Republican charges of Roosevelt involvement in the Munich "appeasement."

Davis, 67-year-old attorney who was nominated by the Democrats to run against Calvin Coolidge, told the Senate subcommittee he could not recall any case where a republic had survived "except in name" after the coming of a permanent chief executive.

Trembles for Country

"With the two-term tradition broken down, and no law to take its place, we have every reason to dread a future occupancy of the White House limited only by the ambition or the life of the tenant."

He said he refused to believe "that in this land of general enlightenment, any man in any post is ever indispensable."

"I would tremble for my country if such a thing ever came to pass," said the former party leader, who long since broke with the President. "And I shall tremble quite as much if such an idea can find lodgment in the minds of the American people . . .

"We have become sterile indeed if we cannot produce at any and all times the men we need to fill our public offices; so sterile indeed that we would then no longer deserve the liberty we would not longer have the will to protect."

Indorsing the proposal by Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, to limit the Presidential term of office to six years, he said the Constitutional framers would have limited the term "if the great figure of Washington had not dominated the scene."

"It is the nature of the human animal, most human animals, to love place and prominence, adulation and power," he said. "Some, of course, care for all this more than others. Some love it so much that the power they have is never gladly or voluntarily surrendered."

Fears Mexicanized U. S.

Citing the case of Porfirio Diaz, who for 26 years was the dictator of Mexico, Davis said: "I do not want to see our form of government Mexicanized."

The Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, former Washington pastor new presiding at the St. Nicholas Collegiate Church in New York, also urged a Presidential term limitation before the subcommittee. Dr. Sizoo said that continuation of one person as President "for two or three or four terms, no matter how effective and worthy that person may be, is bound in the long run to affect and alter our political way of life."

Sizoo said it is "not good for the country" to ask one man to assume such responsibilities.

"It leads straight into a benevolent patriarchy and that into dictatorship."

Secretary Hull, in rebuttal of Republican charges on Argentine beef importations, cited comparative figures on dairy income and cattle prices. After falling from $1,844,000,000 in 1929 to $991,000,000 in 1932, Hull said income of the dairy industry reached $1,396,000,000 in 1938 and $1,355,000,000 in 1939. He said cattle prices were $4.31 per hundred pounds on September 15, 1932, and averaged $4.25 for that year. They rose, he said, to $7.07 on September 15, 1939, and averaged $7.03 for 1939.

Ickes at his press conference accused Willkie of using "sugar thumb" tactics in his campaign to "appease" the voters by being "for anything anyone asks him to be for." Ickes called Willkie "the great utilitarian" and joined Wallace in saying, "I think it is a true and indisputable fact that the appeasers are all supporting Mr. Willkie."

Armed Revolt Breaks Out in Mexican Village

Chihuahua City, Mexico, Sept. 19 (AP).—An official bulletin from the headquarters of Gen. Antonio Guerrero, commander of the fifth military zone, reported tonight that a band of 150 men, headed by Jose Guerrero, had risen in arms against the government in the small village of Santa Maria Decuevas, about 100 miles northwest of this city near the Sonora border.

The political affiliation, if any, of the band led by Guerrero, no relative of Gen. Guerrero, was unknown.

Gen. Jose Ruiz, the bulletin said, was dispatched immediately at the head of a detachment of troops in pursuit of the rebels and succeeded in capturing two prisoners.

Why The Delay?

Ten days have elapsed since the House passed the District reorganization bill, and it is almost a week since the Senate District Committee referred the legislation to a subcommittee with instructions to hold hearings. The Commissioners met with their "kitchen cabinet" on Monday and agreed on their testimony. And there the matter has rested.

The delay would not have been serious or unusual except for the fact that Congress is preparing to adjourn within another week or ten days. As Senator McCarran has been taking treatment at Naval Hospital, his inability to hold hearings is understandable. But that does not excuse Chairman King and the Senate District Committee from responsibility for holding up the legislation.

Senator McCarran should relinquish the chairmanship to another member of the subcommittee if he is unable to proceed at once with the hearings. A few more days of delay will preclude all possibility of enacting this important local bill at the present session.

Objections by Senator McCarran that legislation giving Washingtonians self-government should precede a reorganization of the local regime suggest that he has given the problem little thought. The House has definitely blocked both national representation and local suffrage measures for this session. Members of the Senate District Committee, including Senator McCarran, have made no move to sponsor "home-rule" bills in the past.

For the last two years the reorganization and suffrage bills have been played against each other in Congress to the detriment of both. Now, when the former is within sight of enactment, friends of the District should not permit it to be sidetracked by any such obstructive tactics. Modernization of the city's obsolete government is essential whether or not suffrage is attained.

Tops

Anything, of course, can happen in these days of world revolutions and imperial ash heaps. But, unless the multiplication tables and indeed the whole Pythagorean theory of numbers are overturned between now and October 1, Mr. McKechnie's Cincinnati Reds will again represent the National League in the World's Series. The last possibility that the Brooklyn Dodgers could overtake them was eliminated Wednesday when the Reds won that 13-inning game at Philadelphia.

But what American League club will have it out with the Reds is still anybody's guess. A week ago a Nation-wide poll of astrologers, soothsayers, tea-leaf translators and ESP boys strongly indicated that it would be no others than our old friends the New York Yankees. The Yankees were expected to come from behind with a blizzard of base hits that would make their blitzkriegs of yesteryear seem like the languid fluttering of rose petals.

But possibly the stars crossed themselves up, or some old fragments of lettuce got into the tea by mistake, or the diviners used the wrong sticks. The Yanks, to be sure, are not quite out of it yet; neither, for that matter, are the wistful White Sox of Mr. Jimmy Dykes. But the heavy money is now on either the Detroit Tigers or the Cleveland Indians, and the probability is that this year's World Series will be a strictly Midwestern, perhaps strictly Ohio, affair.

There is, of course, no disguising the fact that a pennant for the Cleveland club would be a staggering blow to the capitalist system and the whole existing order. For, ironically, the Cleveland team and not the Cincinnati club are the real Reds of big league baseball. Some months ago the Cleveland players rose in rebellion against their appointed leader, Mr. Vitt, and proceeded to run everything through a sort of Soviet headed, it is said, by one Comrade Trosky.

Mr. Vitt, to be sure, is still called manager but in about the same sense that Victor Emmanuel III is called commander in chief of the Italian armies. The Daily Worker has hailed this advent of syndicalism in baseball as a great triumph for what it pleases to call "industrial democracy."

The Cincinnati club, however, is conducted on precisely opposite principles. Here we find a benevolent paternalism. To his doting players Mr. McKechnie represents the all-wise, the all-protecting Father Image. None of them would so much as dream of taking a swipe at a ball without first finding out whether the boss favored the hit or the take.

Surely a world's series between these two clubs would have the profoundest sociopolitical implications. It would be almost like watching a finish fight, with no punches barred, between Plato and John Dewey.

Gains And Losses

Republicans were rejoicing yesterday over the indorsement given Wendell Willkie by the New York Times and the encouraging results of the Wisconsin primaries. Today they are confronted by the latest Gallup Poll indicating that Mr. Willkie's popularity with voters has undergone a drastic shrinkage during the last four weeks.

While the Times has often been critical of the New Deal, it supported Franklin D. Roosevelt for the Presidency in both 1932 and 1936. It belongs to the general category of "independent Democratic" newspapers. For that reason, in addition to its widespread influence in the country, the New York Times' indorsement of Mr. Willkie gives the Republican candidate a significant boost.

In the Wisconsin gubernatorial primaries the G. O. P. candidates won more votes than the Democratic and Progressive candidates combined. Moreover, the Democrats nominated James E. Finnegan, antithird-termer, as their candidate for United States Senator. These results certainly suggest that Wisconsin will go Republican in November. But the Gallup Poll gives Mr. Roosevelt a slight margin over Mr. Willkie in that State.

A month ago the American Institute of Public Opinion showed Mr. Willkie leading in 20 States with 284 electoral votes. Today it indicates that he is leading in only 10 States with 78 votes in the electoral college. The President is now out in front with 453 electoral votes in 38 States.

Dr. Gallup voices a proper word of caution against drawing any final conclusions from this poll. In such large States as New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois the margin favorable to President Roosevelt is small. "Some margin of error," Dr. Gallup says, "is involved in every sampling operation." Far more important is the fact that 11 per cent of the voters polled are still undecided which candidate will be designated on their ballots.

Mr. Willkie's popularity reached a peak just after his whirlwind campaign that won the Republican nomination. In much of the intervening period he has been comparatively inactive. The present poll was taken about the time he launched his vigorous campaign in the West.

It is also worthy of note that the swing toward Mr. Roosevelt has coincided with the Battle of Britain and the extensive defense measures adopted by the United States. There is no question that the crisis abroad tends to overshadow the domestic issue on which Mr. Willkie's campaign has necessarily been based. The very fact that Mr. Roosevelt is President while the Government is stiffening its defense policies gives him a notable advantage.

Perhaps the chief significance of the poll is its indication that public opinion in this critical period is extremely volatile. Mr. Willkie seems to have lost the lead which he held some weeks ago. Within the next few weeks he may recover it. Changing situations are exercising a strong pull upon the opinions and emotions of the people, and probably will continue to do so until election day.

American Planes Help

According to Sir Archibald Sinclair, the British air minister, the Royal Air Force has lost 621 planes of all kinds since August 8, when the German aerial assault on Great Britain began.

According to the D. N. B., official German news agency, the British losses during August alone amounted to 1,354 planes, with an additional 742 planes lost during the first two weeks of September.

If the German estimate were accurate, Great Britain should have begun showing signs of cracking long ago. Actually, there is no evidence of it. Observers on the spot are practically unanimous in asserting that Germany has thus far failed to win mastery of the air over Britain. So it is reasonable to give Sir Archibald's figures much more weight than those of the D. N. B.

According to reports received by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, the production of military airplanes in this country is now in the vicinity of 1,000 per month. Of this total the British are receiving approximately 50 per cent. In other words, the United States airplane industry has, during these last six weeks, more than filled the gap which the Germans produced in the R. A. F., if the British air minister's figures are correct. Of course, these American planes must be added to the unknown number of fighters and bombers being turned out by British plants.

Undoubtedly the persistent large-scale raids on English cities have tended to cut airplane production by destroying plants and forcing workers to spend long hours in air-raid shelters. Should the German mass air raids continue on their present scale, it is obvious that the R. A. F. will have to depend more and more on the American airplane industry to make good its losses.

Given time, American plane production may thus become a decisive factor in the war. The Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce estimates that by next June production of planes in this country will be at the rate of 25,000 to 30,000 a year. It will continue to rise until the spring of 1942.

The Battle of Britain, on the air side, thus boils down to a race between present losses and future replacements. If the British can hold out, their present inferiority in the air may be overcome. But that is still a very large "if."

The Rome Talks

It may be more than a coincidence that the conversations taking place in Rome between Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German foreign minister, and the Italian leaders followed close on the heels of the visit to Berlin of Serrano Suner, the Spanish minister of the interior and Gen. Francisco Franco's brother-in-law.

Suner is a great admirer of the German and Italian systems and has long been an advocate of the closest possible cooperation between Spain and the Axis powers. Despite the Franco regime's ideological sympathies, however, Spain has so far kept out of the war. It is not difficult to understand why.

Three years of blood-letting and destruction left Spain a shambles. Recovery has been slow and has been retarded by the European conflict. Moreover, the Spanish leaders have taken into account the possibility that Spain's entry into the war might fan into fierce flame the never wholly extinguished embers of the recent civil conflict. Yet the temptation to capitalize Britain's difficulties to regain possession of Gibraltar, with the aid of Germany and Italy, may override the promptings of caution.

In any event, the problem of Gibraltar is very likely one subject which Ribbentrop has been discussing with Mussolini and Ciano. The German foreign minister may also have taken with him to Rome an explanation as to why the long-awaited Nazi invasion of the British Isles has been held in abeyance.

It is possible that, because of weather conditions and the failure of the German luftwaffe to knock out the Royal Air Force, Hitler may have decided to shift his attack from west to east. While continuing the air raids on London and other centers, the Fuehrer may during the next months concentrate on helping Mussolini in the latter's Egyptian campaign in an effort to make Britain's position in the Mediterranean untenable.

With such a change of strategy, the question of Gibraltar would become extremely important. For an attack on the Rock, coincident with the present assault on Egypt, would compel Great Britain to divide her naval forces. In such a campaign the cooperation of Spain, either as a full-fledged belligerent or as an ally permitting her territory to be used by the Axis, would be essential.

The Ribbentrop-Mussolini conversations in Rome may thus mark an important new stage in the war.

Hatch Act Penalties

As interpreted by the Civil Service Commission, the Hatch Act provides one drastic penalty for Government employes who become active in politics. That penalty is dismissal of the employe from his job.

Violation of civil-service rules forbidding various partisan activities could formerly be punished in a variety of ways. The Civil Service Commission was able to make the penalty fit the offense. Now, Chairman Mitchell has informed the United Federal Workers, the smallest violation of these rules must be punished by ousting the offender from his job.

Rigorous enforcement of the Hatch Act is obviously desirable. But such a harsh penalty for small offenses may actually discourage that type of enforcement. Whenever penalties seem to be excessive, there is danger that officials will wink at minor violations.

One other aspect of the situation created by the Hatch Act demands attention. Mr. Mitchell points out that the Civil Service Commission is responsible for enforcement of the law only as it applies to "classified" Government employes. In the case of nonclassified employes, enforcement of the "clean-politics" rules is left to the Department of Justice and the agencies employing the offenders.

In practice, this may mean that enforcement will be lax in the non-civil-service agencies where the restrictions of the Hatch Act are most needed. Such discrimination in applying the act may be unavoidable at present. But it certainly adds another strong argument to the case for enactment of the Ramspeck bill extending the civil service system.

Congress ought not to adjourn until enactment of this long-delayed measure is assured.

Aside to the voter: A candidate with a good platform of his own to stand on isn't always jumping on the other fellow's platform.

"A current sun-spot is so large the earth could easily be thrown into it," declares an astronomer. This may be an excellent idea.

Shameful Incident

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The cowardly assault by three of four inebriates upan an innocent young colored pedestrian at Fourteenth and Q streets northwest at 5:20 o'clock Monday evening nearly precipitated a race riot.

Had it not been for the timely interference of a passerby, who saw the intoxicated occupants jump out of the cab and begin pummeling the youngster unmercifully, the lad might have suffered serious injury. As it was, the youngster escaped with a few bruises, none of which was serious enough to warrant hospital treatment.

An unfortunate incident in the affray was that one of the inebriates, the one who did not participate in thrashing the young colored boy, had his trousers torn off and was slapped to the pavement by a colored businessman who mistook the inebriate for one of the assailants.

Lying in the road, this inebriate presented a pitiful sight, especially for innocent children who were attracted to the scene. The other three inebriates, already safe in the cab, made no effort to help their comrade, who, after several minutes, managed to get to his feet and clamber back into the cab. Officers from the Second Precinct arrived too late to be of any assistance.

A Change Of Heart?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On the thesis enunciated in the Scriptures that "no man can serve two masters," the question whether Mr. Willkie, if elected, would serve primarily the United States or the public utilities seems in point.

For the proposition that the respective interests mentioned are not identical, we have the authority of Mr. Willkie himself. It was expressed in his first public challenge to debate with President Roosevelt, issued, not in the acceptance speech at Elwood, but in an address on May 20, at Somerville, N. J., when, speaking as a utilities executive and dark-horse candidate for the Republican nomination, Mr. Willkie said.

"I'd like to go on the stump against Roosevelt and debate with him the subject of whether he has done a job for the United States as worthy as the one I have done for public utilities."

Other utility spokesmen have insisted for years that the interests of the utilities and of the whole people, which means the United States, are the same. Clearly Mr. Willkie cannot hold this view, else he would not be pointing out the distinction as an appropriate basis for public debate.

Another question seems apropos: If a Willkie-Roosevelt debate were arranged, would Mr. Willkie wish its subject to be the one he suggested at Somerville? Does he still love the public utilities in September as he loved them in May?

German Strategy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For 10 cents I found a book on Ninth street in an old store. It is "Germany and the Next War," by Gen. Friedrich Von Bernhardi. The book was published or written in 1911.

Since then, the strategy and tactics of aggressive warfare haven't changed. Here is what the general says on pages 173 and 174:

"The direct conclusion to be drawn from these reflections is that a great superiority must rest with the troops whose fighting capabilities and tactical efficiency are greater than those of their antagonists.

"The commander who can carry out all operations quicker than the enemy, and can concentrate and employ greater masses in a narrow space than they can, will always be in a position to collect a numerically superior force in the decisive direction; if he controls the more effective troops, he will gain decisive successes against one part of the hostile army, and will be able to exploit them against other divisions, before the enemy can gain equivalent advantages in other parts of the field.

"Since the tactical efficiency and the morale of the troops are chiefly shown in the offensive, and are then most needful, the necessary conclusion is that safety only lies in offensive warfare."

The present situation should surprise nobody. Germany's secrets of carrying on a war have been an open book for a long time.

Willkie's German Background

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of the significant ironies of history is the emergence of Wendell Willkie in the hour of Hitler's supremacy. According to his account in his acceptance speech, Mr. Willkie is the product of liberal German stock which came to this country to escape the reactionary measures of 1848.

The argument is advanced, and plausibly so, that it is the Prussian spirit Europe must deal with, that Hitler is in fact only incidental to Prussianism. It is also said that the German people neither understand nor desire democratic institutions.

One of the reasons given for the failure of the Weimar Republic is that its citizens despised it as a "weak" government and embraced National Socialism with zest when it offered the kind of leadership to which they were accustomed. It is obvious that Germany under the hegemony of Prussia has conditioned its people to a philosophy of blood and iron. Now that Hitler is attempting to carry to their ultimate conclusion the dogmas of Nietzsche, as amended by Treitschke and Rosenberg, we see them in starkest outline.

The liberal German cause is being kept alive in exile by men like Thomas Mann and a group of courageous intellects who continue to proclaim the freedom of the human spirit and the true orientation of Teutonic genius. They are the direct and obvious answer to the belief that Germans as a race are incapable of cherishing democratic principles.

But it is of more than passing interest that at this moment in world events a leader should emerge who gives the lie to those who claim that Germans cannot be brought to an honest acceptance of the ideal of freedom.

Whether Mr. Willkie is elected in November or not, the fact of his becoming a candidate for our highest office is a striking indication of the capacity of men of varying racial backgrounds to expand on a democratic soil. That his forebears came to this country because they were of liberal inclination only confirms and strengthens the argument.

If and when the vast blight of Prussianism is lifted from the hearts and minds of present-day Germany, the problem will be, not if, but how, the reeducation of that great but tragically misled people can be accomplished.

Democracy And Football

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: That 32,000 mass of Americans standing tense, erect and fervidly at attention at Griffith Stadium Sunday, when our National Anthem was being played, was tremendously impressive and solemn.

Looking up and back into the stern, earnest faces of black and white countrymen, one could not help thinking that every man, woman and child sensed the oncoming possible destruction of civilization. That picture should be taken and displayed along with the shots of the Filchock-Baugh blitzkrieg.

In this setting we have democracy at its best. Crowded and packed together, Jew and Gentile, black and white, thrilled and slumped with the fortunes of Marshall's Indians. That's how it is not in Germany and Italy.

The philosophy of Schopenhauer, Nietzche and others has caused Germans to believe that they are the supermen destined to conquer and inherit the world. "Deutchland Ueber Alles," is the battle cry. Will we in America, born of admixtures, forsake the Christian ideals of the oneness of humanity for the superior race ideology?

This country must very soon realize that until discriminations based on color, creed or race in all public relations are abolished, we, too, are but little better off in our practices than those of the condemned totalitarian regime abroad.

Willkie On Defense

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: No doubt Mr. Willkie is a very deserving businessman, but why does he try to have all of our plans of defense aired for the benefit of our potential enemies, and maybe to impress just a few votes? The votes that he impresses with such politics, if it may be called politics, surely will not be the ones to draw much strength to him.

He continues to try to make a lot of people believe he can prevent their boys from fighting overseas. If the world were sure of that, then it might be one of the reasons they might be forced to fight in a lot of places.

I have a boy in the Army Aviation Corps, and I assure you I do not want him to have to fight any place, but if maniacs abroad say that we shall stay put, so to speak, then I do not want him nor my other boy, who may be called, to run and hide with our Army.

These are serious times and we should all "Roll the Same Wheel In the Same Direction" and let politics wait until there is less serious call for money and time of those in responsible positions.

Photos On Permits

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please, Mr. Van Duzer, spend some of your time in attempting to help the harassed motorists of the District of Columbia and stop playing around with your hobbies, the latest of which is the idea of requiring photographs of motorists attached to all drivers' permits.

The present permit form shows the age, race, sex, color hair and color eyes of the person to whom the permit is issued. Is this not sufficient for identification purposes? I understand our policemen are well trained to spot criminals with less data than that now furnished on the present permit. Is this new idea to be construed as an admission that they are not? I prefer to believe they are and that this is just another one of your hobbies. ANNOYED.

The Post Impressionist

Indian Summer

MRS. THROCKPENNY folded the morning newspaper and poured herself a second cup of coffee from the small silver urn. The task confronting her, she thought, justified a second cup.

Hearing the rustle of the paper, Mary came in from the kitchen to clear the table. She had been with Mrs. Throckpenny ever since those unhappy days when George Throckpenny was alive, and she knew her mistress' habits as well as she knew her own.

"I'm expecting Mr. Allgood for lunch, Mary," Mrs. Throckpenny said, sipping her coffee. "We'll lunch in the garden. It's too pleasant to eat indoors, and we shan't be able to enjoy the garden much longer."

"Yes, m'am," Mary remarked amiably. "It's a good day for luncheon al fresco."

"We'll have a simple lunch," Mrs. Throckpenny continued. "A prawn salad with alligator pears would be nice. Don't bother about cocktails. Mr. Allgood doesn't care for cocktails in the middle of the day. But you may open that bottle of 1927 sauterne. It should go very well with the prawns. And no dessert, Mr. Allgood seldom eats sweets, you know."

Henry Allgood was Mrs. Throckpenny's oldest and most sympathetic friend. She had frequently turned to him for consolation, during the years of her marriage, when she could no longer endure in silence the mental cruelties that George inflicted upon her with selfish indifference to her feelings. George was a stout egotist who had no interests beyond the cravings of a well developed paunch, his brokerage business and the flavor of his cigars.

During the past five years, with George happily at rest beneath a ponderous granite slab in Woodlawn, Mrs. Throckpenny had expended her energies in creating the kind of life she had always desired. Her charming old house and poplar-shaded garden in Georgetown, purchased shortly after George's retirement to Woodlawn, formed a perfect setting for her declining years. Not that Mrs. Throckpenny was actually declining—as yet. At 45 an intelligent woman still has some of the best years of life ahead of her, if she isn't too ambitious. And Mrs. Throckpenny cleverly kept her ambitions on leash.

When Mrs. Throckpenny first appeared in public with a splash of lavender on her black dress—the short mourning period had been a gesture of gratitude to George who, in spite of his many faults, had had the decency to die solvent—Henry Allgood had asked her to marry him. Through the years he had continued to propose at appropriate intervals—usually on her birthday or at Christmas when the patter of little feet about the house was conspicuously absent.

Lately Henry had become increasingly insistent and Mrs. Throckpenny, yielding to pressure, had half-heartedly promised to give him an answer today. Time, as he had fallen into the habit of reminding her (with considerable want of tact, Mrs. Throckpenny thought), was fleeting. The question of Henry's future, as well as her own, must be settled before he arrived for lunch.

Her reluctance to accept Henry as a permanent addition to her household, fitting him unobtrusively into her collection of antique china and early American furniture, had absolutely nothing to do with the Thurston boy, she assured herself. Naturally it was gratifying to discover, at 45 that she was attractive to a personable man of 30. It was the sort of flattery no woman could resist. But Mrs. Throckpenny was much too sensible to take young Thurston seriously.

On the other hand, Henry's impatient insistence upon matrimony—excusable in a younger man but unbecoming at Henry's age—laid him open to suspicion. She knew he admired her house almost as much as she did, and Mrs. Throckpenny was sufficiently a woman of the world to realize that passion does not flame in elderly men without a certain amount of inducement.

"I can't help wondering whether Henry is in love with me or my house," Mrs. Throckpenny mused, putting down her empty coffee cup.

Rising from the breakfast table, she opened the French window and crossed the small terrace overlooking the garden. It might be less exhausting, she thought, to wrestle with Henry in the open. She followed the flagged path to the lower end of the garden where beside the tiny pool a brilliant orange umbrella sprouted, like a gigantic and obviously poisonous mushroom, from the center of a glass-and-chromium table.

Mrs. Throckpenny selected the most comfortable chair and surveyed her garden. It saddened her to think that all this loveliness would vanish in a week or two, obliterated by the first touch of frost. The slender poplars, towering like ragged sentinels above the garden wall, already had scattered most of their leaves; the purple asters beyond the lily pool had unfolded their last buds. In the warm sunlight the marigolds glowed like the treasure of Midas, but brown leaves clinging to their stalks foreshadowed an early death.

The drowsy peace of autumn pervaded the garden, but underneath its surface calm Mrs. Throckpenny detected a note of urgency, a desperate striving to crowd as much living as possible into the time that remained. The days of riotous blooming were over; there was only Indian summer to offer a brief respite before winter and darkness closed in.

Mary appeared on the terrace. "That young Mr. Thurston is on the telephone," she called. "He wants to know if you will be at home this afternoon."

Mrs. Throckpenny looked again at her garden.

"Tell him to come at 5, for cocktails," she said. "And never mind, Mary, about serving the sauterne at lunch. It might upset Mr. Allgood."

The French Example

By Dorothy Thompson

III—What Has It Taught Us?

I CONTINUE to write of France, regardless of the more immediate news, because the lesson of France has repercussions upon our own present and future. Although it is said that the lesson of history is that no one learns any lessons from history, it is difficult to believe that we cannot learn anything from immediate, contemporary events.

Again I say that the disaster to France came about because of the decay of a middle class civilization whose values are no longer tenable.

Now, the recognition that the values are no longer tenable has been clear in the minds of most thinkers and of all artists and poets for a long time. The American literature of the past 30 years has consistently challenged them. Sinclair Lewis's ironic remark as a preface to "Main Street" needs requoting:

. . . "Main Street is the climax of civilization. That this Ford car might stand in front of the Bonton Store, Hannibal invaded Rome and Erasmus wrote in Cambridge cloisters . . . Our railroad station is the final aspiration of architecture. Sam Clark's annual hardware turnover is the envy of the four counties which constitute God's Country. In the sensitive art of the Rosebud Movie Palace there is a message and humor strictly moral.

"Such is our comfortable tradition and sure faith. Would he not betray himself an alien cynic who should otherwise portray Main Street or distress the citizen by speculating whether there may not be other faiths?"

The challenge thus thrown out in the first words of "Main Street" was repeated in every one of that author's books down to "Ann Vickers." They all said the same thing: This civilization and all its values is not good enough. "It Can't Happen Here" followed logically.

ALL OUR WRITERS of imagination and sensitivity from Sinclair Lewis to John Steinbeck have been exposing decay. "Practical" men, of course, did not listen to them. Nevertheless what they comprehended and articulated has haunted the mind of the people as as vague malaise, as a feeling of frustration.

The whole middle-class world is in a state of neurosis. While it gives lip-service to the values of the last 60 years, it is not convinced by the sound of its own voice. One has only to listen to Congressmen on the radio—that most revealing of instruments—to know that most of them do not believe what they are saying. The speeches at both of the political conventions were not voices crying in the wilderness. They were the voices of men trying to convince themselves—and not succeeding.

One need not pick the politicians for our special obloquy. Something false sounds through almost everything. It is particularly noticeable in the advertisements promising with unctuous cheeriness to cure the sickness of our souls with a motor car, a tooth paste, or a perfume. The mania for buying gadgets and for constant change—color in the kitchen, a new shade of stockings, a new hair-do—goes along with a mania for new myths, for astrology or the mysticism of numbers. By restocking and redecorating we try to avoid the realization that the house is rotten, and we drive a car 60 miles an hour to persuade ourselves that our civilization is not standing still.

The longing for security is induced by an acute feeling of insecurity, and this feeling, which, in the masses, is translated into an active healthy demand for basic necessities, is, in the classes, neurotic.

We suffer from a psychological insecurity, induced by the lack of any convictions as to why we live on this earth, what our purpose is, or what it is we want to do together.

The spiritual inertia translates itself into actual physical and mental inertia. We are all critics, but few desire the responsibility of action. This becomes particularly noticeable in youth, which behaves like a bystander in society—a kibitzer—instead of its junior partner and heir. Middle-class youth is profoundly discontented but in no sense revolutionary. Its revolutionism confines itself to passing resolutions in mass meetings designed by Communist cells. But middle-class youth does not want to make over the nation or the world. It vaguely wants to have the world made over for it.

IT IS PRECISELY these middle-class values which are being mowed down as with a mightly scythe. It is precisely this middle-class world, which, in possession of wealth and technical equipment has not even been able efficiently to manufacture and distribute weapons for its own defense.

Characteristic of it is that it lives almost wholly in the present—one of the most ominous of signs. For the present is the most equivocal of all tenses. Men and communities keep alive and vigorous on the memory of a great past and the hope and intention of a great future. The present is only a bridge between experience, which is the past, and the faith and will for tomorrow.

Our middle-class society, however, has debunked the past and is cynical about it. A long school of popular historians and biographers has debased the memory of past greatness to the level of the present. It has picked out all the warts on the faces of our heroes and has psychoanalyzed every one from Jesus to Woodrow Wilson. Therefore, we are a civilization without piety. The Civil War, we have been told, was only a struggle to intrench capitalism. The generation who fought the last war were a bunch of saps protecting Mr. Morgan's investments. Jesus was not a prophet of divine inspiration, but merely a rabble-rouser of suppressed masses. Florence Nightingale was an inhibited spinster. Thus the last sophomore surveys the past of mankind with a superior and knowing eye, and is convinced that he himself is the pinnacle of civilization to date. And since he is the pinnacle why be concerned about his children and his children's children?

YET THIS pinnacle is wretched and frustrated for the simple reason that it conceives of itself as the pinnacle. The Nation is settled, the frontiers are exhausted, the population has expanded as much as it ever should expand, and all the planet outside these borders is waste land. There is nothing to look forward to.

Tell men in this society that this Nation is not overpopulated but underpopulated, and that with the proper use of resources it could give homes to fifty million more people than it has at present; tell them that though the physical frontiers are all explored the social frontiers have hardly begun to be surveyed; tell them that the economic and political reorganization of the world is sure to take place and that we shall either contribute to do this ourselves or take the leavings from the gangsters; tell them that no human being lives for himself or his own generation, but that his business is to accept the heritage of the past, add to it and push forward into the future; tell them to open their eyes to the immense work to be done; tell them that only a revolutionary view of the world and action in harmony with organic forces and with realistic facts on the grandest possible scale will save it from extinction and they will call you a Communist or a Fascist, or worse, from their standpoint, a philosophical idealist.

France collapsed because a middle-class society, regarding itself as the pinnacle of civilization, was unable to build a bridge between the past and the future. It had, therefore, lost its purpose and, being aimless, was without focus and, being without focus, was in chaos. The war merely released the chaos into an overwhelming flood.

Rare Instances?

WHEN President Roosevelt plucks a goose it takes time to collect the feathers, and a lot of them get away. But I want to do a little gleaning after his speech to the teamsters' union last week, because the nominee of the Social-Democrats, as distinguished, I hope, from the President of the United States, was very dishonest in spots. It gives me a creep to think that a man who would be President for the third time and at such a time could bring himself to give the truth such a mauling to win some votes.

"At times," Mr. Roosevelt said to the teamsters, "internal obstacles to the growth of labor unions have come in those rare instances where the occasional scoundrel has appeared in position of leadership." This followed a portion in which he reminded the teamsters that his Administration had imbedded in the law the untrammeled right of labor to organize and bargain collectively. That claim of a political debt certainly does not suggest that Mr. Roosevelt was speaking as President, but I am now going to bear down on the question.

I HAVE TRANSPOSED the two portions of the speech because I want first to say that the appearance of the scoundrel in union leadership has not been rare and that I don't believe the speaker himself, whether candidate or President, is so ill-informed as to think so. The truth is, as I believe he is well aware, that some labor organization always has been at least as crooked as his own political party, which has always been notorious for its corruption and never more so than under his leadership, and that, like his party, labor organization has suffered a dangerous moral relapse during the period which he reviewed with such pride.

Just as the speaker himself has winked politically, at the defiant crookedness of his party in Chicago, Jersey City, Louisiana, Florida, Kentucky and Kansas City, so the American Federation of Labor, in that edifice which might be called its White House, has collaborated with crooks who are persecuting labor and undermining the popular faith in the American form of government. Just as the speaker himself went to New Orleans and gave public aid and comfort to men well worthy of the name of scoundrel, so William Green appeared before a big union convention and indorsed the leadership of a man who has made it plain that he would keep crooks in office and would stand or fall with the crooks. Just as Mr. Roosevelt wangled the appointment to a lucrative semipublic office of a faithless renegade, so Mr. Green, within this year, had certified the moral character of an interloping traitor to the cause of labor who was known to all who knew him at all as the criminal agent of a gang of underworld terrorists, preying on the workers.

IT IS NOT merely that the occasional scoundrel has multiplied enormously, but that the high leadership of the American Federation of Labor has refused to interfere on behalf of persecuted workers and, until recently, refused to acknowledge the existence of the problem. Worse, the A. F. of L. denounced as enemies of labor whoever invited its hypocritical wrath by disclosing proof of corruption in the unions.

So also, it may be observed here, Mr. Roosevelt and his subordinates in the public pay attack as enemies of human rights and of the underprivileged all those who reveal corruption in his party and defend the republican system of government guaranteed by the Constitution.

I think too well of Mr. Roosevelt's intelligence to believe he was unaware that in establishing labor's right to organize his Administration also abolished the equally sacred right of Americans not to organize and placed vast numbers at the mercy of the many scoundrels who sweep unwilling workers into crooked unions, steal their pay, jerk them out on strikes called for the purpose of blackmailing employers, never consult their wishes and exclude from jobs untold thousands of decent citizens because they will not submit or merely because the unions prefer to monopolize employment for their limited membership.

This other side of the case is so harsh and so obvious that I will not entertain a suggestion that the speaker had any intention to deal with the subject. Candidate or incumbent, whatever his role on this occasion, he would not tell the truth.

Substantial Gains For Roosevelt

SIGNS that President Roosevelt has made substantial political gains during the last few weeks are springing up on all sides.

A poll of 50 leading Washington correspondents taken by Newsweek shows that 34 now expect Roosevelt to win the election, and 16 expect Willkie to win. A similar poll taken by Fulton Lewis, political commentator for the Mutual Broadcasting System, showed 42 forecasting a Roosevelt victory, 6 forecasting a Willkie victory, and 2 unable to decide.

These polls of political writers, who maintain constant touch with leaders in both parties and often have also special information concerning the situations in the communities in which their newspapers are published, usually are a reliable index of the trend of thought among practicing politicians.

As a direct sampling of opinion in the electorate generally comes the Gallup poll, indicating that Roosevelt's popular strength has risen from about 51 to 55 per cent during the last month. If he gets 55 per cent of the popular vote in November, he should carry about 38 States.

THE LATEST political reports received at Democratic National Headquarters from State and local leaders bear out, in a general way, the findings of Dr. Gallup and the opinions of the Washington correspondents. When I dropped in there early this week I found the atmosphere entirely changed from my previous visit three weeks earlier. The gloom of the first weeks following the Chicago convention has vanished. Injured feelings are being forgotten—or at least buried—I was told, as the prospect of victory brightens. Campaign contributions are beginning to come in from businessmen who were known a month ago as Willkie supporters. Whether they have really soured on Willkie or whether they merely want to be with the winning candidate, their contributions are signs that the pendulum has swung to Roosevelt.

Democratic leaders in New York State have made a preliminary check-up and reported to Edward J. Flynn, national chairman, that New York now looks safe for Roosevelt. If New York is safe for Roosevelt, his election is assured. Given the electoral votes of the South, the border States and the Far West, which even Republican leaders privately concede now look safe for him, it seems impossible for Willkie to win without New York.

Not to be forgotten is the fact that James A. Farley is still chairman of the Democratic State Committee in New York. Farley is keeping a supervising eye on the campaign in his home State. He has not yet ventured a firm prediction, but the reports from local leaders gathered by his lieutenants pass through his hands, and he has told several people privately that unless conditions change Roosevelt will carry the State. Although unable because of his new business connections to give much time to politics, Farley is on the friendliest terms with National Chairman Flynn, and several times during the last few weeks has given him helpful hits of adyice.

THE NEWSWEEK poll of 50 leading Washington correspondents shows that their appraisal of the campaign is substantially what it was last March, before Roosevelt and Willkie had been nominated. In the March poll, 34 thought the Democratic candidate would win in November and 16 thought the Republican candidate would win. With five or six exceptions, the same persons took part in both polls.

In a still earlier Newsweek poll—taken in April, 1939—only 16 of approximately the same group thought the Democrats would win the Presidential election this year.

In the latest canvass these correspondents were asked also which candidate they preferred to see elected. Twenty-five said Willkie, and 20 said Roosevelt, while 5 were undecided. Thus the prediction of a Roosevelt victory came from a group which was slightly weighted in favor of those who personally prefer Willkie.

As it is still six weeks until election, it is possible that the pendulum will swing away from Roosevelt as rapidly and as far as the polls and other reports indicate it has swung toward him during the last few weeks. The Gallup poll shows, moreover, a substantial residue of undecided voters. They may have it in their power to beat Roosevelt by a narrow margin or to elect him by a landslide comparable to 1932 if not quite of 1936 proportions. But if Willkie is to capture these undecided votes and avoid a severe defeat, it looks now as if he would need not only greater campaigning ability than he has yet shown but a few lucky breaks.

British Demand Seen For Processed Foods

By the Associated Press

Great Britain, because of difficulties in maintaining plant operations and storage supplies under the stress of intensified German air raids, may turn to the United States for increasing amounts of processed farm commodities, the Agriculture Department said yesterday.

Products affected, the department said, would include lard, meats, canned goods and other processed foods.

Refiners Lift Price Of Scrap Copper

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The refinery buying price of scrap copper was advanced today ⅛ cent a pound, making No. 1 heavy copper worth 9⅞ cents a pound, roughly equivalent to 11⅝ cents a pound on a refined basis.

It was reported there was no copper available anywhere below 11½ cents a pound, delivered Connecticut Valley base.

Europe In The Spring

YOU CAN'T just dismiss Clare Boothe's "Europe in the Spring" (Knopf, $2.50) by saying that it is hysterical, or that it is a little too bright. It is both, and it is more. It hurts. It must have hurt Miss Boothe to write parts of it, and you feel the savage hurt as you read. Sometimes it seems wantonly, maliciously intended to hurt certain named and quoted persons. And it is a warcry. Because Miss Boothe, who in the spring saw Europe's beauty crumble like a burning leaf before her eyes, sees America in the autumn as desperately like Europe in the spring. It is later than we think.

There was an American oil man on the boat on which Clare Boothe, who is the wife of Henry Luce, tycoon of Time, Life and Fortune, sailed for Genoa in February. He looked at the disappearing skyline of Manhattan and said: "These are the good old days now." She saw him again in Rome, just before, and in the Ritz in Paris, just before, and at the Ritz in London, when for London it was "just before," and always he repeated himself. "These are the good old days now," he said. And they were. In America they still are.

The oil man said other things. He said that "isolation is the unwelcome compliment America pays the British navy." He said that "if the English don't start muddling through quick, they're going to lose this war." And when, in June, Miss Boothe, who had seen Holland tumble and been shelled in Brussels and had watched the beautiful disintegration of Paris, and then flown to England—when Miss Boothe was leaving, and the oil man asked her if she thought the English would take it when it came and she answered, "you know I think they will," he said, "you've found out the only fact worth knowing here"—and then added, "going home? But all over the world these are the good old days now."

As the wife of an American tycoon Miss Boothe naturally met the high and mighty everywhere; and as the author of some of Broadway's wittiest plays she has a devilish gift for dialogue. She paints a poisonous portrait of Mussolini's daughter, green-eyed Countess Edda Ciano; and as becomes a glamorous lady, she paints a silken picture of the green-eyed lady's husband, Count Ciano. Her book is punctuated with what princes and duchesses and Noel Cowards said to Miss Boothe, and with her smart retorts.

"This book is a mood," she says, "a mood of uneasiness and bitterness and pity and doubt that I brought back from Europe."

Bygone Elections

By Paul N. Furman

When it became certain in 1794 that Washington would not accept a third term, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson were accepted as the logical competitors for the succession.

JOHN ADAMS

Adams had the support of the Federalist Party, of which Alexander Hamilton was the leader. They favored life terms for Senators and checks and balances which would give only a semblance of government to the people.

Jefferson was bitterly critical of the Administration's failure to support the French Revolution. As leader of the Republican (now Democratic) Party he took the broad ground that the people were sovereign and should rule.

That was the age of the political pamphlet. The way the partisans of those old boys rolled off vituperation and vilification makes modern name-calling contests seem like Sunday school talks.

Aaron Burr was at the zenith of his power then, being one of the most astute politicians of that day, inordinately ambitious and unscrupulous in his methods. He was the choice of Jefferson's followers for Vice President, although under the law he had to be voted for for President. Thomas Pinckney, of South Carolina, was the man the Federalists wanted for Vice President.

Adams had 71 votes, 1 more than the number necessary to elect. Jefferson was next highest, with only two less than a majority, and was declared elected Vice President. Pinckney had 59 and Burr 3. Others for whom votes were cast were Samuel Adams, of Massachusetts; Oliver Ellsworth, Connecticut; George Clinton and John Jay, New York; James Iredell and Samuel Johnson, North Carolina; John Henry, Maryland; Charles C. Pinckney, South Carolina, and George Washington.

The Other Front

By Barnet Nover

From 'The Rock' To Suez

FROM THE TIME she joined the struggle on Germany's side June 10 until late last week Italy's war effort was limited almost to the point of being negligible.

It is now clear that Italy's entry into the war contributed nothing to the defeat of France. It was, on the contrary, the imminence of France's collapse that determined Mussolini to cast the die for war. And not all of the frantic efforts of the Fascist press could make a great Italian military victory out of the capture of a few square miles of French territory in the days immediately preceding the armistice.

THE ELIMINATION of France as a combatant enabled Italy, as it enabled Germany, to turn all her guns on the British. Yet, except for the relatively insignificant Somaliland campaign, Italy allowed many weeks to go by without doing much. The Italian fleet was not permitted to get far away from its home base and British naval and military reinforcements were able to move into the Mediterranean unmolested. The large Italian force assembled in Libya and East Africa kept to their quarters. Only the Italian air force was active, but on a limited scale.

Why Italy remained inactive during the whole of the period from the third week in June until just the other day is a mystery. Possibly Mussolini expected the British to throw up the sponge after the fall of France and did not want to waste any more ships or men or planes than he absolutely had to. Possibly he wanted to time his major thrust in the Mediterranean area with a German invasion of the British Isles. In any event a prime factor determining Italy's tactics and strategy was undoubtedly her lack of reserves for an intensive war of any long duration.

LAST WEEK, however, Italy did finally embark on a major campaign from which there can be no retreat without disaster. The order was given Gen. Graziani to move into Egypt. It has been carried out. And within three days the Italian forces covered the 60 miles between the Libyan border and the town of Sidi Barrani.

The Italians claim they met with stout resistance every inch of the way but overcame it after inflicting great losses on the enemy. The British insist that they offered no opposition to the invading army at all, saving their fire until the Italians have extended their lines to a dangerous degree. In any event a significant struggle impends.

IN POINT OF NUMBERS the Italians appear to have an enormous advantage. Their forces in Libya are at least twice, possibly three times, the size of the British Middle Eastern command. The Italians also enjoy considerable numerical superiority in the air.

Both of these advantages are, however, offset to an unknown extent by the fact that the British control the Eastern Mediterranean. That means that they are in a position to interfere with supplies shipped from Italy to Libya and can also shell the only easy route between Libya and Alexandria.

Moreover, the British hold the interior lines. If they retreat they can destroy the water holes and in doing so limit the Italian advance by compelling the invaders to bring their water supply along with them across the desert wastes.

The odds in this Anglo-Italian struggle are, therefore, not at all one-sided. To make an Italian victory certain British sea power in the Mediterranean must somehow be circumvented or the preponderance of Italian military power over the British in Egypt must be greatly increased, or both.

WERE GERMANY to invade the British Isles, the British might be forced to withdraw some of their air and military strength from the Middle East to the home sector. Mussolini may have anticipated such a possibility when he gave the signal to Graziani to go ahead.

But Great Britain remains uninvaded. And while there is still no certainity that Hitler's invasion plans have definitely been called off for this year, there is a possibility that he may have to do so.

The alternative for the Third Reich would be to throw its military weight behind the Italian forces in Egypt while continuing the present aerial war of attrition against the British Isles. German troops, originally intended to be used in an invasion of Britain might be employed in the invasion of Egypt. At the same time an attempt might be made to imprison the British fleet in the Mediterranean by a trust at Gibraltar and Greece. Without Gibraltar the British would have to clear out of the West Mediterranean. With Greece in Axis hands German and Italian air power and the Italian submarine fleet could pound away at Britain's Mediterranean fleet.

IT IS POSSIBLE that some such plan was discussed by Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German foreign minister, and Mussolini in Rome yesterday. The presence in Berlin of Serrano Suner, Gen. Franco's brother-in-law and fanatical devotee of the Axis, may also be related to a possible shift in war strategy by the German high command. The road to Gibraltar lies through Spain.

It is apparent that something important is stirring in Axis circles. Hitler's time table has gone awry. But time presses. The British must be knocked out soon. If they cannot be knocked out on their home grounds, it is quite conceivable that the Fuehrer may decide to attempt the more roundabout method of severing Britain's Mediterranean lifeline.

B. & O. Orders Seven Diesel Locomotives

$2,000,000 Set As Chest Goal

'Design for Giving' Suggests Quotas For Individuals

Two million dollars will be the goal of 9,000 Community Chest volunteer workers in their thirteenth annual assault on human suffering in the Capital.

Included in the plans decided on at the first fall meeting at Chest headquarters, 1101 M street northwest, was a "design for giving" with suggested contributions for donors in income groups up to $10,000.

Sponsore of the innovation hope it will counteract the tendency of many donors in past years to contribute small amounts. The organization's previous campaigns have been hampered by the great number of $2 and $3 donations rather than any lack of contributors.

"Once A Year—THEY LOOK TO YOU" is the keynote phrase of the campaign which will start November 13 and run through November 26.

The slogan emphasizes the appeal of Chest member agencies is voiced but once a year, Bruce R. Allen, chairman of the public relations unit, pointed out.

Exemplifying plans to slash Chest administrative costs is the fact that this year for the first time volunteers will forego their official workers' buttons.

Richard H. Wilmer, general vice chairman, presided at the meeting, attended by 15 campaign committee members, in the absence of Chauncey Parker, jr.

Individual contributions of at least "one day's pay" from every salaried worker who is fortunate enough to be able to earn his livelihood in Washington was the general basis suggested to the campaign committee as the best approach to the large number of smaller contributors in the Chest campaign.

More detailed suggestions for the contributors were presented to the campaign committee in a "giving scale" reading as below:

A Person Earning	And Sharing on the Basis of		Would Give
Up to $900	½ of 1%	Up to	$3.00 Cash
" " 1,200	½ of 1%	" "	.50 month
" " 2,000	6-10 of 1%	" "	1.00 "
" " 2,800	¾ of 1%	" "	21.00 year
" " 3,800	⅞ of 1%	" "	32.50 "
" " 4,500	1%	" "	45.00 "
" " 5,000	1¼%	" "	62.50 "
" " 7,500	2%	" "	150.00 "
" " 10,000	2½%	" "	250.00 "

Reports on progress toward completing volunteer organization of the units were made by the committee members.

Gift to New York Library Rivals Folger Collection

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—A $2,000,000 library of rare books, collected by the late W. T. H. Howe, of Cincinnati, was given today to the New York Public Library by Dr. Albert Ashton Berg, New York surgeon, who bought it from the Howe estate for an undisclosed sum.

The gift is one of the largest to an institution in book history. Howe, former president of the American Book Co., collected its 16,000 items over a period of 40 years.

In the collection are Dickens' own reading copies of "A Christmas Carol," "David Copperfield," and "Nicholas Nickleby;" James Fennimore Cooper's own copy of "The Spy," interleaved with manscript corrections and additions; original manuscripts of John Galsworthy, rare first editions and letters.

Dr. Harry Miller Lydenberg, director of the library, said the collection established here for scholars of the nineteenth and twentieth century English and American literature a treasure comparable to the Folger Library in Washington for Elizabethan scholars.

Ruth Jones Rites At 11 A. M. Today In St. John's

Services will be held at 11 a. m. today for Ruth Eleanor Jones, Times-Herald society editor, in St. John's Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and H streets northwest, where she attended and reported many of Washington's notable wedding ceremonies.

Rites will be conducted by Dr. Oliver J. Hart, rector, assisted by the Rev. Nathaniel C. Acton, vicar of St. Andrews Church, Berwyn, Md. Burial will be held in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers will include William S. Broughton, Jesse R. Hildebrand, George Adams Howard, A. H. Winkelstein, Lee A. Somers, Paul J. McGahan, Col. Marvin H. McIntyre, George A. DeWitt, M. W. Flynn, Charles G. Duffy, Gustave J. Miller, J. Irving Belt, Daniel E. O'Connell, Frank Hughes and John Riseling.

Miss Jones died Tuesday in a Cleveland hospital following an illness of several months.

Lutherans Hear Talk On Church Schools

The Rev. Arthur H. Getts, co-editor of the Parish and Church School Board of the United Lutheran Church in America, discussed modern methods of church school teaching before officers and teachers of the Reformed Lutheran Church, 217 East Capitol street last night.

"Unless there is a consecrated and trained leadership to carry out religous education, we are not going to be able to carry out our objectives," he told nearly 100 persons at the dinner meeting. His talk was illustrated with slides.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

"CHAMPAGNE AND ORCHIDS." Stars of the Mayflower's annual "champagne and orchids" opening on October 4 will be in the stratospheric class. Russell Swann, the "magic man" who was the most sought-after entertainer in Palm Beach last winter, will fly to Washington from a Chicago theater engagement. There'll also be Loper and Barrat, magical dancers last seen here in "Very Warm for May," later headlined in the hit musical "One For the Money." Bonnie Boyd, who's been warbling over the Columbia air waves, will join Dick Koons' singing band on the big evening, stay on in the Mayflower Lounge for an indefinite engagement. . . . Tickets to the "champagne and orchids" party are like tickets to the Redskins' Sunday games. Don't take chances on missing out.

"Pan-American Week" has attracted such crowds to the Shoreham that it'll be held over for another week. Another Latin-American act will be added to the revue and Aurelia Celinda, Harriet Smith's Lovely Ladies, and St. Clair and Day will flaunt forth in fresh numbers in the South American way.

MICKEY IN MAYFAIR. Mickey Rooney will be dropping into Mayfair during his Washington stay. "Mousey" Garner, who knows everyone in Hollywood, is an old friend of Mickey's, knew him when he was knee high to an extra. . . . Mayfair's "Admiral" Jimmy Byrd, queried for news, said, "Well, you can tell 'em that Mayfair's going to be different from every other spot in town. We're not going to have a fall opening. Every night is opening night in Mayfair." Hear! Hear!

NEW IN THE OFFING. Paul Young is going to Philadelphia to sign contracts for the revue and band in his new Romany Room, opening on October 8. One of the nicest things about the Romany Room is that it will have the same cusinie as the Roumanian Inn where Mrs. Vera Young, mother of Paul and Dave Young, superintends the cookery . . . Herbie Sachs will be back from New York tomorrow with a pocketmul of contracts for the talent at Del Rio's fall opening early in October.

BERK MOTLEY, emcee-maestro of Boulevard Farms' "Dancing Campus"

INTERIOR DECORATION. The Secretry of State and Mrs. Huli dropped into the Cosmos Room the other afternoon to admire the twinkling stars, rolling clouds and classico-gigantico murals. . . . Note. If the Cosmos clouds don't move fast enough to suit you, just speak to Joe Hesse and he'll step up the cloud machine. . . . Have you missed the masked gentleman with the red rose from the mural over the Lounge Riviera bandstand? The answer lies in Maestro Pete Macias' temperament. "I couldn't stand lookin' at that thing any more," said Pete. So they've painted out the figure.

Guy Richardson, handwriting expert and one of the best, is back in the Rainbow Room. Paul Inbody (remember him in the Mayflower Lounge last year?) joins the Rainbow orchestra today as singer-violinist-guitarist.

EVALYN'S BACK. After a couple of days under the weather Evalyn Tyner is back spanking the piano in the Neptune Room. Everyone's awfully glad to see her. Neptune's Three Star Trio is going berserk these eves with Raymond Scott's new "Boy Scouts in Switzerland" which must take a year off the life of "Curly" Fox's drums every time he plays it. Another "solid" one is "Juke Joint Jive" composed by Manager Gene Ford of the Capitol Theater and Washington's Sparty Donato.

PUZZLING PRONUNCIATION. Please don't address Jack Kerr of Cafe Caprice as "Cur.". He thinks it's funny, but his name is pronounced "Carr." (But Jack says it's all right for you to say, "Sir, you cur!") . . . And Candido Botelho of the Troika will be just as happy if you don't call him "Mr. Bottle-o." It's Bo-Tell-ho, with the accent on the second syllable . . . This reminds that Candido and the rest of the glittering Troika revue will be on hand Sunday night, one of the pleasantest of the week in La Helen Hamilton's Club.

FREE CONGA LESSONS climax the Lotus floor show. Ringsiders step out with the Lotus dancing pretties and the result's stupendous. Eddie Chase, who'll be half of the double piano in the new Pall Mall Room orchestra, stepped out in the Lotus conga with something less than abandon the other day. He said he was handicapped by his rubber soled shoes. . . . Speaking of abandon, Lew Spencer and Gene Foreman are doing the flashiest, most amusing jive stepping seen around town this year.

MAESTROS SAY. "A mellow chick" is the way Madrillon's Carr and Don describe their new singer, June Sothern. It's the description perfect . . . Grant Thompson, band leader at the Metronome Room, says he likes the way that Washingtonians specify the exact music they want.. The other eve he played an entire program of request tunes . . . Matt Windsor, one-man-band of the Anchor Room, says he's going to write some war tunes for the British . . . Jack Schaefer, inimitable Swingarooster of the Casino Royal, tells us he has a bushel of new lyrics for the C. R. "fall opening" on Tuesday.

BIG SUBURBAN WEEK-ENDS. Gay Nineties. Al Oddone has assembled a shining new revue for tonight and tomorrow. Stars are dancers Ann and Eddy Crystal, sure show stoppers. Also singer Tiny Lee, who was discovered by Leader Oddone at the Arcadia ballroom "Jam Sessions."

Boulevard Farms. "Fall opening" of the B. F. "Dancing Campus" is due tomorrow when Berk Motley and his show band, the Twelve Georgians, who've been packing 'em in all week, will air a flock of fresh novelties. The floor show will be headed by singer Bob Davey and dancers Margarette and Bouche.

Nightingale. Just another big week-end. Rodd Raffell's hightest, but sweet rhythms, have that way with 'em to luring capacity crowds.

Maryland Gardens. Those Saturday nights at Maryland Gardens. Myomy! You'll find all the entertainers and bandsmen who stopped playing at midnight in Washington.

There's always a large delegation of business men sitting in the Harrington Tavern in the afternoon. Seems that it's an ideal place for quietly talking over business deals.

Britain and U. S. Discuss Bases

plished by an order in council and would not have required any action by Parliament. Apparently Stokes feared the same procedure might be followed in establishing an Anglo-United States union.—Editor's note.]

Diplomatic circles in this Capital said that any formal alliance in the usual sense of the word has not been considered. What is being discussed is merely an arrangement on bases which might be handled by Executive action as far as this country is concerned. No final decisions are expected until November, diplomatic sources said.

It was pointed out, however, that the United States has adopted, as part of its basic defense policy, the thesis that war should not be permitted to come close to the shores of this country. The right of this country to use of bases in Africa, from which any attack upon South America presumably would be launched, and in the Far East, would be of great value, it was asserted.

Contingencies Weighed Carefully

The two different contingencies have been carefully weighed here since the intensified Nazi aerial attacks on Britain began. One has been the steps this country could take to strengthen its outlying defenses in all directions if Great Britain continued to hold out against the violent Nazi attacks and successfully met any invasion attempt.

With much of Britain's fleet occupied around the British Isles and in Mediterranean waters, eyes here have turned to the Far East, where Japanese activities threaten American rights. In Far Eastern developments, Australia and New Zealand obviously are vitally interested.

There is an opinion that permission for the American fleet to use Singapore, for instance, might be important in this connection.

Provisions for meeting the worst situation that might arise have also had to be considered, however, a natural desire exists here to keep the entire world situation from deteriorating in the event that the British Isles should unexpectedly be conquered and the British fleet should be forced to seek other bases through Prime Minister Churchill's pledge that under no circumstances would the fleet be surrendered or scuttled. Cooperation with regard to joint use of bases also is being pondered in this connection.

Trade Situation Studied

A complete Nazi victory in Europe would cause immediate important trade difficulties not only for the United States but for the English-speaking parts of the British Empire, most experts in Washington agree.

Markers Sought For Hyattsville City Limits

A delegation from the Hyattsville Businessmen's Association will appear before the Hyattsville City Council at its next meeting to ask aid in a move to mark the limits of Hyattsville on the various roads entering the town.

According to members of the association, many persons pass through the town without being aware of its name.

U. S. Spends $625,000 for 2 Play Areas

City Funds Lacking, Development May Be Delayed for Months

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday announced completion of land acquisition for two playgrounds but it may be months, even years, until they are placed in use.

Southwest Recreation Center, at Seventh and G streets, and Midcity Playground, at Fifth street and New Jersey avenue northwest, are the sites involved. Although funds are believed available for razing of the dwellings bought by the planning body, the limited budget of the District Playground Department indicates that construction of tennis courts, baseball diamonds and other recreation facilities will be long deferred.

Acquisition of land for play areas in the District is undertaken by the planning commission, a Federal agency, but development and maintenance of the land is a municipal responsibility.

Fifty-eight separate parcels of land were bought by private negotiation at an aggregate cost of $225,000 for the Midcity Playground project. The Southwest Recreation Center, occupying two square blocks south of the new Jefferson Junior High School, cost $400,000, part of the property being acquired through condemnation.

Norman C. Brown, associate land purchasing officer for the commission, also reported further purchases for expansion of Fort Reno Recreation Center and Potomac Palisades Playground. Other additions were reported in the Southeast and Northeast sections, but details were withheld.

Acting on Brown's recommendation, the planners authorized condemnation proceedings to get land wanted for the Harrison School Playground in the vicinity of Thirteenth and V streets northwest.

Concluding its two-day monthly meeting today, the planning body will discuss its proposed 1941-42 land purchasing program. The members, lead by Chairman Frederic A. Delano, made a field trip late yesterday to inspect potential sites of future parks, parkways and playgrounds in the metropolitan area.

Morticians Agree On Plan to Cut Cost of Funerals

The national board of directors of the Advertising Funeral Directors of America meeting here yesterday adopted a plan of cooperation in larger cities to buy caskets in quantities. This will assure a decrease of nearly 25 per cent in the cost of funerals, ranging between $250 and $300, it was pointed out. The session at the Mayflower Hotel concluded a two-day conference.

W. W. Chambers, District mortician, pointed out that most undertakers are still buying caskets in small lots "and can't afford to cut their prices . . . Others refuse to cut."

He reiterated his statement of Thursday that the American public pays $300,000,000 too much for funerals every year. Declaring that undertakers have assumed too professional an air, he charged that State boards throughout the country are trying to eliminate younger men from obtaining licenses in order to "save the gravy for themselves."

WRC to Broadcast British Relief Program

The British War Relief Society radio program will be broadcast in Washington over Station WRC from 8:30 to 9 p. m. tonight, it was announced yesterday.

"There'll Always Be an England," is the theme of the program. Among those to participate are Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador; Rudy Vallee, Nelson Eddy, Helen Hayes, Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Wilfred Pelletier. The program will originate in New York.

Senate Acts Today On Ramspeck Bill

delayed finishing the constitution to hear Mead.

Their constitution gave the C. I. O. control over appointment of the U. F. W. A. president and secretary-treasurer, until the Government employe organization is "financially independent," but left the way open for delegates to elect a 14-man executive board.

Changes in Government employe relations policies were urged in a dozen resolutions applying to separate agencies.

Heading the list was a proposal to take to court the union's long-standing row with Veterans' Administrator Frank Hines over board, room and laundry charges for employes of the agency.

Many of the proposals called for elimination of overtime work in Government agencies—or payment for it in extra leave. The delegates, however, agreed to work several hours overtime to permit adopting more resolutions and finishing other convention business.

Their constitution pledged "loyalty and earnest effort to the effective administration of democratic government and the furtherance of democracy in the Nation," and insisted on the rights of its members to "participation in administrative decisions which concern their welfare and negotiations concerning their working lives."

The constitution listed these union objectives:

To organize all eligible workers in the Federal service in order to improve their wages, hours and working conditions.

To join with the rest of organized labor in its efforts to achieve a better life for the working men and women of this country.

To help make the Federal service a real career service by promoting merit in personnel selection, security of tenure, an adequate minimum wage for all Government employes, a five-day, 35-hour week, regular salary increases and promotions, adequate old-age and unemployment security without excessive charge to employes, the right of employes to be secure from discrimination on the part of supervisors.

This list was enlarged by resolutions calling for detailed policy changes in the Veterans' Administration, navy yards, Federal Security Agency, Federal Works Agency, Agriculture Department and others.

In asking convention approval of court action against Gen. Hines, Leo Hochstetter, U. F. W. counsel, said the resolution "is designed to do one thing—take Gen. Hines and the Veterans' Administration out of the Hotel and restaurant business." The complaint, he said, was against compulsory charges for quarters, subsistence and laundry, required from emeployes in Veterans' facilities.

Delegates Demonstrate

Adoption of the constitution came a few seconds before 10 p. m. The vote sent the delegates into an uproar, which lasted 10 minutes.

Four Washington Government workers were among the 14 elected to the executive committee. They were Earl Fortney, of the Interior Department; Arthur Stein, of WPA; Mabel Vrooman, of the Commerce Department, and Oscar Witmer, Labor Department, who is president of the District Industrial Union Council.

Other committee members were Lee Kogan and Margaret Sirugo, of New York City; V. C. Serianni, Huntington, W. Va.; Darius Kline, Philadelphia, Pa.; James D. Yancey, of Little Rock, Ark.; Robert C. Wicke, jr., San Antonio, Tex.; John Lewis, Detroit; LeRoy A. Miller, Hines, Ill.; Laura Sinclair, Portland, Oreg., and John T. McEntee, San Francisco.

Alternates to the executive committee were Gertrude Evans, of the Veterans Administration, Washington; Frank Cacciola, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Daniel P. Atwood, Baltimore; Hugh Urban, Knoxville, Tenn.; Ernest Lowrance, North Chicago, Ill., and Jack Wilson, Bremerton, Wash.

The committee will meet at 11 a. m. today at U. F. W. headquarters, 532 Seventeenth street northwest, Baker said.

D. C. Suffrage Urged

In a last-minute rush of resolutions, the delegates urged, among many other things, local and national suffrage for the District and improvement in Washington's automobile parking system by development of low-cost parking lots by the Government or through employe cooperation.

Government working conditions were the topic of several resolutions. These called for elimination of the present efficiency rating system and substitution of a plan that would give proper weight to seniority, elimination of overtime, speed-ups and split shifts; provision of time and a half for overtime work; higher building standards in rented Government office; continued preference benefits for veterans in the Federal service; unemployment insurance for Government workers; compulsory appointment of the highest man on a Civil Service register to a vacant job, rather than the present system of giving appointing officers a choice of the top three names; passage of the Ramspeck bill; a $1,200 minimum wage for Government workers now, and later a $1,500 minimum; automatic pay increases each year.

For drafted Federal employes, the delegates asked that the Government pay the difference between their regular salaries and a soldier's pay during military service.

A general resolution called for extension of social gains, including social security benefits, housing, health programs, youth programs, rent control, and permanent status for the WPA.

Air Derbyists Plan Dawn Patrol, Breakfast Sunday

Forty planes will meet at the Fredericksburg, Va., Airport Sunday morning to participate in a joint "dawn patrol" and breakfast party under the auspices of the Washington Air Derby Association and the Richmond Flying Club.

Plans for the flying fete were discussed last night at the first fall meeting of the Washington Air Derby Association at the Capitol Radio Engineering Institute.

The joint affair will be the first of a series of events planned by the derby group this year, according to Noble C. Shilt, president.

Members heard Prof. H. J. Wood, of the C. R. E. I. discuss various types of radio equipment available for the private flier. Prof. Wood, a former Navy flier, participated in the first mass flight of Navy planes from San Diego to Honolulu.

Madame Chairman

Mrs. Whitehurst in Baltimore Hospital; Broke Both Arms in Fall at Maryland U.

FRIENDS of Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, first vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will regret to learn that she is in the University Hospital there, recovering from fractures in both arms.

Probably none will be more surprised to learn the extent of her injuries than members of the board of the Maryland State Federation of Women's Clubs with whom she had luncheon at the University of Maryland Tuesday. She had been attending the board meeting and slipped and fell in the hallway of one of the University buildings on her way to luncheon after morning session. Although she was unable to use her right arm, and used her left with difficulty during the luncheon, she talked and laughed with others in the company and remained for the afternoon meeting.

Not until she returned to Baltimore did she learn her arms were fractured. She will be in the hospital for some days.

TO NATIONAL SESSION—Mrs. C. D. Lowe, president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, has left for Chicago to attend the fall meeting of the board of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

There will be discussion of the contribution to national defense that can be made by parent-teacher groups. Leaders believed that, as national security rests on moral as well as military preparedness, it is there this organization can do most in safeguarding the youth.

SORORITY TEA—Kappa Kappa GammaAlumnae Association will give a tea Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5 at the home of the president, Miss Anne Viehmeyer, 4633 Blagdon avenue.

The affair is being given to introduce the new officers to the membership. In the receiving line with the hostess will be Miss Jane Hart, vice president and social chairman; Miss Lucille Wilkinson, recording secretary; Mrs. Torrence Wolford, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Wallace R. Vawter, treasurer.

Serving at the tea table will be Mrs. William Hamilton Knox and Mrs. Hugh Jones, both former presidents of the association.

Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist is chairman of the committee in charge, assisted by Miss Amanda Chittum, Miss Nancy V. Gordon, Mrs. William S. Stein, Mrs. Calvin Milans, Miss Mary Lou Nash, Mrs. John S. Jacobsen, Mrs. Edward J. Calhoun, and Miss Evelyn Nichol.

The association is also planning its annual Founders' Day dinner October 14, at Brooke Farm Tea House.

PROVINCE CONCLAVE—The tenth province conference of Chi Sigma Sorority opened last night with a business meeting at the Mayflower Hotel. Tonight there will be another business session for the election of officers, with Marjorie Mertz and Mrs. Eileen Hardesty, the candidates for province president.

Tomorrow night a banquet will be held at 6:30 with installation of officers, followed by a dance. A cocktail party is scheduled for Sunday. All of the social affairs are in charge of Loretta Mansfield.

National officers attending are the president, Naomi Ford, of Baltimore; Helen Brokaw, National secretary, of East Orange, N. J.; Mrs. Loretta McCleery, National vice president and Irene Cribbs, editor, both of Washington.

FARM GROUP MEETS—The Capital Division of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will meet for luncheon tomorrow at the Highlands, at 12:30. The president, Mrs. Jay Winston Johns of Ashlawn, Charlottesville, Va., will preside at a business meeting to follow the luncheon. Luncheon reservations should be made with Mrs. James Craig Peacock, 12, Irving street, Chevy Chase, by tomorrow.

ALTRUSA STARTING—The Altrusa Club will open its season next Wednesday with a dinner at the Broadmoor. The program will be a "summer round-up" of vacation experiences of members.

Miss Edith Macauley, the president, who succeeds Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist, has been in Mexico during the summer conducting a party on tour. She will return to the Capital in time to preside at Wednesday's meeting.

BOARD MEETS TODAY—The Prince Georges County Federation of Women's Clubs will have its fall executive meeting today at the 614 E street Y. W. C. A.

MEMORIAL CONTRIBUTION—The Zonta Club, at its memorial service Wednesday, honoring its founder and first president, the late Mrs. Edith Charleton Salisbury, contributed a fund of $350 for Canadian War Relief, to be sent as a gift in her memory. Mrs. Salisbury was a native of Canada.

PREPARE FOR FAIR—Mme. Hendrik de Kauffmann, wife of the Minister of Denmark, heads the list of patronesses for the Danish Fair being given tomorrow night at the Women's City Club. Others include Mrs. Gladys Middlemiss, president of the club; Mrs. Lyman B. Swormstedt, Dr. A. Frances Foye, Mrs. Grace Hays Riley, Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, Miss Marjorie Webster, Mrs. Jean Bennett and Mrs. Merritt Chance.

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Rohde, who as Ruth Bryan Owen, was United States Minister to Denmark, will be present to autograph copies of three of her books, "Tales from Scandinavia," "Denmark Caravan" and "Castle on the Silver Wood." These and other books on Denmark and by Danish authors, including works of Hans Christian Andersen, will be on sale.

PLAN PROGRAM—The executive board of the Takoma Park Women's Club will meet today, at the home of the president, Mrs. Paul Burk, 524 Fern place northwest.

Plans for the coming year will be discussed, and the new and reelected officers and committee members will swing into action.

Stokowski Here Tonight for Concert

The All-American Youth Orchestra taken by Leopold Stokowski on the South American good will tour will appear at 8:45 tonight in Constitution Hall, with Stokowski conducting.

Mme. Horinouchi in Hospital, But Farewell Party Goes On

Hostess Recovering From Appendectomy but Envoy From Japan, Who Leaves Next Month, Decides Not to Call Off Scheduled Fete

By Hope Ridings Miller.

A FAREWELL "AT HOME"—without the hostess—went on the boards yesterday afternoon when the Japanese Ambassador, Kensuke Horinouchi, received several hundred guests at a teatime fete. Mme. Horinouchi, rushed to the hospital a couple of days ago, is now recuperating from an appendectomy. With true Nipponese courtesy, the Ambassador decided, however, not to call off the party, which had been planned shortly after he had notice of recall. So he met his friends at the appointed time, received alone, and explained why his wife could not be present.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER.

"It is not an official party," he told me as I stopped to chat with him briefly. "The people you will see here are just our friends, to whom we wish to say goodby." Incidentally, he and his wife will be off to their homeland in the middle of next month.

Very much missed yesterday was Mme. Horinouchi, who usually dons a native kimono when she is hostess; but as if they were trying to make up for her absence, three dainty little ladies were present, looking for all the world as if they had been cut out of a Japanese picture postcard. Wives of Japanese staff members, they were all of a size and must have decided ahead of time that each would wear a costume to fit perfectly into the setting. So one appeared in a gold kimono that blended with the chrysanthemums just inside the door; another stepped out in green that matched the ferns which pointed up bouquets of sweetheart roses here and there; and the third was garbed in soft blue that contrasted nicely with the talisman roses sprouting from a silver vase on the buffet table.

Pleasantly informal from first to last, the party drew a throng of guests. State Department officials, members of the service set, residential Washingtonians and Congressional hostesses—everybody practically, except foreign diplomats—were noted in a company that came early and stayed late.

I SAW: Admiral and Mrs. Walter S. Anderson, completely surrounded . . . Miss Elizabeth Johnson, sister of Ambassador-to-China Nelson Johnson, chatting with Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., and their son, Philip . . . Mrs. Goodloe Edgar and her daughter, Mrs. William D. Byron, centers of popular attention . . . Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, talking in glowing terms about Bundles for Britain and the Republican Party . . . Clarence Hewes, asking Vera Bloom if she would be a member of a special G. O. P. committee. "I certainly won't," said Vera with a smile. (She has a Democratic campaign going full force in her own family) . . . Mrs. Sol Bloom, moving from group to group, seeming to know everybody there . . . Mrs. Henry F. Grady, arriving a few minutes after her husband, the Assistant Secretary of State . . . Judge and Mrs. Harry Blair among those coming in early . . . Mr. and Mrs. Royal McKenna, greeting Mrs. Fred Essary, her daughter, Peggy, and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Essary, of Los Angeles . . . Mr. and Mrs. Walter Karig, the former receiving congratulations on his article in the current issue of Liberty magazine . . . Ernest K. Lindley, viewing Rock Creek Park from the terrace . . . Mrs. George T. Pettengill, threading her way through the throng . . . Mrs. A. A. Berle, just back from New England, telling friends that she and her husband have moved to the Phipps place, next door to Woodley, the house they had last winter . . . Mrs. Henry D. Flood, Miss Pauletta Guffey, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Britten, Charles Mason Remey, Maj. and Mrs. Parker West, and several dozen others.

I HEARD: That John Gunther, the noted journalist and author, is in town briefly and is staying at the Wardman Park Hotel . . . That John Cudahy, who talked to the men's Press Club yesterday, is not only a well publicized diplomat and horseman, but also a big game hunter and author; and that his book, "African Horizons," is worth reading anytime . . . That Mrs. Wales Latham, of New York, head of Bundles for Britain, Inc., is expected to come to Washington today . . . That at least one Capital couple, who offered to take two British children "for the duration," got the most optimistic reply that I have heard lately . . . And thereby hangs a tale . . .

Dr. and Mrs. Edward C. Acheson are the couple in question. The children are sons of a British friend, Maj. Arthur Balbernie, whose fame as a Bengal Lancer is known around the world. The Achesons wrote to the major sometime ago and told him they would be glad to keep his children safely in America as long as the war lasts. His answer, by cable, was as follows: "Victory is too close to permit visit now. A counter engagement—will both of you dine with me at the Rainbow Room, white tie, 8 o'clock, three weeks after victory breaks?"

The Achesons, incidentally, are moving in from their Virginia home to Miss Frances Sortwell's house, 3410 Volta place this week-end. They were there a few months ago; moved over to Mrs. J. Borden Harriman's house on Foxhall road, and Mr. and Mrs. Cortland Barnes took the Sortwell place . . . Now the Barneses are moving out and the Achesons are moving in again. And that's Washington for you.

From Debbing To Dramatics

Miss Nancy Strong, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Alden Strong, who will be presented to society on October 26 at a party at the Army-Navy Country Club, will go in for the more serious side of life after the holiday season is over. She plans to start studying dramatics at a local school shortly after the first of the year. In the meantime she is getting a little practical experience along that line by taking part in the Washington-made technicolor movie, "Hello America," which will be released at a local theater sometime next month. Nancy's sister, Mrs. Dexter Lowry, jr., who has been living in Panama, where her husband, Lieut. Lowry, is stationed, will arrive on the transport American Legion and come to Washington on Sunday for a visit to her family. Mrs. Dexter Lowry, sr., arrives in town the following day from Florida for a visit with the Strongs. Francis Lowry, Mrs. Lowry, sr.'s youngest son, will enter St. John's College at Annapolis this fall

Mrs. Jeffries, J. W. Bailey, Jr., Are Married

Ceremony Performed At Home of Bride's Sister in McLean, Va.

In the presence of members of the two families, Mrs. Margaret Keith Jeffries was married yesterday afternoon to John W. Bailey, jr. The ceremony took place at 4:30 at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Perry Howze, of McLean, Va. The Rev. Bland Tucker officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, R. Walton Moore, counselor of the State Department. She wore a street-length frock of gray crepe, with cut steel beads at the neck as the only trimming, and a corsage of purple orchids. Paul Alling, a colleague of Mr. Bailey at the State Department, served as best man.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Thomas Randolph Keith, of Fairfax, Va., who has been living in Washington with her daughter this year, was present. The bride's other sister, Mrs. Anne Drake, who recently came here from New York, was also among the guests.

A small reception for the wedding guests followed the ceremony. Later the couple left for New York and will sail tomorrow on the liner America for a West Indies cruise. On their return they will live at 1516 Thirty-third street in Georgetown.

The bride is the widow of Louis Jeffries.

Miss Tammen Becomes Bride

The wedding of Miss Virginia Agnes Tammen, daughter of Mrs. George Washington Good, of St. Petersburg, Fla., to Benjamin F. MacNeil III, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. MacNeal, took place yesterday at the Washington Cathedral.

The bride wore a white taffeta gown with a yoke of rosepoint lace, which also trimmed the long train. Her face veil and full-length veil fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried white roses and orchids. Her sister, Mrs. Loyola Brockwell, who served as matron of honor, wore turquoise taffeta with a matching veiled hat. The flower girl, Sherry Brockwell, was in a pink and blue ensemble.

Mr. MacNeal was best man for his son and the ushers were Steven Clark and Lee Moran.

After a month in Florida, the couple will make their home at 1437 Rhode Island avenue.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. O. B. G. Fullaway and Miss Katherine Fullaway, of Philadelphia; Miss Virginia M. Campbell, of Colorado Springs; Miss Barbara Lohman, Mrs. Bernice Solomon and Miss Mary C. Bess, of St. Petersburg, Fla.

Panama's Envoy Attends U. of Pa. Bicentennial

The Ambassador of Panama, Dr. Augusto Boyd, is attending the bicentennial celebration of the University of Pennsylvania. The envoy is a graduate of that institution and is enjoying a reunion there with members of the class of 1907. He will return to Washington tomorrow night.

Also taking part in the celebration is the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu-Shih. He gave an address there yesterday and will receive an honorary degree from the college. Next week will see him back at his desk here.

Mrs. J. H. Lewis On New York Visit

Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, who returned to the Mayflower recently, has gone to New York for a brief stay. She is stopping at the Biltmore there.

Her many friends in Washington were delighted to learn of her return to the Capital, where she lived when her late husband was Senator. Since his death she has been at her home in Chicago, but is expected to spend most of the winter here at the Mayflower.

Margaret Jenssen To Be Wed October 12

Mr. and Mrs. Sigvald T. Jenssen, of Alexandria, announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Helen, to Oliver Henry Zoerner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Zoerner, of Kensington, Md.

The wedding will take place on October 12 at Mount Vernon Methodist Church.

Virginia Fones' Betrothal Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Randol Pittman Fones announce the engagement of their daughter, Virginia Minor Fones, to William John Moll, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Moll, of Washington.

The wedding will take place at St. Alban's Church in the near future.

Vacation Over, L. V. Benets Resume 'At Homes' Here

Back in Washington and ready to resume their regular Sunday "at homes" are Mr. and Mrs. Laurence V. Benet, who have been on a New England vacation since July 1.

Leaving here by motor, they drove to Saranac Inn to spend three weeks. From there they went to Breton Woods for a brief visit en route to Poland Springs, Me., where they also stayed three weeks.

Before returning to Washington they stopped over for a week in New York and had a visit with Mrs. Benet's niece, Mrs. Harold Horan, and her husband, who sailed September 6 for Buenos Aires. Mr. Horan, who formerly lived here, is going to Argentina to open an office for Time, Life and Fortune magazines.

This Sunday and each Sunday through the season Mr. and Mrs. Benet will be at home to their friends after 6 p. m. As Mr. Benet says, "Our doors open at 6 o'clock and the bar half an hour later."

Marion Iglehart, Doctor to Wed

Mrs. and Mrs. Floyd Hanly, of Chevy Chase, Md., announce the engagement of their niece, Marion Dorsey Iglehart, to Dr. Charles Randolph Richardson, of Washington, D. C.

Miss Iglehart is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles W. Iglehart, of Tokyo, Japan. She is a graduate of Syracuse University and of the Yale Nursing School. At present she is an assistant night supervisor of nurses at Doctor's Hospital.

Dr. Richardson is the son of Mrs. Charles Montague Richardson and the late Mr. Richardson, of Washington. He received his medical degree from George Washington University and is now assistant house surgeon at Doctor's Hospital. The marriage will take place October 12.

Americana Exhibit to Aid Red Cross Fund

Mrs. George F. Zook will hold an exhibit of early Americana on next Friday at her home, 4500 Klingle street. The display, which will include a large collection of glass, is to be shown for the benefit of the Red Cross.

A small admission will be charged and tea will be served from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Miss Carol Fries Leaves to Attend Oregon Universtiy

On her way West is Miss Carol Stephanie Fries, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Amos Fries, who will attend the University of Oregon this year.

Miss Fries' selection of a college across the country was a case of "like mother, like daughter." A number of years ago her mother, the former Miss Elizabeth C. Wait, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Wait of Medford, Oreg., elected to cross the continent for her higher education. Leaving the West, she came East to enter Barnard College in New York.

Stanley-Browns In New Home

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Stanley-Brown have returned from their summer home at Siasconset, Nantucket Island, and are at their new house at 2750 Thirty-second street.

Mr. Stanley-Brown, who is an architect, built the house last spring. Teddy Stanley-Brown has returned to his studies at South Kent School in Connecticut.

Gen. Trujillo Visits Capital

Gen. Rafael Trujillo, former President of the Dominican Republic, arrived in Washington yesterday for a stay of several days at the legation. He has been in a New York hospital for a checkup.

There will be several parties in the general's honor, but so far no definite dates have been set.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas have returned to their home in Silver Spring. They spent the early part of the summer in New England and then went to Oregon to visit Mrs. Douglas' family.

The Ambassador of Peru, Manuel de Freyre y Santander, returned last night from a trip to New York. The French envoy, Gaston Henri-Haye, is expected back at his desk today from New York.

The Colombian Ambassador, Dr. Gabriel Turbay, is at the Homestead in Hot Springs, Va. The United States Minister to the Netherlands and Mrs. George A. Gordon are also there and will remain until the middle of October.

Mrs. James Alexander Lyon, of Washington, is at the Ambassador Hotel in New York.

Miss Peggy Harley, sister of Joseph F. Harley 3d, who was injured recently in an automobile accident, has recovered sufficiently so that she will be able to return to Visitation Academy for her final year of school.

Mr. and Mrs. Judson O. Harrison, jr., are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter on Tuesday at Garfield Hospital. Mrs. Harrison is the former Alice Doretta Mullin, of Roanoke, Va.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

AT PETER HEYDON'S cocktail party for Keith Officer the other day the guest of honor was much concerned with problems in mathematics. "How much," he asked plaintively, "does a shirt weigh?" The reason for the querry was that Mr. Officer is going to Japan by air. Half his packing concerned itself with figuring out weights of objects in order to keep within his baggage allowance on the plane.

Leaving Mr. Heydon's apartment after the party Mr. Officer and a group of friends rang for the baggage lift by mistake. When it arrived someone said, "Well Keith, you may as well get used to it. From now until you get to Japan you'll be weighed so much that you'll feel like a piece of baggage anyhow."

Among the friends gathered to say good-by to Australia's pioneer representative to the United States were Miss Irene Boyle, looking very fit after a vacation spent on Long Island with Lady Lindsay (the latter Miss Boyle reports very well); Mrs. Neville Butler, wife of the counselor of the British Embassy; Air Commodore and Mrs. Pirie, the second secretary of the Canadian Legation, and Mrs. Escott Reid, and Mrs. Willem Naude, wife of the attache of the Legation of the Union of South Africa.

CHARMING MRS. CASEY was there, saying that the Minister was still in New York and was so sorry not to be present, and pretty Mrs. Bill Breese, the former Nora Magee, was saying something much, much sadder—that her sister Willa's husband is a prisoner of war in Germany. We immediately began to tease her about her hat by way of cheering her up, if such a counter-irritant could cheer any woman. It was an absolutely plain little black felt jockey cap which a pretty and petite little person like Mrs. Breese could and did wear with chic.

Mrs. Casey spoke of Hugh McClure-Smith, who used to pinch-hit for Sir Willmott Lewis during vacations, and who was so well liked in Washington. Remember, he married a niece of Admiral and Mrs. Luke McNamee? The McClure-Smiths are in Australia where Hugh is editor of Sidney's biggest newspaper, to which he has introduced all sorts of modern innovations. Mrs. Casey reports that the couple are now proud parents and that Mrs. McClure-Smith simply gets prettier every day.

Looking more like an American schoolgirl than the wife of a French diplomat, Mme. Lucet descended from the train the other night after a summer spent on Cape Cod. Dressed in a neat tailleur, her beret pulled jauntily over one eye, she had a very serious expression on her sunburned little face as she vigorously chewed gum and herded her small children off the day coach on which they had been traveling since early morning.

A few minutes later Baroness Bayens got off the train looking equally well, and tanned, also with two children on the leash, and both ladies were engulfed in a group of waiting friends and family.

MRS. MARSHALL EXNICIOS has returned to her home on Tracy place after spending the summer on Long Island. The Exnicios family had a house very near that of Mrs. Christopher Bramwell, the then Mrs. Hugh O'Donnell, and so knew about the plans for the wedding before anyone in Washington got wind of it.

It was very pleasant to sit in the sunshine at Wolf Trap Farm the other afternoon and watch the obedience tests of the Potomac Boxer Club. Mrs. Jouett Shouse is president of the club and has gone in for her new hobby with the efficiency and whole-heartedness that she puts into all her undertakings.

Remarking on the obedience of the well-trained dogs, someone opined that there should be a similar course of training for wives. This got no applause from the feminine guests.

* * * *

The Boxer Club is planning a show for November 3 to take place at the Keith Merrills' house. If the weather is bad the event will be staged inside, in the squash court. Among Washingtonians owning Boxers and interested in the breed are the Minister of Finland, Mrs. Warren Barbour; Mrs. Richard Casey, Lady Lewis, Louis Moss, chairman of the show, and Perk Edwards of the Washington Redskins.

Keith Officer Leaves by Plane For Tokyo Post

Australian Minister And Mrs. Casey Give Him Farewell Dinner

Immediately after the farewell dinner given for him last night by the Australian Minister and Mrs. Richard G. Casey, Keith Officer took a plane to the West Coast. From there the former Counselor of the Legation will take the clipper for his new post in Tokyo.

Gathered to bid him farewell at the dinner were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Emory S. Land, the Counselor of the British Embassy and Mrs. Nevile Butler, the Counselor of the Netherlands Legation and Countess van Rechteren Limpurg, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Acheson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Krock, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McGrath, Henry B. Spencer, Miss Pat Jarrett and Peter Heydon, of the legation staff.

Alan Watt, Mr. Officer's suecessor, is expected to arrive here in about ten days.

Leaders to Aid Red Cross Drive

Women prominent in Washington official and social circles will be in attendance at Red Cross booths in downtown banks, department stores and hotels throughout the annual Red Cross roll call beginning Tuesday, September 24, it is announced by Mrs. Albert N. Baggs, vice chairman of the boothe committee, who is assisting Miss Mabel T. Boardman in directing this first of the membership campaigns.

Miss Boardman, who is national chairman of the volunteer service of the American Red Cross and a veteran of all Washington roll calls, is chairman of the committee for the fifth consecutive year. She has turned the actual direction of the individual booths over to Mrs. Baggs.

For the second consecutive year, a booth will be opened in the lobby of the National Press Club, where uniformed volunteer workers, representing the various Red Cross services will be on duty.

The wives of roll call committee chairmen will operate the Carlton Hotel booth as during the 1938 and 1939 campaign.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Excelsior

I

After years of search I have found the right slip,
The right shade of stockings,
the right make of bra,
The shoes that have ease, and yet do not look
As if they were made for my grandmama.

II

I have finally tracked down a girdle that's perfect, (No dreadnought effect) through combing the town,
And the gloves that will last—
also dry in a jiffy,
The step-ins whose elastic will not let me down.

III

I have through long trial worked out the cosmetics
That suit purse and skin—the perfume that is I.
Yes, I'm ready to live, but it's all taken so long,
That there's nothing to do but to curl up and die.

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

A recruiting drive for the Ladies' Parachute Patrol was opened yesterday at the Plush Sofa Club, the patrol's headquarters. Mrs. Badgerton Bellwether, commander of the patrol, which was disbanded during the summer, said drilling would be resumed in the garden of the Plush Sofa Club at once, and that at least 25 new volunteers would be sought.

"Of course we have to be very careful about the type of women we enlist," said Mrs. Bellwether, so I have appointed Miss Penelope Van Stiff, one of our town's leading social secretaries, to head the recruiting committee which will pass upon applicants. Miss Mehitabel Barnacle, a leading genealogist, also is on the committee, as is also Mrs. Artemus Bingle whose husband is connected with Dun & Bradstreet."

The patrol will entertain at tea tomorrow following an address by Brig. Gen. Marcus Vanderpuffer, retired, on "The Mechanical Technique of Modern Warfare."

Mrs. Beetle's Bit

For the relief of Truthtown socialites, deprived this season of their annual fall grouse hunting in Scotland, Mrs. Bartholomew Beetle, Truthtown's eccentric dowager, is having a clay pigeon alley installed in the basement of her mansion in Belfry Heights.

"I feel that these people should be kept occupied at all costs," said Mrs. Beetle yesterday.

Royal Guests

Mrs. Otis Tinfoil is entertaining at her country estate the Ranee of Podunk, Princess de Broccoli, the Hon. Violette Celeste Pell-Mell, Count Braggadocio, Archduke Theobald, of Oleomargarine; William H. Ruthless, the paper doily king, and Mrs. Ruthless, Miss Diana Brasher, heiress of the chinstrap tycoon, and Sylvester Sappington, son of the late canape czar.

What to Wear

Clothes With Casual, Not 'Dressy' Look, Are Popular at Cocktail Parties Here

Mrs. R. B. Sanz here wears two versions of the cocktail hour costume. Both are costume suits, both equally smart for bridge, tea or luncheon. Simple, chic black wool dresses are under the jackets. Left—A smart red and black coque-trimmed felt to match the red and black plaid jacket. Right—A dashing draped black felt for the Persian-trimmed torso jacket. The importance of daring or witty accessories against simple clothes is a safe rule to follow throughout the wardrobe

Too Much Veiling and Sequins Not in Good Taste; Costume Suit Is Smart

By Marshall Adams

The Post Fashion Editor.

THIS is open season for the cocktail party in Washington. To the new arrival in town, the question of how formally or casually to dress is a real problem.

A Washingtonian to set the novice straight on a course in popularity at the tea or cocktail session is Mrs. R. B. Sanz, better known to her circle of diplomatic Spanish-speaking friends as Senora Eloina de Boisson-Sanz. Poplar with the young married set in town is the former Elaine Boughner and her comments on good form at this 5 to 7 Washington institution are edifying.

"The most successful costume," says the vivid Mrs. Sanz, "is the casual afternoon outfit, not too conscious or cocktail-hourish. An overload of veiling, sequins, flashes of jewels or skin mark the girl as 'tourist,' both at public and private cocktail parties. Mrs. Sanz finds the best possible outfit is not necessarily the little black dress, although it's always reliable.

The costume suit of wool or silk with perhaps the top in contrasting color or a discreet touch of beads, jet or embroidery is quietly noticeable. The dress with jacket banded in fur is very good too, not too conspicuous and perfectly tuned to the professional woman with too many demands on her time to change between office and dates. Nothing is smarter, however, than a fur hat and muff with a simple velveteen dress.

The only sin in dressing for cocktails is overdressing. According to Mrs. Sanz, it's not only safer but cheaper to wear a tailored or dressmaker suit with a crisp touch of white gloves and a fresh boutonnier, exciting jewelry, or maybe a pert, gay little hat, rather than the usual formula of sirenish all black.

The hostess can wear a dinner-length gown for receiving if her party is large or important, or if there is a personage of note whom she is introducing to her guests. If the honor guest is of national importance, and invitations are from 6 to 8 o'clock, even the guests may wear ankle-length gowns, but with no suspicion of decolletage. Thoughtful hostesses often make a rule of appearing at their own parties in street attire for the sake of those who must dash from desk to drinks.

No Rigid Rules

No rigid rules apply to the cocktail hour, according to Mrs. Sanz, except, of course, the necessary courtesy due the hostess in immediately accepting or declining her invitation. If the invitation does not come by phone, as it usually does, it comes by way of a notation penned on a personal calling card—such as, "September 27, tea 4 o'clock," or, "Cocktails, 4 to 7." This appears in the lower corner opposite the address, while the top corner might read, "To meet Melvin Douglas," or, a "Hope you can come." You reply by telephone and present a card upon your arrival if you like. However, cocktail affairs are so informal and often gotten up so quickly in Washington that cards are often the sign of the stickler and the parvenu.

A small mistake the very young self-conscious make is the attempt to juggle a glass, sandwich or snack, a handbag and gloves all at once, says Mrs. Sanz. If a place is not designated for bags, wraps, etc., the guest who has just dropped in for a minute, wears her left glove and holds the right with her left hand, leaving the right free for slight of hand with the drinks.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Listed in 'Who's Who,' and Phi Beta Kappa, Man Of 38 Tries to Storm Girl Into Illicit Affair; He Rages When She Says 'No;' She Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Last January, in a strange way Fate brought a man (38) and me (now 26) together. At the time, it appeared to be nothing more than a passing acquaintanceship. However, after hitting it off very well on our first meeting, we saw each other frequently thereafter for the next ten weeks. Then, when he was finally convinced that I wouldn't surrender to him, he lashed out with some unwarranted, caustic and heart-rending remarks, and took his departure.

Within two months, I was once again my normal self. But I felt profoundly that when the wound to his pride had healed, he would call me again. Early in July he did telephone. We talked together as though there had been no break in the friendship; but his manner of approach made it necessary for me to refuse to see him.

The exchange left me agitated for a time, but again I controlled my inner turmoil. Two months later, he telephoned again. And again we talked as if we had seen each other the day before. He asked what I was doing and I said I had a date. He said he would get in touch with me later, which he did, the next evening. It was decided that we would have a drink together in my studio apartment, where I live alone. Evidently he surmised there would be another tug-o'-war, that I was still determined to resist temptation, because he called back 15 minutes later to pin me down to a "yes" or "no."

He talks very freely over the telephone. I don't; but I refused to give him encouragement. After arguing in circles for 10 minutes, he said he was coming anyway. Trying to be gentle but firm, I said, "All right. But remember—it's your idea." He didn't come—being the somewhat bitter, but extremely sensitive person that he is.

Neither of us knows much of the other's life; except that he knows about a marriage of mine, made at 18, which lasted two weeks and was dissolved by annulment. Since he never wants to talk about himself, I have asked no questions. He has no idea that I know he is listed in "Who's Who" and is a Phi Beta Kappa, etc. He is the type of bachelor who appeals to women generally. And, of course, he was unpleasantly surprised that I never yielded to him. Also, during our ten weeks' friendship, he revealed, indirectly, that he was quite surprised I had never telephoned him.

Although I haven't led a sheltered life, it baffles me that a man of his high caliber seeks only self-gratification from women. Apparently he never intends to marry—but what do you make of this pull toward me, which seems to be stronger than his will power? Do you think a man of 38 could change his pattern of living?—that is, his moral principles? Or is the pattern set?

The feeling I have for him is unlike any I have had or ever will have for another man—stronger, deeper, more yearning—and yet I want to be absolutely honest and open minded in arriving at an objective estimate of him. Thus, I would like your opinions and recommendations. It is my fervent hope that I have made the picture sufficiently clear.

D. C. W.

A Callous Rascal; Dismiss Him From Mind

DEAR D. C. W.: Obviously, the man is what one writer has called, "an impatient debauchee"—and the sooner you outgrow your infatuated interest in him, the better for you. It was bad enough that he should have concentrated (during his 10 weeks' courtship) on trying to break down your moral reserve, for the sole purpose of gratifying his transient, aimless, sensual desire. But it was insult unforgivable—and the revelation of his currently vicious central self, besides—that he should have hurled verbal acid in your face, when finally he learned you were irrevocably committed to honorable behavior.

The superficially decorative fact that he happens to be listed in "Who's Who," and that he "is Phi Beta Kappa, etc.," does nothing at all to balance the scales in his favor, when weighing his human worth. On the contrary, it counts against him (as does his 12 years' seniority), since it proves he is not a fumbling ignoramus, temporarily drunk with emotion, but a deliberately and cruelly conscienceless scoundrel in his dealings with heart-hungry women.

With sufficient mentality to win that much professional eminence and scholastic rating, he has brains and education enough to know what he is doing (or trying to do) in regard to you,—which means that he simply doesn't care what demoralization he might visit upon you, in process of having his way. And that means, in turn, that he can only be evaluated (as our grandmothers would have said) as "a limb of Satan,"—at least, where women are concerned.

You ask if he "could change his pattern of living, his moral principles," at or after his present age. The answer is, perhaps, if inexorably and irresistibly challenged by some living symbol of Good, who were serenely and effortlessly stronger than his erstwhile wavering Will-to-Evil. But he will not relinquish that Will so long as he has hopes, in the special instance, of achieving a self-indulgent compromise with the purer force.

The sort of woman who could redeem his sort of man would be one who compassionately understood his sensual weakness; genuinely pitied him for his spiritual blindness and social stupidity, and nevertheless perceived and affirmed, from a vantage point of psychic aloofness, the latent elements of nobility in his nature that he could yet discover and develop, if he would.

Since you have not displayed such an attitude toward him, instinctively or intuitively, one must assume that you were not destined to be an instrument in his social reclamation; that, rather, if you tolerate him long in your scheme of things, he would have just the opposite effect upon you. So my advice to you is to terminate the relationship, cleanly and finally, as an imperatively necessary self-protective device. If he telephones again, let there be no "arguing in circles." Tell him you have taken and declared your stand, once and for all; there is no more to be said, and goodbye!

The American Weigh Decried After Vacations

By Ida Jean Kain

The salesgirls think the American plan may be largely responsible for the American weight! When madame returns from her sojourn at the summer hotels and gets at her fall shopping, she nearly always finds that the size she took in the spring is a trifle snug!

But usually, we're told, that's the size she buys because she is going to reduce as soon as she can get around to it. And in the meantime she wears a too small frock that advertises her added pounds.

If you're in the same fix and are barely able to squeeze into your proper size, you probably need to take off about 8 pounds, and to trim 1 inch of the waist and the hips. But if you are compelled to go a whole size larger, you need to subtract around 15 pounds of tissue and to take 2 inches off each measurement, bust, waist and hips—maybe 3 inches off the hips.

Difference in Sizes

There is a 2-inch difference between the sizes in ready to wear clothes:

	Bust	Waist	Hips
Size 14	32"	26"	35"-36"
Size 16	34"	28"	37"
Size 18	36"	30"	39"
Size 20	38"	32"	41"

A little calorie curtailment all along the line will take your weight down. You may not have to diet, in the strict sense of the word but merely to delete a few of the extra calories. It is very easy to lose 8 pounds if you put your mind to it, and to lose 15 if you call on your willpower.

Trimming down the inches requires regular exercise—but you need that anyway. And, by the way, you can tell by the fit of our clothes before alterations just which specific exercises are needed most.

A WOMAN'S

WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

FOR THE BENEFIT of sorority rushees, class of '44, President Eleanor Sherburne, of George Washington University's Pan-Hellenic Association offers a few practical suggestions: "Don't talk too much about yourselves during rushing parties.

Eleanor Sherburne

Don't overdress; fussy hats with veils seem to make a particularly bad impression on your prospective sorority sisters. Don't force yourselves on the upperclassmen; they like to feel they're rushing you rather than vice versa."

Belonging to a sorority—and the right one—is important to a student, Miss Sherburne feels, particularly at a large university like George Washington, where one would be lonely without one's own circle of friends and the sorority apartment to go to between classes. A girl who is rushed by more than one group should reserve judgment until she has attended several parties and had a chance to get acquainted with the members of each. Only when she is sure which she finds most congenial should she start refusing invitations from the others.

There are bound to be disappointments in cases where girls set their hearts on one sorority and then fail to make it. Miss Sherburne has a word of encouragement for such students: "Often the second choice turns out better than the first would have."

Two women spent a highly conversational afternoon at Griffith Stadium on Ladies' Day recently. They swapped recipes, dissected mutual friends and paid very little attention to the players. As they stood up during the seventh-inning stretch, one said to the other, "Good game, isn't it? What's the score?"

An automobile bearing DPL tags was double-parked above the intersection of Connecticut and Calvert streets during the 9 a. m. rush. The occupant and his chauffeur, engaged conversation, seemed in no hurry to transact their business, which was delaying one lane of southbound traffic. An impatient bus driver trapped behind the car tooted his horn irritably until a gentleman seated in the rear of the bus called out: "Aw, let the poor guy alone; he may not have a country by tomorrow."

6 Girls Lease House, Make Their Own Home

Cooperative Plan Gives Each a Try at Budgeting; Sunday Breakfast Deluxe Is a Sample of the Meals They Serve

By Martha Ellyn,
The Post Food Editor.

A HOME away from home is the achievement of six girls whose careers have lead them to Washington. Five of the girls—Gretchen Holberg, Wilma Stutzman, Petronella Kessler, Edythe Ketchie, Olive Jensen—are employed by the Government.

Martha Ellyn

The sixth is Bernice Burns, president of the Washington Chapter of Home Economics Women in Business, and interested in other home economics activities.

Bernice, in charge of Kitchen Planning, Electric Institute of Washington, says that this cooperative venture of leasing an eight-room house, complete with solarium and recreation room, is not any more costly than when four girls live in an apartment.

The six girls take turns in budgeting each month. Here is the break-down of their expenditures. Rent, 37 per cent; maid services, 20 per cent; food, 23 per cent; utilities, 8 per cent; laundry, 4 per cent; miscellaneous, 8 per cent.

Have Capable Maid

Much credit is given by the six girls to their capable colored maid, Helen, who plans their menus, makes the market lists and does the shopping. In fact Benice says she fills the role of a housekeeper. The girls prepare their own breakfast, as Helen does not arrive until 9. Every girl uses her own things and if there is any borrowing in emergencies, she replaces the borrowed item as soon as possible. They also sign in and out, so that the last one in can put on the night lock and put out lights.

Gretchen seems to be the most artistic member of the household, so the girls gave her paints and brushes for her birthday and she is brightening the rumpus room by painting silhouettes of each of the girls on the walls. The establishment is in need of bookcases, Bernice says, so they will invest in lumber, hammer and nails and build their own bookshelves.

Down in the recreation room there is a pool table and a ping pong table. In the winter they have a ping pong tournament. Last year Bernice won the honors. She is also the athletic member of the group and goes in for ice skating. On the nights she skates, Helen, the maid, puts the regular dinner into an electric roaster and the food is in prime condition when Bernice comes home.

The girls have a "boarder," Laura Koop. Laura's family is out of the city so she asked if she might join them.

Sunday Breakfast

Bernice is another careerist who thinks that Sunday breakfast is quite an institution, not necessarily for entertaining guests, but for her own "gang." I was fortunate enough to be included in a breakfast of Bernice's planning and executing. It was the kind that will be a teaser for many a Sunday morning appetite, so I have asked Bernice to give me her menu and the recipes for the waffles and shirred eggs which she prepared before her guests in her shining electric waffle iron and chafing dish.

Breakfast Menu

Honeydew melon, chilled with orange and lemon juice.

Corn meal waffles with bacon bits

Scrambled eggs with mushrooms

Coffee, tea, milk

Chill the honeydew melon thoroughly. Before serving, drench with the juices of one orange and one lemon, mixed.

Corn Meal Muffins

Beat 2 eggs and add 1½ cups of milk. Then add 1½ cups cornmeal and ¾ cup flour, 4 teaspons baking powder, 2 tablespoons sugar and 1 teaspoon salt which have been sifted together. Next add 4 tablespoons melted shortening. Beat well and add ¾ pound cooked bacon that has been chopped. Bake in electric waffle iron.

Scrambled Eggs with Mushrooms

Melt 4 tablespoons butter. Roll 1 cup mushrooms, peeled and broken in pieces in flour and add, with ¼ teaspoon onion juice, ¼ teaspoon salt and a few grains cayenne. Cook for about 10 minutes in electric chafing dish. Add 5 eggs, slightly beaten, ½ teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper and cook until eggs are soft and fluffy. Serves 4.

New Uses For Bread

During hot humid weather, mold is less likely to attack bread if the loaf is kept in the refrigerator. Leave it in the wrapper, and close the opened end tightly after slices have been removed for serving. Bread stored in this way will stay fresh for many days.

To neutralize the odor of cabbage while it is cooking, place two or three slices of bread on top of the vegetables. Brussel sprouts and broccoli can also be cooked without odor in the same manner. Discard slices of bread when vegetable is done.

Coffee Insurance

Remember, when you're making coffee, to use water fresh from the tap or water that is freshly boiled. And always use a well scoured and aired coffee pot. If you have been having coffee troubles, check up on these simple points. They may be to blame.

Call to Breakfast

Hot Breads Add Flavor to Fall Meals

Biscuits, Muffins, Coffee Cakes Are All Tempting

By The Post Food Editor

Pineapple Coffee Cake

$2.00 Prize

Miss Helen Richter,
24 Rhode Island avenue northeast

Recipe: Sift 2 cups flour once before measuring. Sift flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons sugar all together. Cut in 1-3 tablespoon shortening with a pastry blender, or two knives, until finely blended. Blend in one well-beaten egg, mixed with 2-3 cup milk. Pour into a well-greased baking pan. Soften 2 tablespoons butter and add 2 tablespoons honey and ½ cup well-drained crushed pineapple and mix well. Spread pineapple mixture over the dough. Bake in 8-inch pan 30 minutes at 400 degrees.

Whole Wheat-Date Biscuits

$1.00 Prize

Mrs. Albert Day,
Auburn avenue,
Bethesda, Md.

Recipe: Sift together 1 cup white flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt and 3 tablespoons sugar. Then add ⅞ cup whole wheat flour and cut in 3 tablespoons butter. Stir in enough of 2-3 of a cup of milk to make a soft dough. Add ¾ cup chopped dates. Toss the dough onto a lightly floured board. Roll to ¾ an inch thick. Cut with a small floured cutter and place on baking sheet. Bake in over of 400 degrees for 15 minutes.

Contestants Offer Innovations in 5 Prize Recipes

Brazil Nut Apricot Bread

Mrs. Bernard J. Oliver,
4704 Chevy Chase boulevard,
Chevy Chase, Md.

Recipe: Soak ½ cup dried apricots ½ hour, drain and grind. Beat 1 egg until light, stir in 1 cup sugar and mix well. Stir in 2 tablespoons melted butter. Sift 2 cups bread flour with 3 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon soda and ¼ teaspoon salt and add alternately with ½ cup orange juice and ½ cup water. Add 1 cup chopped Brazil nuts and the apricots and mix well. Pour batter into well-greased loaf pan and bake in moderate oven, 350 degress, for 1¼ hours.

Pecan Shortbreads

Mrs. Grace F. Hiehle,
3422 South Dakota avenue northeast

Recipe: Cream ½ pound butter and 6 tablespoons sugar. Add 2 1-3 cups sifted cake flour, sifted 3 times. Add 1 tablespoon milk. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla extract and 2 cups pecan meats, chopped coarsely. Toss on floured board, flour the hands and knead for 2 minutes. Roll dough lightly and form into balls, 1 inch in diameter. Arrange on a cooky sheet. Place in cold oven, set temperature at 300 degrees. Bake for 50 minutes. Remove from oven and roll in powdered sugar.

New Polaroid Lamp Found Easy on Eyes

Practical and Simple In Design, and Light Is Restful

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

Quite a commentary for modernization progress in America is the new catalog of a large mail order house. Two pages are devoted to lamps, half of them oil, half electric! But just because you have the luxury of electricity, don't get smug about your lighting, for according to actual light meter tests, very few of us work by anything like adequate reading light even if it is electric. That's bad enough for us oldsters but it's unforgivable for the youngsters. So conscientious parents are thinking pretty seriously about study lamps these early fall days, for school days mean study nights.

Light Without Glare

A sight for sore eyes is a new study lamp providing polaroid light, that restful no-glare illumination, at a price that really makes it easy to afford—around $3. It's simple in design, practical and, of course, very easy on the eyes. The new fluorescent lighting is also available in study lamps now, these are somewhat more expensive, but highly desirable for close work.

Those fine indirect type of lamps with three-way control are still the top favorites, however, for they're reasonably priced and have the full approval of the Illuminating Engineering Society to whose specifications these lamps are built. This type of lamp is available in study models that are excellent for school age lighting.

Planning Necessary

In thinking about adequate light, it is well to look into the matter more thoroughly than just to skip through your pet lamp department and tell them to "charge and send" something that looks all right. Is the house wired adequately to enable you to get the best use of the lamps you have? This means plenty of places to plug in, not to mention a satisfactory basic plan of permanent wall fixtures.

Cook's Library

By MARTHA ELLYN

"BETTER MEALS FOR LESS MONEY," by Hazel Young, who is also the author of "The Working Girl Must Eat," is a cookbook written in a light and gay manner, yet it is eminently practical. The author shows how to point up meals. In the way she suggests, you balance meals and yet remember the psychology of color. You are reminded of the girl who buys a hat from the corner milliner for $1.95, and then with a twist or two makes it look like a creation.

This cooking manual, including 148 menus and 300 recipes, tells how to prepare meals that are attractive and tempting but also economical. The author suggests that the homemaker play fair with the recipes by watching market prices. So if you want a guide to meals satisfying to the stomach, pleasing to the eye and easy on the pocketbook, I suggest that you get this helpful book if you are interested in a way to lick the food budget. Publishers, Little, Brown & Co. Price $1.75.

"COOKING FOR TWO," by Janet McKenzie Hill, revised by Marjorie Mills and Sally Larkin, is the ideal handbook for the inexperienced cook. Carefully selected menus and recipes, from simple breakfast and luncheon to small, formal dinner, are included. The chapter, "To Market, to Market," simplifies the task of economical buying. The special sections on Sea Food Dinners, Quickly Prepared Dinners, and Late Evening Suppers will appeal to both expert and novice. There is also new material on using leftovers—a problem that arises in small-family buying. The chapter, "The Cook In the Kitchen," tells all about ranges and other cooking appliances, the utensils needed for kitchen and pantry, tables of weights and measures, "Household Management" is a chapter that covers such subjects as a routine schedule, dishwashing, care of silver, washing and stretching curtains, care of furniture, insect pests, stain removal, etc. Publishers, Little, Brown & Co. Price, $2.

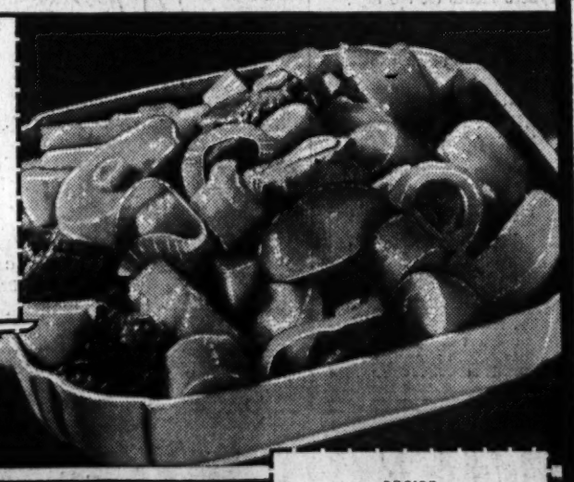
Frozen Fruit Cubes

Frozen fruited cubes make your chilled tall drinks taste better. Pour tart fruit beverage into a tray of the refrigerator. When it's half-frozen, stick fresh mint leaves and small wedges of sliced lemons in each section, or use minted green cherries and red cherries combined with thin slices of orange. Freeze and use for chilling the beverage. Spiced tea cubes give delicious flavor to ice tea. Fill the tray with strong cold tea. When half-frozen place a whole clove and fresh mint leaf in in each section and freeze.

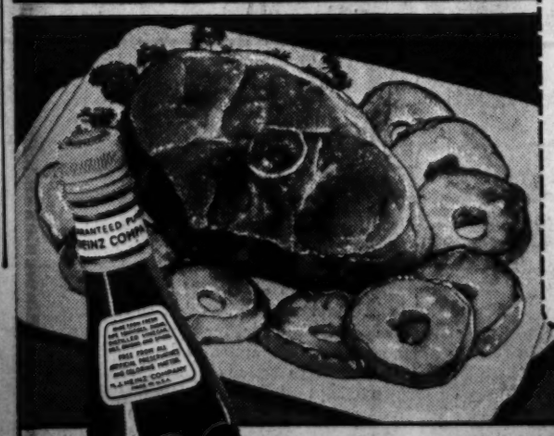
HIP-O-LITE

MAKE OLD "STAND-BY" DISHES TASTE DELICIOUSLY DIFFERENT

RECIPE
QUICK SKILLET STEW
● Brown 2 lbs. round steak, cut in one-inch cubes, in 4 tbs. fat. Stir in 2 tbs. flour. Add 3 cups of hot water, 3 medium carrots cut in pieces, 1 medium onion sliced, 1 tbs. salt, ⅛ tbs. Heinz Pure Cider Vinegar and ⅓ cup Heinz Ketchup. Simmer until carrots are half done. Add 4 potatoes, diced. Cook until tender. (4 servings.) Note: 2 cups cooked leftover diced meat may be used for steak.



RECIPE
HAM WITH KETCHUP SAUCE
● Fry 1 thick slice of ham slowly till brown. Combine ¼ cup Heinz Tomato Ketchup, ¾ cup cold water, 1 tbs. Heinz Cider Vinegar, 2 tsp. flour, 1 tsp. sugar, ½ tsp. Heinz Prepared Brown or Yellow Mustard. Pour over ham. Simmer on top of stove or bake in moderate oven (350° F.) half hour—turning once. Serve ham topped with sauce and garnished with fried apple rings.



DRESS UP your favorite dishes with the dashing, robust zest of Heinz Tomato Ketchup—and hear the family cheer! The full-bodied flavor and racy color of this mouth-watering ketchup make plain foods taste marvelous. For it's cooked the country-kitchen way—from Heinz pedigreed tomatoes, our aged-in-wood vinegar and Heinz-selected spices. Try it in gravies—on steaks and chops. It's so rich a little bit works wonders with your cooking!

Physicists Find Way to Create U-235's Twins

New Isotopes Offer No Hope of Atomic Power at Present

By Howard W. Blakeslee,
Associated Press Science Editor.

Philadelphia, Sept. 19.—A new source of atomic power—creation of artificial uranium—was announced today at a nuclear-physics symposium at the bicentennial celebration of the University of Pennsylvania.

This new uranium apparently would do the same thing as the extremely rare form of natural uranium, known as U-235, 1 pound of which would equal 5,000,000 pounds of coal.

This possibility of creating chemical "power" elements which do not exist in nature brought information that Germany and Japan are in a race with the United States in this scientific endeavor.

Several physicists said in private conversations they had heard that 20 or more of Germany's best physicists had been assigned to the problem. Shortly before the war, one speaker said, German physicists were in the United States apparently picking up information about nuclear physics.

Uranium is the earth's heaviest metal. It has isotopes of different atomic weights, principally 238 and 235. The U-235, however, is very rare, in the ratio of 1 pound to every 140 pounds of ordinary uranium, and, so far as is known, no scientist has yet learned how to separate it in useful quantities.

Today's development concerned 238, the common uranium available in unlimited quantity at $2 a pound. Dr. Enrico Fermi, Italy's famous physicist, now at Columbia University, told of two recent discoveries by which 238 is converted into two synthetic forms of uranium, both of which may be expected to disintegrate or explode like U-235.

Fermi, himself, did not discuss the atomic power possibilities. He credited discovery of the artificial uranium to Edwin M. McMillan, of the University of California, and Nishina, a Japanese scientist.

One of these artificial forms of uranium has the atomic weight 239, the other 237. To make them at present requires a cyclotron, a huge apparatus with magnets weighing scores, and sometimes hundreds of tons. The cyclotron is necessary to produce neutrons, which are elementary particles of electrical matter, to bombard the uranium.

One of the visiting physicists said Germany either has or is building a cyclotron. Cyclotrons are an American invention and the fact that Germany may have them has not been advertised.

The practical obstacles to using this synthetic metal for atomic power are, at present, greater than those of extracting the natural U-235. But the discovery that new "power" atoms may be created by man is significant.

Taxes Due, Bill Or No Bill, Dent Warns Owners

Tax Assessor Edward Dent yesterday warned property owners that failure to receive a real estate tax bill will not excuse delinquent payments. The first half payment is due this month.

This is the first year the assessor's office has mailed out bills and the fact there are some 150,000 property owners in the city has made it impossible to compile a complete address system this year.

Failure to pay the first half of the 1941 bill this month will result in a 1 per cent per month penalty. Dent said any property owner who has not received his bill should notify his office, either in person or by mail, as promptly as possible. The second half payment is due March, 1941.

Two Leaders Of Murder Ring Convicted

New York, Sept. 19 (INS).—Martin (Buggsy) Goldstein and Harry (Pittsburgh Phil) Strauss, members of Brooklyn's cut-rate murder syndicate, were convicted of first-degree murder which carries the death penalty by a jury late today.

The jurors, who deliberated nearly 2½ hours, found that the pair killed Irving (Puggy) Feinstein, a small-time hoodlum on Labor Day of 1939.

The prosecution had branded branded Goldstein and Strauss two of the leading hoodlums in the contract murder gang.

Maj. Brown Orders School Safety Survey

Calls Protection Of Children One of Force's Chief Duties

By John Singerhoff
Post Staff Writer

A personal survey of school locations and street intersections adjacent to them for the purpose of assigning policemen to safeguard school children was ordered of his precinct commanders yesterday by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

Brown said his order was in line with his policy of "affording the fullest possible measure of protection" to school children.

In the two-page order, the police chief, in effect, ordered his men to "drop everything" to assist children to their destination in safety.

Applies On or Off Duty

"Whether on or off duty and regardless of the character of your assignment," the order read, "you will be alert at all times in safeguarding the children. Wherever a child or a group of children are observed at any point of congestion, regardless of the hour, time or occasion, it shall be the duty of the Metropolitan Police Department to assist such child or children."

All members of the department, whenever the opportunity presents itself, should stress to the children the importance of exercising care and promoting safety, Brown said.

"The service performed by this department in connection with safeguarding the children," Brown's order said, "is one of the most important duties, and commanding officers will from time to time visit the schools and confer with principals and teachers, that there may be a full cooperation between school authorities and this department."

Brown also ordered each captain to assign a private to supervise the work of the school boy patrols.

Broadcast Instructions

Police radio dispatchers were commanded to broadcast instructions with reference to promoting safety to the force at different periods of the day.

"Each year changes are made in schools," Brown declared. "New schools are opened and street improvements are made which necessitate the changing of the locations for the assignment of policemen.

"Precinct commanders will make an immediate personal survey of their respective precincts and establish a list of locations of all public, parochial and private schools and compile and maintain an up-to-date list of such schools, listing street intersections contiguous to these schools to which policemen should be assigned as far as possible."

Seal Rejects New Traffic Court Plan

Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal yesterday turned "thumbs down" on proposals of Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the new police "crash" squad, to speed Traffic Court prosecutions by eliminating preliminary hearings in accident cases.

On Wednesday, Miller announced plans—under a new accident investigation program to start Sunday—to do away with accident hearings before Seal's assistants in Police Court. Yesterday, Seal moved swiftly to spike the plans by issuing written instructions to his assistants ordering them to "continue the procedure now in effect."

There the matter rests, but last night Miller said he expected there would be "no conflict" once his program is underway. He said the plan to abolish hearings had the indorsement of Seal's assistants in Police Court.

Meant to Save Time

In accident cases involving law violations, Miller proposes to have only the investigating policemen appear before the assistant corporation counsels to present evidence. In the past, policemen, principals in the accidents and witnesses have been summoned to the preliminary inquiry.

"The whole thing is in the interest of time," Miller said last night. "The assistant corporation counsels in Police Court can get a clear picture from testimony by the investigating officers, and they won't have to waste a lot of time listening to all the other witnesses."

Miller, however, agreed with Seal that sufficient evidence should be presented so the assistant corporation counsels may determine whether cases warrant the placing of charges and further presentation in Traffic Court.

Before announcing his plan, Miller said he conferred with Seal's Police Court assistants and Presiding Judge John P. McMahon.

"They were highly pleased with the idea," Miller said.

Seek More Prosecutions

Under Miller's proposal, investigating policemen, after a careful inquiry at accident scenes, would present the evidence to the assistant corporation counsel's office without summoning other witnesses. If, after the officers' testimony, Miller pointed out, the prosecutor who hears the case still wants more evidence, the drivers involved and other witnesses will be summoned.

"If the assistant corporation counsel then issues papers, that's all right. If he doesn't, that's all right, too," Miller said.

Aim of the new setup, the inspector declared, is to produce more prosecutions in accident cases with a minimum of wasted time.

Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen and J. Russell Young said they had not been notified of the proposed new plan, but would ask Police Supt. Ernest W. Brown for an explanation.

Miller's new accident investigation unit will begin operations at 8 a. m. Sunday.

Lithuanian Maids Splash Into Social Season

SPLASH PARTY—By way of starting their social season, the entertainment committee of the American Lithuanian Society last night staged a splash party in the Ambassador Hotel pool. Among the more than 25 members who raced with candles and eggs in spoons were (left to right) Ruth Weiksner, Helen Chepolis, Leonora Sienuta, Mrs. Helen Peterson, Bertha Zebris, Barbara Greatchus and Mary Andrulonis

Citizens Hit Delay in Razing Old School

Southwest Group Sees a Menace To Children

The Southwest Citizens Association's executive committee last night protested the delay in demolishing buildings located on two blocks adjoining the new Jefferson High School as constituting a "dangerous menace to the safety of school children who will inevitably play in the area."

The area will become the site of a playground "in a section of the Southwest that has needed playground facilities for a long time," in the words of Harry S. Wender, association president. The executive committee met last night at his home, 1414 Third street southwest.

It was recommended that Southwest church and civic groups join in a Halloween celebration and that the Board of Education urge its schools to give instruction in anti-vandalism preceding the day.

The group strongly urged additional police protection in Precinct 4 where new Government buildings are under construction.

Support of the District's plan of conscription was voiced by the committee, which offered to cooperate in the work.

FCA Accountant, Shot to Death, Found in His Car

The body of a 35-year-old Farm Credit Administrator accountant, a bullet through his temple, was found last night on the floor of his automobile in the rear garage of his home, 2 Manor Circle, Takoma Park.

Mrs. Gladys Burrows, who works in the Agricultural Department, returned home last evening and discovered the body of her husband, Addison E. Burrows, 35. She summoned the rescue squad of Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department, who found a pistol under the body in the rear of the Burrows sedan.

Burrows was last seen at 10 a. m. yesterday. His wife said Burrows was worried about a recent change in his job.

Workers for Blind Reelect Thomas

David Scott Thomas was re-elected president of the District Association of Workers for the Blind for the third consecutive term last night at a meeting of the organization at Epiphany Parish House.

Other officers elected were Carl Allensworth, vice president; Mrs. Grace Thompson, recording secretary; Miss Charlotte Gartland, corresponding secretary; B. L. Frisbie, treasurer; Mrs. Addie Sexton, financial secretary; Miss Alice Rohrback, Mrs. Rose Waple, and John Paul Jones, members-at-large. All of the officers except Miss Gartland and Mrs. Sexton are blind.

Irish Veterans Favor Forming Home Guard

Convention in D. C. Strongly Supports Defense Program

Resolutions strongly supporting the national defense program and urging establishment of a veterans' home guard will be offered today to the fifth annual convention of the Irish War Veterans at the Annapolis Hotel. The resolutions committee, working on the documents last night, were reported seeking "the strongest possible wording" on those questions.

With John L. Coyle, of Philadelphia, national commander, presiding, the veterans held formal business sessions yesterday. Formation of active committees was begun under direction of National Junior Vice Commander George L. Cassiday, of Washington.

Tomorrow Commander Coyle, assisted by the guard of honor, will lay a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery. The annual mustering-in ceremony will be held today at 10 a. m.

Officers will be elected tomorrow at 10 a. m., after which business sessions will be adjourned. The annual dinner and dance will be tomorrow night.

Gen. Rafel Trujillo Arrives at Legation

Gen. Rafael Trujillo, former Dominican President, arrived at the Dominican Legation here yesterday and will stay a week. His yacht, the Ramfis, is docked at the Navy Yard.

Trujillo, who visited Washington last year, will hold a press conference today, the legation said.

House Told Milk Probe Went 'Wrong'

Rep. Gross Replies To Schulte's Charge, But Doesn't Mention Him by Name

The House was told yesterday by Representative Gross (Republican), of Pennsylvania, that the only thing wrong with the District Committee's milk investigation a year ago was "that the trail led to the front door of the wrong party."

Gross spoke in rebuttal to a speech made last Thursday by Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, who charged that the committee had been "sold down the river." He did not mention Schulte by name but attempted to ridicule some of the charges against the local dairy industry by him.

Admits Price Too High

"During the last few years we have heard charges and counter-charges of bootlegging here in the Capital," Gross said, "and let me say right here that the milk problems of Washington are no different than they are in every municipality in the country. The same tactics have been used wherever milk has been sold, at some time or other."

Gross admitted that the retail price of milk in Washington is too high, but called attention to the 11-cent milk now on sale at chain groceries and to the 5-cent relief milk.

Quoting figures from reports of the Health Department, Gross declared that as the standard of milk was raised in the District the infant mortality rate was cut in half.

"I am asking you to judge for yourself whether or not it was worth while," he added.

Skeptical of Investigations

Gross said it was not true that many farmers in his district want to sell milk in Washington. District sanitary regulations are such, he explained, that it would not be worth their while to build new barns to comply. Gross is a dairy farmer himself.

Recalling that Schulte had suggested an investigation of the local milk market by the Federal Trade Commission, Gross described an inquiry conducted in Philadelphia by Judge H. W. Hildrop, of Tennessee, for the commission. The court was given to frequent recesses, he said, and the investigation, which cost $1,000,000, merely recommended a further inquiry.

"I am reliably informed and willing to believe that the commission is better handled today," he added.

Officials to Inspect Thomas Jefferson Junior High School

At 10 a. m. today, District officials will make a final inspection of the new Thomas Jefferson Memorial Junior High School and library, Seventh and H streets southwest. The plant cost $800,000.

Work on the project started August 28, 1939. The school portion of the building is completed and the library wing is expected to be completed about the first week in October.

Col. David McCoach, jr., will head the party of officials which will include Maj. Beverly C. Snow, assistant engineer commissioner; Capt. John L. Person, assistant engineer commissioner; Nathan C. Wyeth, Municipal Architect; Archie G. Hutson, chief inspector, of office of municipal architect and representatives of the Board of Education. T. Nelson Jeffress, of Jeffress-Dyer, Inc., contractors for the building, also will be present.

D. C. Lawyers Join Inter-American Bar

The 1,350 lawyers in the District Bar Association became members of the Inter-American Bar Association, organization for the correlation of Western Hemisphere legal interests, yesterday, when Francis W. Hill, jr., local president, signed a charter for the unit.

Others present at the ceremony in Hill's office in the Woodward Building were William Roy Vallance, secretary-general of the international association, and Wilbur Gray, secretary of the District Bar group.

Man Drowns As Speedboat Hits Scow

Pleasure Craft Sinks in Potomac; Victim's Companion Rescued by Tug

A Washington man was drowned last night and a second man was rescued in the Potomac when their speedboat collided with a fleet of scows 500 feet off Bellevue wharf.

Charles Robbins, 37, of 1333 Ridge place southeast, who was rescued by a tugboat, identified the dead man as Frank Grady, about 45, and a bricklayer by trade. Grady's address was not immediately available.

The tragedy occurred when Robbins' 26-foot speedboat sank after crashing against a scow leading a fleet of six, all being towed down the river by the Smoot Sand and Gravel Corporation tugboat T. G. Herbert.

According to Capt. James J. Garcia, master of the tugboat, the crash took place despite the fact that the speedboat, tugboat and scows had lights and that he had sounded a warning on approach of the speedboat.

The tugboat crew immediately rescued Robbins, who had managed to grab a life-preserver, but were unable to find Grady's body in an hour's search. Capt. Garcia said he believed Grady might have been trapped by one of the scows on rising to the surface of the river.

Robbins, also a bricklayer, was taken to the Smoot wharf at Half and Q streets southeast, and from there rushed to Emergency Hospital, where he was treated for immersion, a gash over an eye, and an elbow injury.

Robbins told Capt. Garcia that he and Grady had left the Old Dominion Boat Club, Alexandria, and were heading for the Nash wharf on Maine avenue southwest. He said that Grady was operating the speedboat at the time of the tragedy.

Bellevue wharf is on the grounds of the Naval Research Laboratory at the southern tip of Anacostia. Alexandria is directly across the river.

Mickey Rooney Takes Over the Capitol Stage

Erstwhile 'Andy Hardy' Proves Topnotch Entertainer With Own Songs and Mimicry; Wallace Beery in 'Wyoming' on the Screen

By Richard L. Coe
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell

ONE OF OUR RAREST entertainers showed why he is king of the American box-office yesterday when Mickey Rooney took over F street in general and the Capitol Theater in particular. Over 17,000 people packed the Capitol for yesterday's five shows, breaking the house record he had set with Judy Garland when they were here for one day over a year ago. What had captured this unprecedented adulation is the simple fact that young Mickey Rooney is a good and versatile entertainer.

Which is probably the simplest thing that's ever been said about this astonishing combination of inherent genius and a lifetime of theatrical experience. Whether he's imitating two fellow film stars at once, singing one of his own songs, whanging the drums for "China Boy," or simply talking to his audience, his personality reaches those watching him so instinctively that everything seems directed at each of his watchers individually.

What's more when a performer's audience is won already by half a hundred well-liked films, that performer has everything to lose if he doesn't come up to expectations. The story of the barnstorming film favorite with nothing to offer but a reputation is too tragically familiar to be reiterated. But the Rooney fellow has nothing in common with them.

Perhaps what this reporter enjoyed most about the Rooney routine was that spot early in his act when he sang his own song, "Love's Got Nothin' on Me," a swingy ditty that's got ginger that should sell itself without its composer singing it. It's certainly as good as most of the Hit Parade's first ten.

Laugh spot of the Rooney routine is his miming of Madison Square Garden's microphoners the night of the Louis-Paycheck fight. He's got all of the voices for that one and if you close your eyes when Clem McCarthy clips along, you'll relish it even more. He also does that Clark Gable-Lionel Barrymore duologue he did in "Babes in Arms." With pert Judy Starr as his partner he offers a nice boy-girl number. Before he attacks the drums for "China Boy" he pianos his own "Have a Heart."

From all of which you're supposed to have the idea that Mickey Rooney is a show in himself. There are others in his revue, though, among them the amusing Four Lazanders, decorative Dancers Robinson and Martin, Master-of-ceremonies Jack Beekman and the wee Miss Starr, a songstress with a style of her own.

Between Rooney workouts, the Capitol is offering a Wallace Beery film, "Wyoming," a Western tale of the law and order set-up that rates about medium. If you like Beery, you'll love this one; if you don't, its irritation will be relieved by another personality, Marjorie Main, who's always been outstanding as landladies or as a ranch gal (as she was in "The Women.")

Long-faced, drawly Miss Main is a lady blacksmith in this one; she's sweet on Beery, thinks he's the handsomest man she ever saw, helps him clean up Sweetwater Valley and is Beery's best partner since Marie Dressler. Gen. Custer and his boys are of assistance in it, too, what with Indians and evil Joseph Calleia. So long as you realize you'll get Beery's traditional, unabashed semtimentality and Bob Watson's sad moo face, you'll know what to expect of "Wyoming."

But Mickey Rooney on the stage is the Capitol's best bet of the year and you'll be lucky to get a seat.

CUNEIFORMS OFF THE CUFF: "The Howards of Virginia" remains for a second week at the Earle. In it is the year's top femme discovery: Martha Scott . . . Two new ones today: "Hired Wife," with Rosalind Russell and Brian Aherne, at Keith's and "Mystery Sea ~~Raider~~," with Schumann-Heink's son, Ferdinand, playing a German sea captain, at the Columbia . . . When the curtain goes up at the National for "Pins and Needles" Monday, "Life with Father" opens at the Maryland in Baltimore, the third time for that town on the road to New York to see the Clarence Day classic . . . while in E street the legit faces an uncertain season and F street reaps the rewards of a paradise where they don't have that Child Labor Law . . . The cast of Roadside's "The Frog" sees the film version of the Edgar Wallace thriller at Bethesda's Hiser Sunday and Monday, their "East Lynne" having closed the barn season tomorrow night . . . nice tense involvement, but do you get the idea?

Box-Office King Rules F Street

MICKEY ROONEY
the juvenile star whose box-office rating is the country's highest, opened a week's engagement on the Capitol Theater stage yesterday, an occasion for long queues down both F and Fourteenth streets

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Sept. 19.

ERROR: John Gunther, who left for his "Inside South America" trip a few days ago, made his farewells with Whit Burnett, editor of Story Magazine, who was at Gunther's side when the author had left for Europe to write "Inside Europe" and the Orient to write "Inside Asia." Burnett had just finished reading the issue of Fashion Magazine, in which Frances Gunther wrote a glowing article about her husband, called "Inside Gunther" . . . "I read that piece carefully," said Burnett, "and I noticed some discrepancies. If you saw the manuscript, why didn't you correct them?" . . . "I saw the manuscript, but I didn't correct them because Frances and I believe in freedom of the press," Gunther confessed. "And, besides—I liked them."

LYONS

TRIUMPH: One of the prize ambitions of many young men in America is to possess the private telephone number of Hedy Lamarr. Realization of that ambition came to Lou Minding, of the Music Corporation of America. He went to Hollywood last month, on a business missiin, met Miss Lamarr at a party and secured her private phone number . . . Triumphant, he returned to New York, and boasted of this accomplishment to all his unmarried friends. But it aroused no envy—only disbelief. None of them will believe that Minding really has Hedy's phone number—and the defiant Lou refused to waste $6 in a phone call which would prove his assertion.

SOLUTION: John Fante, author of the new novel, "Dago Red," prefers to spend his time with the impoverished people with whom he was raised and of whom he always writes. He feels that he always will be one of them, despite all social change . . . A San Francisco economist told Fante of a new plan he had for curing the ills of the world. "We'll eliminate gold as the basis of exchange," was the plan, "and let every one anufacture his own money—all of it good" . . . "That wouldn't effect me," said Fante, "because you know me—I'd be manufacturing dimes."

NEWS: Vivien Leigh tells the story of how—after their secret wedding, at which the attendants had only two hours' notice, every arrangement, including the switching of cars to evade any possible pursuers, was made to assure absolute secrecy—Laurence Olivier turned on the radio, and listened to the news broadcast. The program contained only that news which concerned the war and the Presidential campaign . . . The next day Olivier tuned in again—and again he heard nothing except news about Europe, Roosevelt and Willkie. He tried a third broadcast, and again the news was confined to war and election . . . The groom, who had so successfully arranged the secrecy they craved, switched off the radio, and muttered: "Why don't they give REAL news?"

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

New York, Sept. 19 (INS).—If Ida Lupino isn't the leading femme star of next season it won't be because two of our biggest studios aren't giving her plenty of opportunity. Yes, I said two studios for yesterday Twentieth Century-Fox made an agreement with Warners to share Ida's contract. When you consider that the little Lupino girl was doing supporting roles (and not too important ones at that) no less than six months ago—it's really news when two of our biggest companies plan to star her in important pictures.

PARSONS

Warners still have the inside track on the Lupino services, having signed her for three pictures a year after "They Drive By Night." The Twentieth Century-Fox deal is for only one film a year—But what a contract it is. Darryl Zanuck has not only agreed that the little Lupino will be starred above any other member of the cast, but she also has the right to pass on scripts and select her own stories. Amusing to remember that the last time Ida was on that lot she didn't get billing at all with Richard Greene and Basil Rathbone in "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes."

Snapshots of New York and Hollywood collected at random: Talk around town is that Helen Morgan is secretly married to Dr. Frank Nolan; like old home week at the Stork Club where Jack Harris' orchestra is playing. Sherman Billingsley in excellent health was gladhanding everybody; Arline Judge is the only girl in New York to own a full-length platina fox coat. It was given to her by Huntington Hartford, her heartbeat. Arline leaves for the coast in a few days; "Honey Chile" Wilder and Al Bloomingdale dancing about; Virginia Peine waved to me as she rumbaed past my table with Walter Hershon, whom New Yorkers say she'll marry; chatted with Maury Paul (Cholly Knickerbocker), who was with Mr. and Mrs. James Farley and Mrs. Anthony Drexel Biddle, whose husband was Ambassador to Poland when war broke out; Glenda Farrell dancing with her son. He is taller than she is and very good-looking.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Sept. 19.

The Pomona sneak preview of "Philadelphia Story" was a bit of all right. Constant laughter and applause of the audience was music to the ears of Metro's biggies. The trend to American entertainment for Americans is realized in this one, even though Cary Grant is in it. Jimmy Stewart never misses. If they call Hepburn poison at the box office after this, then we all might just as well give up. Funniest sight of the evening was Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier signing preview cards in the lobby of the theater. No, I didn't see what they wrote on 'em.

HOPPER

Ganna Walska, once Mrs. Harold McCormick, has been visiting here for months, reducing for a New York social season. She drives in a fabulous open yellow car, with chauffeur who's too lazy to get out and open the door. She gets in, opens a huge umbrella (of which she has about two dozen in different colors) and off they go. She's never been seen without that emerald weighing 157 karats, either on her chest or stuck in one of her ornate turbans, of which she has more than Frederics.

Carole Lombard, on first day's shooting in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," was getting herself done up with special hairdo, when Director Alfred Hitchcock came along and said, "What are you up to?"

"Well, aren't you going to take a closeup?" asked Carole.

"Sure," replied Hitchy, "but I don't want your hair. I'm going to get your right eye and the bridge of your nose. Let your hair alone."

That slow-moving colored man who works for Oscar Homolka suddenly became a model of speed and efficiency, and when Oscar asked how come, he replied, "When I sees Miss Dietrich, I sticks the match of enthusiasm to the fuse of energy—an' jus' naturally explodes."

VARIETY raves ...the trade paper of show business calls MICKEY ROONEY illegal! ... There ought to be a law against kids like Mickey Rooney. He's too good, too talented, too amazing; parents will probably go home and beat their offspring after getting a load of this phenomenal jack-of-all-trades from Hollywood. On the screen, he may be Andy Hardy, Tom Edison or just plain Mickey Rooney. On the stage he's a one-man vaude show. The squirt does everything, and does it well; he writes songs and sings them; he takes off Clark Gable, Lionel Barrymore and Clem McCarthy within an inch of their styles; he plays the drums like a Gene Krupa and the piano like Eddy Duchin; dances like a miniature Jack Donahue; cups an audience in his hand like a combination of Jack Benny and Eddie Cantor, and beats his brains to see that the mob gets its money's worth. Seemingly there's never been another youngster, either in flesh or celluloid, like him, and whatever the Capitol's paying Rooney this week isn't enough. He's the seven wonders of show biz. Free Lunches Ready For School Opening

A typical school lunch—plate of soup, whole wheat bread, butter, piece of cheese, peaches and milk.

Free lunches will be given 10,000 needy children in public and parochial schools when the new season opens Monday, it was announced yesterday by Paul Edwards, local WPA administrator.

Sponsored by the WPA, Board of Public Welfare and the Board of Education, the school lunch program is expected to be expanded this year. David Miller, head of the local surplus commodities agency, said yesterday he had sent a special questionnaire to principals of all schools for information regarding the number of needy children enrolled.

During the last school year, free lunches were distributed at 85 schools to a total of 8,200 needy children. Eight of the school were parochial schools.

Since the free-lunch program was inaugurated on December 5, 1935, as a WPA project, 6,074,121 meals have been served.

FROM SURPLUS COMMODITIES CORPORATION COMES THE FOOD FOR SCHOOL LUNCHES

The central kitchen is located at 1640 Wisconsin avenue northwest, where experienced cooks and dieticians prepare the meals. Some 204 workers are employed. Ten trucks deliver the food, ready to be served at the lunch period.

A typical lunch consists of a plate of soup, whole wheat bread with butter, white bread with apple butter, a piece of cheese, peaches and a bottle of milk. There is always fruit with the meal.

AT THE CENTRAL KITCHEN EXPERIENCED COOKS AND DIETICIANS PREPARE THE MEALS

Last year the surplus commodities agency sent to the lunch project 698,778 pounds of food, which had a value of $53,739.52. Some of the commodities supplied were butter, dry skim milk, fruit, cereal, corn meal, graham and white flour and canned peaches.

The central kitchen has been supplied with new stock pots to speed production. The program of free lunches is a year-round project, some 65 schools being supplied with food during the summer for children on the playgrounds.

SMELL THE BACON FRYING?

Indians and Tigers—Tied for Lead—Play Today

Embattled Clevelanders Defeat Nats

Leonard Outpitches Smith but Loses, 3-1, on Bad Plays; Welaj Hits Homer

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Cleveland, Sept. 19.—A grim gang of Cleveland Indians backed up the pitching of ancient Al Smith with spectacular fielding feats today and wrested a 3-1 victory from Washington's Dutch Leonard to hold to a share of the league lead.

Leonard and his knucle ball limited the weak-hitting Indians to six hits, but they capitalized on two Washington errors to drive home the winning runs and then staved off the Nats' attack on Smith with three double plays and a pair of superb outfield catches.

Despite their triumph, the Indians' half game lead vanished before the charge of the Tigers at Detroit, where they won a double-header from the Athletics, 13-2 and 10-2, to create a tie for the league leadership. The first division standings as of tonight:

	Won	Lost	Games Behind	To Play
Cleveland ..	85	61	..	8
Detroit	85	61	..	8
New York ..	80	64	4	10
Chicago	79	67	6	8

Lou Boudreau, gazelle-like shortstop of the Indians, choked off Washington's hopes of avoiding a sweep of the three-game series by starting double plays on two occasions when the Nats threatened to knock Smith out of the box. The left-handed refugee from the National League allowed eight hits to the six yielded by Leonard and Krakauskas, who pitched the last inning.

Dutch's Error Costly

Leonard's own error, a two-base wild throw in an attempt to pick Ben Chapman off first base, paved the way to a Cleveland run in the first inning. Chapman, who had singled, reached third on Leonard's misplay and scored on Boudreau's long fly to Case.

An error by Gerald Walker figured in the other two Cleveland runs. After Trosky walked with two out in the seventh, he scored all the way from first when Walker muffed Bell's single to left-center on the bounce. Bell raced to second on the error and scored on Keltner's single to center.

The Nats averted a shutout with the seventh of their eight hits. It was a home run into the leftfield bleachers by Johnny Welaj, pinch hitting for Leonard in the eighth.

Smith Is Saved

Ben Chapman came to the rescue of Smith in the second inning. Cecil Travis, first up, lashed a long drive to left center and Chapman streaked across the outfield to drag it down with his gloved hand on the dead run.

In the sixth inning, little Roy Weatherly turned back another Washington threat with an amazing duplicate of a catch he turned in yesterday against the same hitter, Buddy Lewis. On Lewis' line drive to centerfield, Weatherly raced in, nose-dived for the ball, and held it in his grip through a series of somersaults.

Boudreau Poison

But Boudreau was the chief poison to the Nats. The Indians' shortstop snuffed out two Washington rallies by grabbing double-play grounders and routing them to first base each time via Ray Maek at second. Ken Keltner started another. Two consecutive singles by Lewis and Walker with none out

Harridge Denies Indians Asked for Less 'Bench Riding'

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians, who've been taking an unmerciful verbal scalping ever since they complained to Owner Alva Bradley about Manager Oscar Vitt's "jitterbugging," have not asked for relief from American League headquarters.

President Will Harridge made that plain today in commenting on reports that the Indians had asked him to make other clubs stop riding the Tribe while the club is in the middle of the hot pennant battle. Said Harridge: "Bench riding, or jockeying," has become a part of baseball's setup and is purely within the jurisdiction of the umpires, who I'm sure can handle this case."

President Harridge, however, believes they'll have plenty to handle at Detroit tomorrow, when the Indians begin their important three-day engagement with the Tigers—so much so that he has named four arbiters to work the games: Steve Basil, Bill Summers, George Pipgras and Bill McGowan.

This photo could be called "Homer Harmony," what with the major leagues' two hottest circuit hitters exercising their tonsils under the shower. Between Hank Greenberg (left) and Rudy York, the Detroit Tigers have profited to the extent of seven homers in two days, five other extra-base hits and five singles. One or both has homered every day for 17 successive days

Yanks Defeat Chicago And Stay in Running

Red Ruffing Holds Chisox as Mates Pound Out 10-1 Victory With Steady Hard Hitting

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 19.—The New York Yankees, still refusing to be counted out of the American League pennant race, overwhelmed the Chicago White Sox, 10 to 1, today to take a firmer grip on third place and keep within four games of the lead.

Red Ruffing, the veteran who has been unsteady recently, had one of his better days, scattering seven safeties and getting scored on only when Joe Kuhel hit his twenty-fifth home run in the sixth inning. It was Ruffing's fourteenth win.

The Yanks kept up a 14-hit barrage throughout the game and never were in jeopardy after scoring three runs in the first inning on Joe Gordon's double, Charley Keller's single scoring Gordon, and George Selkirk's sixteenth home run.

Gordon and Rolfe hit successive doubles at the start of the third for two runs, Rolfe coming around on a fly and an infield out.

Jack Knott turned Chicago's pitching chores over to Bill Dietrich in the fourth and the Yanks got to him for two more runs in the fifth on Keller's single with two on and finished with three runs in the eighth on a walk, three hits and an error.

Garms Given Official O.K. In Batting Race

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 19.—This will surprise Debs Garms himself, but if he plays in 100 games for the Pittsburgh Pirates he is almost certain to be named the National League batting champion.

Including today, Garms had played in 93 games, gone to bat 326 times and hit .377. Everybody assumed he would be ruled out as the batting champion because he wouldn't have 400 times at bat.

Now Ford Frick, president of the league, says his circuit doesn't have such a rule, and that the batting title is simply unofficial and never has been subject for league legislation. This apparently throws the door wide open for Garms to step up and clam the honor.

Garms Has to Play in 7 Games

Bill Brandt, the Boswell who keeps the public informed on league matters, supplemented his boss' opinion by saying he thought 100 games would be a sufficient prerequisite for the championship under the circumstances, and if Garms meets this requirement he's as good as in.

All he has to do is play in 7 out of 11 games. His mark is so much better than any of the others it doesn't make much difference whether he gets a hit or not.

Stan Hack, of the Chicago Cubs, had the next best mark today among the league's regulars, .323, for 139 games and 561 times at bat. But he has come to the front only this week and the next two men, Ernie Lombardi, of Cincinnati, and Johnny Cooney, of the Boston Bees, are in almost the same boat as Garms.

Lombardi Has .319 Average

Lombardi has hit .319 in 376 times at bat in 106 games. He probably is out of action till the World Series because of a sprained ankle and won't pass the 400 at bat mark. Cooney also has hit .319 and has been at bat 364 times in 106 games. He may squeeze over 400 times at bat.

It is apparent the whole batting championship situation is in a state of confusion and that Garms, with the only respectable average in the league, has a chance to be considered.

According to Brant, the assumption that the National League had a rule covering the batting championship dates from the time the American League posted a $500 prize for the hitting leader some years ago and set 400 times at bat as a minimum qualification. The American League still designates an official champion. Right now their title lies between Joe DiMaggio, of the Yankees, with .351, and Rip Radcliff, of the St. Louis Browns, with .346.

Roger Peacock Upset in Golf By Donohue

Medalist Beaten In District Amateur By Iowan, 5 and 3

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The District amateur golf championship took on an intersectional flavor amid a half dozen upsets yesterday at Manor as a Texan, Billy Rochelle, jr., and Jack Donohue, of Sioux City, Ia., advanced to the semifinals along with defending champion Ralph Bogart and Beaver Dam's Jim Gipe.

Donohue pulled the surprise of the day, the Georgetown University sophomore handing Roger Peacock, the medalist and three-time champion, a 5 and 3 lacing in the afternoon. Despite some erratic putting, Donohue was one under par against Peacock, as the latter was not his best physically, and his golf game showed it.

Rochelle, who won the University of Texas golf championship last year, really went to work on his two victims, Buddy Sharkey, Georgetown junior from Indian Spring, and C. Henry Cohen, former Washington and Lee golf captain from Capital. Rochelle won six of the first seven holes against Sharkey, but didn't close the match until the eighteenth, 1 up, and in the afternoon trounced Cohen, 6 and 5.

Gipe, who's been playing the best golf of his career this year, moved two rounds toward the title with a pair of red-hot back nines. Two down at the fourteenth against Dick Meyer, the host club champion, in the morning, Gipe cut it to one on the eighteenth, won the last hole to square the match, and the nineteenth with a par for a 1-up victory. In the afternoon he turned 1 down against M. Parker Nolan, the Maryland State titlist, both out in 35. He won tenth and eleventh with pars, halved the next two in pars and then won the next three holes and the match on the sixteenth. He was 1 under par. Dick Meyer went 19 holes again in the afternoon, but lost to Bob Albertus.

Bogart was three over par in the morning against Joe Balestri, but still won, 6 and 5, while in the afternoon he used a three-hole birdie streak on the first nine as his margin of victory over George F. Miller, the tournament threat from Columbia. Miller won, 6 and 5, over Dr. H. L. Smith in the first round.

Bogart birdied the fourth to square the match, missed a hole-in-one by a fraction of an inch on the fifth to lead Miller, 1 up, and he holed a 15-footer to go 2 up on the sixth. Miller hung on, but couldn't reduce the margin and lost, 3 and

Greenberg, York Each Drive in 5 Runs in Opener and Star in 2d Game

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Sept. 19.—The fence-wrecking Detroit Tigers bombarded the Philadelphia Athletics into humble submission, 13 to 2 and 10 to 1, in a double-header today, thereby climbing into a first-place tie with the Cleveland Indians.

The Bengals and the Indians open a "promoter's dream" three-game series here tomorrow with the American League pennant probably hinging on the outcome.

The Tigers got brilliant pitching from two unexpected quarter and tremendous slugging by their home-run twins—Hank Greenberg and Rudy York—in their one-sided victories.

Greenberg and York both homered in the first game and each slugger drove in five runs. York hit for the circuit in the nightcap and batted in three runs while Greenberg was sending one runner over the plate with a double.

The surprise pitching came from Floyd Giebell, a lanky blond up from Buffalo where he won 15 games and lost 16, and Paul Trout, the No. 1 disappointment of the Tiger pitching corps this season. Giebell scattered eight hits in the opener as he won his first American League start of the year. Trout turned in a superb four-hit performance in the second contest.

Oddly enough, all of the Philadelphia runs came on homers, Sam Chapman and Bob Johnson hitting for the circuit in the first game and Dee Miles connecting for a four-base blow in the finale. A crowd of 10,493 watched the games.

The Tigers combed Lovill (Chubby) Dean for 14 hits and 28 bases in the first game which was decided in the third when Greenberg hit his thirty-ninth homer of the year and his thirteenth in 16 games with one on base. Previously, the Tigers had scored twice in the first inning on a Philadelphia error, a walk and York's 400-foot double off the screen in center field.

York's thirty-first homer sparked a three-run assault in the fifth and Greenberg's three-bagger with the bases full highlighted a four-tally outburst in the sixth.

The Tigers backed Trout's fine pitching with a 13 hit 23 base attack in the nightcap. York got Detroit enough runs to win in the second inning when he hit for the circuit after Greeberg had walked.

Three hits off Nelson Potter netted two more tallies in the third inning and from this point on the Tigers kept on rolling, bagging one run in the fifth, three in the sixth and two more in the seventh when Pete Fox hit a homer.

Trout, counted on in preseason estimates as one of Detroit's starting hurlers, had won only two games and lost seven before today.

The homers in each tilt enabled the Tigers to extend to 17 contests their new major league record of consecutive games in which the club has had at least one four-base clout.

Manager Is Only Casualty as C. U. Gridders Practice

Only one casualty was reported yesterday at Catholic University where Head Coach "Dutch" Bergman ran his squad through light scrimmage sessions and signal drills.

The victim was Bert Murphy, carrot-topped, freckled varsity manager. Dashing madly across the field with both arms loaded with towels and waterbuckets, "Murf" tripped over a stray football helmet. He received a few body bruises and a cut elbow, all of which were treated by Trainer Herman Lauritzen. His wounds are not severe and Lauritzen announced he would be ready for the game against Detroit University October 4.

Paul Derringer Takes 20th in Beating Phils

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 19.—Big Paul Derringer chalked up his twentieth victory of the season today as the champion Cincinnati Reds turned back the Phillies for the third straight day, 4 to 1.

Derringer held the Phils to seven hits and was seldom in trouble. Ben Warren's homer in the ninth saved the tailenders from a shutout.

Rookie Joe Podgajny, of the Phils, pitched on even terms with his famous mound opponent, but three errors by Bobby Bragan, Harry Marnie and Joe Marty in the second and third innings gave the Reds three unearned runs.

In the ninth Podgajny's wild pitch followed by Dick West's single accounted for the Reds' last tally.

Cradle Song, Tomato Greet Tribe in Detroit

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Sept. 19.—The Cleveland Indians received a cool reception tonight when they arrived here for their all-important three-game series with the Detroit Tigers opening tomorrow.

At Union Depot a crowd of youths, estimated by police at 200, hooted the Indians and "Lefty" Wiseman, Cleveland trainer, was struck in the back by an overripe tomato.

The crowd followed the Indians to their hotel and stood outside singing "Rock-a-Bye-Baby-in-the-Tree-Top" until paper bags containing water were thrown from upper floor windows. The group then dispersed.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Cleveland, Sept. 19.—The world's greatest football player seems to be a drawling Southern lad who gets $450 a game for playing for the Cleveland Rams. His name is Parker Hall and in Cleveland they call him the one-man gang.

POVICH

One hundred and twenty-one football writers in the eight cities of the National Professional Football League settled upon young Mr. Hall at the end of last season as the best player in it. They required no Solomon-like virtues to arrive at their decision. Hall's excellence was too strikingly obvious. Here are some of the things he did last season:

He broke Sammy Baugh's record for completed passes with a new high total of 106, in 208 attempts, an average of 51 per cent. He made the season's two longest punts, a pair of 72 and 71-yard boots, he was not merely decorative when he wasn't passing the ball or kicking it for the Rams. He was the league's fifth leading ground gainer despite his presence with a team that had perhaps the worst line in the league.

The $5,000 Hall will earn for his season's play this year represents a 100 per cent increase in his 1939 salary. It's less work and more fun than he had while playing four years of football for the University of Mississippi where his play earned him his tuition, the rough equivalent of $400 a year.

"The raps are harder in the pro league, but you only get 'em once a week," young Hall was saying today at a Rotary Club luncheon. "No mid-week scrimmage after the season starts. The coaches want 60 minutes of hard football, but they want it only on Sunday, when in school we used to get it two or three times a week, and scrimmage is work, not fun."

This 6-foot 1-inch 200-pound giant was Cleveland's first choice in the college draft last year. The Pittsburgh club passed him up in the drawing and claimed Marshall Goldberg, of Pitt; the Philadelphia Eagles ignored Hall and took Davey O'Brien. The Cleveland team grabbed Hall on the advice of every coach who has seen him play for Mississippi and who tabbed him as: "the best college football player in the country, bar none and no kidding."

Hall's feat of beating out Davey O'Brien for the league's forward-passing honors is particularly significant. They met face to face in the last game of the season. With Hall leading by two completed passes. At the end of the game, his margin over O'Brien was seven. But he beat O'Brien under difficulties. Football scorers in Philadelphia credited O'Brien with completions on throws completed behind the line of scrimmage. They were not underhand lobs but overhand passes and thus were put into the records. From Cleveland scorers, Hall received no credit for passes of this type.

Hall not only deals the football off his arm and off his toe, but he lugs it like no other back Cleveland has ever had. He isn't the Dick Todd or Andy Farkas type, off in a flash toward the secondary. He's more of a loper, as was Cliff Battles, biding his time a bit, picking his holes, and then turning on the power that gets a back places. He can shake a mean hip, or like Nagurski, blow down a tackler.

Dutch Clark, who coaches the boy, doubtless hasn't done Hall any harm. In fact, Hall more nearly compares with Clark, perhaps, than any other good football player. It was the same kind of talents, the running, passing and kicking, that stamped Dutch Clark, as the all-pro league quarterback for six years hand-running. Unlike Clark, Hall can't dropkick, and neither can he cook, but his coach is willing to overlook those deficiencies.

Here in Cleveland, they've constructed the entire ball team around Hall, which is understandable enough. One reason is because he's almost always in the line-up. When he plays less than three quarters, he thinks he's loafing. When he isn't in the line-up it is not a good ball team.

Playing for a pay check hasn't dampened Hall's enthusiasm for the game, he says. "Fact is, it's a lot more serious with me now. I never wanted to die for dear Ole Miss any more than I would now for Coach Clarke. It is a pleasure to play for that man. He's a fellow that nobody with an ounce of gratitude could let down. I'd say there's more college spirit in pro football than college football and when you play with a pro club you should be a better player because you get more help."

A. L. Leaders to Shoot Works in Big Series

By a Staff Correspondent

Cleveland, Sept. 18.—The American League pennant race will reach the white-heat stage tomorrow when the Indians move into Detroit for a three-game series with the Tigers.

The lead, now tied, for the first time during the latter stages of the race, the Indians and Tigers are prepared to shoot the works in a pitching way with tomorrow's start of their crucial series.

For tomorrow's engagement, Manager Oscar Vitt has announced it will be Mel Harder against Detroit's Buck Newsom. Harder has been teaming with Bob Feller in bearing the brunt of the Cleveland pitching for the past month and turned in a three-hit performance in his last start.

On Saturday, Vitt will send his big left-hander, Al Milnar, against Detroit's Tommy Bridges. Milnar, winner of only one game since August 11, scored that victory in his last start, a three-hit shut-out job. Bridges blanked the Yankees in his latest start.

For the Sunday game, Vitt will play his ace, Bob Feller, against the Tigers' Schoolboy Rowe. Feller will be working with three days' rest after holding the Nats to five hits. Rowe, also winner over Washington in his last start, complained of a sore arm that day, but is now ready to pitch.

Vitt says he will not spare Feller in the series and will use him in a relief role in tomorrow's game, if necessary. "Bob wants to pitch, and I won't hesitate to use him to finish up any game if we need to save it," said Vitt. "He'll take his regular turn also."

As the Tigers and Indians move into their crucial series, they are teams of striking contrast. The Tigers have been winning because of the murderous hitting of Hank Greenberg and Rudy York, and the Indians have won six out of their last eight by superlative pitching by scores of 3-1, 2-1, and 3-1, while the Tigers were scoring 40 runs in four runs with the A's.

The internal strife among the Indians seems to have subsided suddenly. Manager Vitt has been in meetings with his club before the games of the past two days, delivering what he called "pep talks."

Six of the eight games remaining for both the Indians and Tigers are against each other. In the interlude between the three-game series in Detroit and the three-game series between the teams in Cleveland, which will end the season, the Indians will meet the Browns in two games. The Tigers will be meeting the White Sox in a pair.

Baltimore Beats Wings In Booed Game

By International News Service

Baltimore, Sept. 19.—Nick Etten's ninth-inning homerun with two men on base gave Baltimore a 3-2 victory over Rochester tonight in the International League play-offs. The series now stands at 2 to 1 in Rochester's favor.

Police were forced to go to the protection of Umpires Parker, Kelly and Solodare, whose decisions on the bases and behind the plate were booed throughout the game.

Newark Takes Third

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 19 (INS).—Newark made it three in a row over Jersey City in the International League play-offs by defeating the Little Giants, 1 to 0, tonight.

The deciding run of a great pitching duel between Hank Borowy, Newark right-hander, and Frank Peace, Jersey City veteran, was scored with one out in the ninth inning. Ed Levy, who got two of the seven hits off Pearce, singled and scampered all the way home on a double by Bud Metheny.

Montreal Fight Body Confiscates Brown's Purse

By the Associated Press

Montreal, Sept. 18.—The Montreal Athletic Commission decided today to confiscate the purses of fighters Natie Brown, of Washington; Mickey McAvoy, of New York, and George Leslie, of Canada. All three appeared on a boxing card here three weeks ago.

Immediately after the fight, the commission announced the purses were being withheld. Brown was knocked out by Yvon Robert, of Montreal, in the second round of the feature bout, while the other two fighters lost preliminary bouts.

The commission said the money would be given to the Red Cross.

Giants' Ragged Play Boosts Hopes of 'Skins

Coach Owen Holds Stiff 2-Hour Drill

The Redskins' hopes for their first victory since 1938 over their old enemies, the New York Giants, took a definite turn upward yesterday as reports from the Giants' front office painted a gloomy picture of the condition of the team.

The New York eleven was so ragged in Pittsburgh last Sunday that Coach Steve Owen broke a professional football precedent Wednesday by staging a two-hour scrimmage to polish up his offense and improve the tackling, which was far below par, the Giants' office informs.

Coach Ray Flaherty, an old pupil of Owen's, is inclined to discount the Giants' tale of woe.

In the 10-10 tie with the Pittsburgh Steelers, Giant pass receivers juggled and dropped at least six passes which had touchdowns written all over them, and Owen has been placing special emphasis on this flaw all week.

Giants Lose Two Players

The same starting line which fought the Redskins to a 0-0 tie and then came back to defeat them, 9-7, for the National League's Eastern Division championship will face the 'Skins Sunday with just two exceptions.

The Giants have lost John Mellus, right tackle, in a New York hospital with an infected foot, and Pete Cole, guard on the second period team. Gerry Dennerlein will fill Mellus' spot, and at right end Max Harrison, recalled from Jersey City, will start in the place of Jim Lee Howell, the pass-catching ace from Alabama.

Another reason Flaherty discards the Giants' sorrowful moans is the return of Tuffy Leemans to form. Leemans gained 54 yards in the Pittsburgh game. With Leemans running and Kay Eakin, the Giants' sensational passing rookie from Arkansas, doing the aerial work, the Redskins will have no soft task.

Redskins Hold Drill

Flaherty sent his squad through a lengthy signal drill against New York plays yesterday. He then had his starting lineup Sunday going on offense against a five-man line, the type of defense New York uses the greater part of the time.

The Redskin coach said he felt better after yesterday's workout. He has been alarmed all week by the team's sluggishness and indifference in signal drills.

With Jimmy Johnston, the second-year fullback who appears headed for a great year, back in shape after a slight ankle injury, the Redskins expect to be at full strength. Erny Pinckert and Red Morgan, blocking backs, are both suffering pulled leg muscles, while Bob Fisher, rookie tackle, turned up yesterday with a sore foot.

Leland Jr. High Mentor Near-Certainty to Succeed Colangelo

F. H. "Skip" Lehr, for over five years athletic director at Leland Junior High, yesterday was considered the a near-certainty to succeed Julian Colangelo, basketball coach at Anacostia High who was transfered to the new Calvin Coolidge High.

Lehr, whose youthful cage teams have turned in spectacular performances at the Bethesda school, will have charge of physical education in the junior school at Anacostia as well as coach the senior high cage team. To Rolland Lund, former junior high mentor, goes a promotion to senior high rating, despite the fact he has coached Anacostia High's grid team since its inception.

Colangelo's shift to the District's newest school came as a surprise to even the drawling teacher. He was asked to take the position over Lund because the latter is at present tied up with the Indians' 1940 grid team and did not care to trust it to other hands.

The coaching staff at Coolidge, therefore, will be Colangelo and Sherman Reese, jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y. The latter received his appointment several weeks ago. According to Colangelo, a basketball team will be organized this year, engage in a regular schedule, but remain out of interhigh competition until next year. Football may not be undertaken until 1942.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Sept. 19.—If the Indians win:

It ought to make a great series with the Reds. We hope Oscar Vitt's former team does win for the selfish reason that it will produce a pip of a story. It will be more than a series. It will be one of baseball's strangest stories, a crucial series wherein the fundamentally stronger club (Cleveland) will be rudderless and leaderless. And one which perhaps might produce a victorious World Series manager who will be fired the day after the series ends.

CONSIDINE

Then there would be the prospect of Feller pitching three games . . . Feller vs. Derringer and Feller vs. Walters. We foresee a long series—seven games. Cleveland, Hal Sims thinks, would be a 7-to-5 favorite, mainly on the strength of Feller. But if it does come to a Cincinnati-Cleveland series, please let us have the Reds. After Feller is done, Cleveland must come back with Al Milnar (16 wins against 9 losses) and Al Smith (14-7). Both are left-handers. The Reds' power is right-handed—Ernie Lombardi (.319), Frank McCormick (.290) and the timeliest hitter of the bunch, Bill Werber (.276).

Feller ought to win two of his three starts, but somehow we see him losing the critical game, just as the Yankees managed to outscramble him in important games this year. In my book he is no cinch to take Derringer any time they meet. Cincinnati has Junior Thompson (15-9) backing up Walters. And the best relief pitcher in the business, Joe Beggs (12-2).

We think the Reds have a little more get-in-there-and-die in them, too, having won 37 games this season by one run, and that they have little chance of suffering the let-down that is almost certain to beset the American League winner.

If the Tigers win:

Then give us the Tigers. They'll be 8-to-5, which will be a trifle too optimistic. But they should come through on the strength of their superior hitting. When you line up McCosky (.336) Greenberg (.335 and nearly 140 runs driven in), York (.315 and 113 runs pounded home), Gehringer (.313), Sullivan (.311), Tebbetts (.287) and Campbell (.278) you've got an array that the National League can only pine for.

We don't think Newsom (19-4) and Bridges (11-8) rate with Walters (20-9) and Derringer (20-12). But Newsom, Bridges and Rowe (15-3) are right in there, and we mean right, too. All are northpaws and should be at their best against Cincinnati's righthanded power.

There is a unity to them, too, that parallels Cincinnati's cohesion, and makes Cleveland's chaos that much more ridiculous.. The Detroit club is an old, experienced outfit.

The Tiger infield of York, Gehringer, Bartell and Higgins is the oldest in baseball. It isn't likely to crack under pressure (nor is the Cincinnati infield) and it packs a lot more punch than the Red infield can muster.

Rowe is hurt, Denny Carroll, a great trainer, is something less than optimistic about his condition. But the important thing is that Rowe says he'll be able to pitch. That means a lot, in Rowe's case, for the fellow lives a lot within himself. When he said his shoulder felt bad (even though the docs could see nothing wrong about it) he pitched so badly that the Tigers had to send him back to the minors. Now he says he is okay, despite Carroll's sober warning. We'll string along with Rowe—and he, and that Tiger power, represents the Detroit edge in our mind.

If the Yanks should win—but that doesn't seem likely at this writing.

Boston Can't Win Pennant This Season

Browns Spike Final Hopes With 2-to-1 Victory

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Sept. 19.—With Manager Joe Cronin on the bench with a spiked hand and a makeshift lineup playing, the Boston Red Sox lost their season finale with the Browns today, 2 to 1.

Dropping the two-game series to the Browns ended Boston's mathematical chances to win the American League Pennant.

Elden Auker, while allowing nine hits, choked all the Sox scoring threats, except in the fifth when doubles by Ulysses Lupien and Johnny Peacock prodced Boston's lone run.

The Browns got only seven hits off two rookie pitchers, Earl Johnson and Bill Fleming, but singles by Bobby Swift and Auker himself preceded Roy Cllenbine's seventh-inning triple.

Colored Elevens List Five Games

Five games are on the schedule for the first day of action in the colored Washington Gridiron Conference this Sunday. Ebenezer faces Georgetown at Green Valley, Va.; Northeast Bears meet the Lions, and St. Cyprian tangles with the Trees at Oxon Hill, Md.; the Yellow Jackets square off against Brown A. C. at Annapolis, and Twilight A. C. faces the Baltimore Royals at Baltimore.

2 Hoyas Hurt, to Miss Practice Against Navy

Mark Ostinato, Veteran Guard, John Barrett, Sophomore Fullback, Complain of Sprained Ankles; G. W. Backfield Reserve Also Hurt

With its toughest pre-season scrimmages slated at Annapolis with the Navy eleven tomorrow, Georgetown's squad yesterday came up with two injuries which may affect the team's showing. Mark Ostinato, veteran guard, and Fullback John Barrett, a sophomore, complained of sprained ankles which would in all probability keep them idle.

Following a stiff drill the Hoyas were pleased, however, with the announcement that Mike Kopcik, a junior end, would be able to play against the Middies despite a lame left leg, though he will be unable to start.

In Kopcik's place, Coach Jack Hagerty said he would start Sophomore Chris Pavich. The other wing will be held down by Art Lemke, a fast-improving junior. Edward McMahon and Augie Lio will be the guards; Joe Daniels and Earl Fullilove the tackles, and Al Matuza, the center. Last year's starting backfield of Joe McFadden, Lou Ghecas, Jules Koshlap and Jim Castiglia will be the first to face Navy.

One important injury also cropped up at the Polo Field, where Coach Bill Reinhart sent George Washington's gridders through a strenuous afternoon. But the big item of the season was the improved play of Paul (Babe) Nugent, 165-pounder from Bptte, Mont., who is out for the fullback post.

Nugent saw some action with the Colonials last year, and is expected to capably understudy Walter Fedora at the tailback spot if his improvement continues. As a matter of fact, Coach Reinhart seriously considers alternating the pair.

Walter Welc, second string backfield man, was the cause of considerable commotion when he dislocated his shoulder. A blocker, Welc should be able to get back in uniform in a few days.

Today the Colonials will go through their last double practice session. Afternoon practices only will be held starting tomorrow due to the opening of school.

C. U. Players Commended

Anxious to keep his gridders keyed up to fighting pitch, Head Coach "Dutch" Bergman took time out during practice yesterday at Catholic University to commend the squad on its fine spirit and high enthusiasm.

"It's just this kind of teamwork that wins ball games," Bergman told his squad, "and so long as you keep up this keen scrapping you're winning a big half of the battle."

The battle referred to by the silver-topped grid mentor is probably the severe schedule facing the Redbirds this season. This verbal shot in the arm, it is hoped by Bergman, will keep his men down to the grind for Gus Dorais' revenge-seeking Detroit University.

At the same time Dutch also sounded a note of warning to his lettermen, telling them the fight for positions is still on and that past performances will not count too heavily when time comes to select the starting combination.

The full squad, with the exception of Hank Sant'Ambrogio, halfback who is suffering a back injury, went through the drills. Jim Milks, former Washington and Lee star, took active part at right halfback position. There is a possibility that he might be shifted to end.

Entry Deadline For Post Golf Is Set Today

Women Golf Event To Be Played in Two Sections

Mrs. A. A. McEntee and Miss Bertha Israel will close the entries for The Washington Post Cup Tournament, an annual feature of the District Women's Golf Association, today promptly at 1 p. m.

Mrs. McEntee is handling entries for the 19 to 36 handicapped players who will compete at Kenwood next Tuesday. Miss Israel is accepting the "A" class entries, the scratch to 18 players, for the Woodmont event.

Mrs. McEntee's number is Wisconsin 3683-J, and Miss Israel's Woodley 1865.

The Post will donate the low net and low gross prizes, while the association will complete the prize list in both classes. This is the first year The Post Cup has been played in two classes. For several years it was a match-play tournament.

You'll Sit Down At 'Skin-Giant Game—Or Else

If you're counting on waiting until the last minute and buying a standing-room seat for the Redskins' all-important date with the New York Giants Sunday in Griffith Stadium you'd better discard such ideas.

There will be no standing room sold to any of the Redskin's games this season, General Manager Jack Espey announced yesterday. This decision was made on the grounds that standees get in the way of fans who pay higher prices for their seats.

A crowd of 36,000 fans hungry to see the 'Skins wreak vengeance upon the Giants' heads for that 9-7 defeat in the now famous game for the National League's Eastern championship is expected at the game Sunday.

Maryland U. Gives Mackert Job of Coaching Frosh Gridders

Former Star to Have Surgent, Headley As His Assistants

Charles LeRoy Mackert, one of Maryland's greatest football players of all time and now head of the men's physical education department of the College Park institution, will handle the Terp freshman gridiron squad this fall.

He will have two assistants, both former Old Line stars. They are Mike Surgent and Coleman Headley, ace guard and back, respectively, of the 1935, 1936 and 1937 elevens. They both were members of the graduating class of 1939. This was announced by Geary Eppley, athletic director, last night.

Mackert came to Maryland from Sunbury, Pa., but has been settled in College Park for years. Surgent is from West Hazelton, Pa., which still is his home, while Headley, a native of College Park, now owns a farm at Laurel, Md.

Mackert, who played his last football for the Terps in 1920, was just as great at tackle or fullback, being picked for both positions on all-time all-Maryland teams.

Surgent, Maryland's best guard in recent years, also was a hard-hitting outfielder for the Terps and since has played minor league ball.

Headley was a good basketball player and a great trackman also for Maryland. For a long time he held both the Maryland half-mile mark of 1:53.3 and the mile record of 4:20.9.

Freshman registration was to be completed at College Park today and the yearling gridders will have their first gathering on Saturday morning.

Room Service Takes Havre de Grace Feature, Pays $9.40

Mammy Rose Runs Second, Hide Is Third

Jockey DeCamillis Pilots Daughter Of The Porter To Victory

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 19.—There were no complaints about Room Service here today for those of the crowd of 8,000 who wagered on the veteran mare by that name. She served up a $9.40 mutuel and delivered in easy fashion under good handling by Jockey Eddie DeCamillis. The daughter of The Porter came from far back, moved between horses with a rush and was opening a gap without effort at the end of the battle of a mile and a furlong. Mammy Rose was second, with Hide third.

The program lacked a feature, being given over for the most part to cheap claiming company. Only one favorite was successful on the program. J. Y. Christmas' Rough Man got up to win by a nose in the first race, but from that point to the closing event, the prices were generally high.

Those who coupled Rough Man, a $9.80 shot, with Flaming High, a $10.10 winner in the second race, collected a 17.10 mutuel in the daily double.

The longest price of the day came in the sixth race. Mrs. M. A. Smith's Wahcoo, a so-so performer on the half-milers during the summer, awoke with a bang in the mile-and-a-sixteenth event and won by a half length at a $92.70 mutuel. The Chatover gelding managed to stave off the well-played Golden Vein by a half length. Kamport, another long-shot, was third in the field of a dozen.

Alsang provided one of the days closest finishes in the fifth race. Flag Post was winging far in front in the stretch when Alsang developed a stretch rush that brought him up in the last jump to get the photo decision. Third money went to Playmore. Alsang paid a $25.80 mutuel.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROUGH MAN, $3.80, $3.00, $2.60; SCATALONE, $6.10, $4.70; LARGO MINT, $6.40.

ROUGH MAN, confidently handled, was taken out for racing room entering stretch, responded to hard drive and was up in final jump. SCATALONE was in good position from break, took command inside sixteenth pole, but could not last. LARGO MINT assumed command approaching half pole while on inside, set steady pace, but could not stay. BUCKLE UP forced pace and weakened.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, 1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate for all but Tolaghs. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:51. Off at once. Winner, R. Curren's b. g. (3), by High Strung—Flamanis. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:12⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLAMING HIGH, $10.10, $5.00, $3.10; SEE SEE, $9.40, $5.70; SHAILLEEN, $3.10.

FLAMING HIGH had keen speed from start, drew clear and won under hard drive. SEE SEE, off in first flight, moved up with good energy and then hung. SHAILLEEN was allowed to lag early, came out for racing room and closed with rush. LAST CALL went to contention with sharp move, but was held safe thereafter. HAZEL W. had good early speed and weakened.

Daily Double, ROUGH MAN and FLAMING HIGH, Paid $17.70

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:22. Off 3:22⅘. Winner, Mrs. R. M. Heighe's b. f. (2), by Pompey—Sparky. Trained by W. E. Martin. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14⅘.

1P. H. Faulconer-Nydrie Stables entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPANG, $13.80, $6.70, $4.70; LONG LANE, $3.60, $3.00; PETE'S PRINCE, $6.60.

SPANG was steadied along while in forward position, responded willingly when shaken up and overtook STARKEE to win going away. LONG LANE, in close quarters along rail early, came through horses to gain serious contention, but was not strongly handled in closing test while between horses. PETE'S PRINCE, of very slow, worked way to leaders with sharp move and hung right at end. STARKEE went to front, set good pace, but weakened in final 20 yards.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:35. Off at once. Winner, Knollwood Stable's b. m. (5), by The Porter—Stigma. Trained by J. M. Black. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:55.

Two dollar mutuels paid—ROOM SERVICE, $9.40, $4.80, $3.00; MAMMY ROSE, $5.30, $3.60; HIDE, $3.30.

ROOM SERVICE, not hurried early, saved ground for half, went between horses to gain steadily, responded to punishment to assume command and was opening gap easily at end. MAMMY ROSE was well placed from start and closed willingly. HIDE went forwardly from start and was tiring at close. CONNIE PLAUT closed with bold rush. MISS PONNE showed dull effort and had no excuses.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:25. Off 4:25½. Winner, Miss A. Horton's br. g. (7), by Kai-Sang—O'Girl. Trained by W. E. Jones. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:48⅘.

Philadelphia Women's Golf Team Engages D. C. Today

Two Former Titleholders WithInvaders

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare and Former Dorothy Campbell On Philly Team

Led by Mrs. E. H. Vare, jr., the former Glenna Collett, and Mrs. Edward L. Howe, the former Dorothy Campbell Hurd, who hold nine national championships between them, Philadelphia's inter-city golf team invaded Washington yesterday for the annual match with the District Women's Golf Association team today.

Best-ball matches are scheduled this morning at Columbia Country Club, starting at 9:30, while the afternoon program is Scotch foursome play. The vistors were guests at a dinner last night at the club.

Only four played the course in practice rounds yesterday, Mrs. Howe, Mrs. Norman M. Lack, a one-handicapped player who will play in the No. 1 twosome with Mrs. Vare, Mrs. Walter Acuff and Mrs. J. Walker Hooper, four-handicapped players who will be partners in the third bracket.

Mrs. Howe in Second Spot

Mrs. Howe will play in the second spot with Mrs. William Hamilton as a partner. In all the Philadelphia team boasts scores of national, State, city and sectional championships.

In the fourth berth will be Mrs. Anne Krumbhaar and Mrs. Ralph Seltzer. Next will be Priscilla Janney and Mrs. Thomas E. Hulme, Mrs. John Dilkes will play, but her partner will not be named until this morning.

In the local lineup, District Champion Elizabeth Houghton has been moved up and will play with a Chevy Chase clubmate, Mrs. Landra Platt, while Mrs. Thomas Brendon, of Washington, will pair with Mrs. J. W. Godfrey.

Ackerman ON FISHING

Nylon Yarn Liked By Anglers For Fish Lines

ACKERMAN

The ladies know nylon yarn, produced by the duPont Co. from coal, air and water, because this summer the first hose made with it was marketed. They liked it because of the fine fit, resiliency, good appearance, waterproof qualities and, most important, the lessened chance of runs.

Anglers became acquainted with nylon a full year previous, by way of the new fishing lines made of it by several line manufacturers. They, too, liked its appearance, feel and waterproofness. Above all, they liked the ease with which it was cast, and thought the elasticity, which, if we remember rightly, was about 16 per cent, was a highly desirable feature. In fact we thought so too, and after a full season of using here in the bay country as well as on the Coast.

Its use in Forida waters, where one fishes for one species and is liable to hang on to any one of a dozen or more, weighing from a pound to a hundred, changed our ideas of this new line with its great ratio of elasticity. One large grouper layed the line on the reel with every last bit of the stretch out of it, with the results that the sideplates were about strained to the limit.

Another thing we didn't like was the feeling of loss, which was experienced many times in fighting every good-sized fish. In talking about it in this column we made it plain that these were our personal observations, and that somewhere in our ability in its use might lie the reason for these happenings, for many finished anglers liked it and continued with its use.

Cards Capture Double-Header From Pirates

St. Louis Virtually Clinches Third Place With 2-1, 8-2 Victories

By International News Service

Pittsburgh, Sept. 19.—St. Louis virtually clinched third place in the National League today by taking a double header from Pittsburgh, 2-1 and 8-2.

Bill McGee gave the Pirates only five hits in the opener while the Cardinals were making eight off Sewell.

Bowman started for the Cards in the second game but gave way to Hutchinson in the third and the latter was credited with the victory. Heintzelman started for the Pirates but was finished in the eighth when the Cards put over five runs to clinch the game.

Masonic Pin League To Open Tonight

The Masonic Bowling League will get under way tonight at 7:45 at Convention Hall bowling alleys, with President Hart, of Whiting Lodge, rolling the first ball. Thirty evenly matched teams will comprise the circuit, and it looms as a wide open scramble all the way.

Other officers are Ben Hare, of LaFayette Londge, vice president; Arville Ebersole, of Albert Pike Lodge, secretary-treasurer, and Ray Cross, of Hope Lodge, publicity secretary-scorer.

Huge Crowd Sees 'Angel' Beat Dusek

With 2,000 spectators jamming almost every nook in Turner's Arena, Maurice Tillet, the "Original Angel," last night earned an 18-minute decision in the headline mat attraction.

After suffering a series of reverses, Tillet stood like a rock while his opponent, Rudy Dusek, knocked himself out in a flying lunge. He merely fell on the prostrate Dusek while Referee Casey Berger tolled the three-count.

In other matches Ed Don George used a scissors to quiet Herb Freeman after 15½ minutes; Lou Plummer earned a draw with Danno O'Mahoney; Babe Zaharias defeated Tom Mahoney in 26 minutes, and Ed Newman pinned Abe Yourist in 17 minutes.

Record Field In President's Cup Swim

A record-smashing field of 115 swimmers representing 17 clubs along the Eastern seaboard are entered in tomorrow night's President's Cup Regatta swimming meet in the Venetian pool of the Shoreham Hotel, the entry list released last night by Earle Weeks, aquatic chairman, revealed.

Six States and the District of Columbia are represented. Five events for men, four for women, one for boys under 15, and one for girls under 14 are on the program which starts at 7:30 o'clock.

Entries closed last night in the rowing and canoeing divisions of the President's Cup Regatta, scheduled Sunday afternoon on the upper course in Georgetown Channel above Key Bridge. Philadelphia is sending three teams in the rowing—Penn A. C., Fairmount A. C. and Bachelor Barge—while Alexandria, Richmond, Baltimore and the District will have teams.

2. Bogart missed two other short putts for birdies as he was consistently knocking the ball right on the pin all afternoon.

Rochelle is the surprise package of the semifinals. The Beaver Dam representative has played little golf here but he compiled a good tournament record in his home State. Sharkey was all over the lot as he trailed by six holes in the morning, but he rallied, played the next ten holes in three under par and finally was only one down. His bid to tie the match via a 4-foot putt on the eighteenth, around a partial stymie, missed. Rochelle was 1 up on the eighth tee against Cohen, but the latter started spraying his irons at this point and lost early.

Donohue, who came to the city a week before school opened just to play in the tournament, saw the course for the first time Wednesday and the 18-year-old youngster meets Rochelle in the semifinals today. Bogart, after a second straight crown, plays the unpredictable Gipe. The finals start at 2 p. m. netted the Nats nothing in the fourth. Travis popped out and Bloodworth then grounded to Boudreau, into a double play.

Jack Sanford led off the fifth inning with a single to left, and Boudreau again cut the Nats short by starting a double play on Pofahl's grounder. In the seventh, Travis and Bloodworth led off with singles, but Sanford popped out, and Keltner got Smith out of the inning by turning Pofahl's hot smash into a double-play ball.

Giants Drop 11th Straight, Cubs Win, 8-2

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 19.—The futile Giants dropped their eleventh straight game today, the year's longest losing streak in the National League, as the Chicago Cubs pounded out an 8-to-2 score with 14 hits.

Hank Leiber sent the Cubs in front with a three-run homer off Bill Lohrman in the third inning, and Stan Hack hit another off Paul Dean with one on in the ninth. It was the ninth consecutive setback for Lohrman, who won his last game July 27.

Claude Passeau had no trouble checking the Giants on eight scattered hits for his nineteenth victory

Mrs. M. Lynn Sets 2 Marks In Pin League

163, 418 Shatter 14-Year-Old Records In Federal Circuit

Two all-time league records were chalked up to the credit of Mrs. Margaret Lynn last night as the Ladies' Federal Duckpin League rolled at Arcadia Alleys.

Mrs. Lynn broke the 14-year-old individual game mark with a 163 and the individual team mark with 418. Despite the effort, however, her RFC No. 1 team lost two of its games to Labor Department. The latter rolled 582 and 1,577 for high among teams, both new season marks.

In the War Department Men's League at the same alley, Ray Moore paced the Washington Aqueduct team to a set of 1,670 with a 369 individual effort. Ralph Provost had 149 for game honors and Finance team rolled a 583 game.

CLARENDON

Mary Carter, Berwyn Dress Shop, took individual high game honors at the second meeting of the Clarendon Ladies' League with a 127. In doing so she paced her team to high set of 588 and helped win a tie with Rector's Flower Shop and Fairfax Realty for the league lead with five wins against one loss.

The Clarendon Church League had its opening session with Billy Kingsolver capturing high set with 405 to pace his team, Methodist No. 1, to high team set of 1,825. Stockett, Baptist No. 1, had high individual game of 149, while the Pershing Drive Christian Church quintet had high team game of 585. Methodist No. 3 won three straight from Baptist No. 2 to take the league lead.

RECREATION

The Utilities Girls' Duckpin League rolled its inaugural last night at the New Recreation alleys with Miss Greco, Five Fuses, and Miss Martin taking high individual game and set honors with 113 and 289, respectively. High team game was rolled by the Transfers with 435, while set went to the Megawatts with 1,216. The Megawatts swept all three games from their opponents while the Live Wires took three from the Tickets.

CONVENTION HALL

Two franchises are open in the Convention Hall Commercial League which bowls each Thursday night at 7 o'clock. Any team interested should phone Mr. Pates, Washington Tobacco Co., Di. 4450, or Hap Burtner, Convention Hall.

With the Chief Clerks monopolizing the limelight, the General Accounting Office Duckpin League resumed play. The Chief Clerks had high team game and set again this week with 619-1,765. Bill Weirick, of the C. C.'s, was the bright individual star with a high set of 396.

BROOKLAND

The Brookland Merchants' Duckpin League had their third session with Jack Shafferman, Pioneer Laundry, and Don Hardesty, DePerini Decorating, taking high individual honors with game and set of 173 and 396, respectively. The DePerini quintet also captured high team game with 640 in taking all three from Brookland Bakery, while Shadid's Restaurant had high team set with 1,762. Al Baker's Men's Shop took the odd game from M. P. M. Market.

Reclamation No. 1 Sets Pin Marks in League

Reclamation No. 1 took two games from Indian in the Interior Department League last night at the Penn alleys. The winners scored high game and set of 613 and 1,695, respectively. Tolson Brown, of Cartographers, registered high set of 401. Eddie Joyce rolled a 151 individual game.

Mrs. Goldsmith Is Woodmont Golf Winner

Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith added another Woodmont women's club championship to her collection yesterday, defeating Mrs. Gilbert Hahn, 3 and 1, in the 18-hole finals.

Mrs. Goldsmith led, 2 up, at the turn and had control of the match throughout. The victory gave her a clean sweep of the tournament as she also won medal honors.

Mrs. Milton Harris won the consolation with a 1-up victory over Ruth Simon on the twentieth, or second extra hole.

KENWOOD

Mrs. J. W. Jago, with a net 74, took a two-stroke lead at the end of the grst day's play in the Mrs. Donald Kane Trophy tournament at Kenwood. The event is for the 20-or-over handicapped players.

The final 18 holes of the 36-hole medal-play handicap tourney will be played today. Mrs. D. G. Myers is in second place with 99—23—76, and Mrs. L. V. Sharpe third with 99—22—77.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, Sept. 19 (AP). (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—Trading in wool on the Boston market was mostly on fine wools today. Original bags, fine territory wools of good French combing-length were bringing mostly 86-88 cents, scoured basis. Twelve-months' Texas wools were moving at 85@89 cents, scoured basis. Choice lots of Texas wools running bulk staple combing lengths brought 90@91 cents, scoured basis. Demands were slow on three-eighths and one-quarter blood grades in both territory and fleece wools.

Armament Program Raises Issue of Bootstrap Economics

By Merryle S. Rukeyser
Economic Commentator.

With the index of industrial production and of employment rising, the nontechnical citizen is disinclined to look a gift horse in the mouth. Yet with foreign trade distorted by war conditions and with the prospects of a domestic armament boom, no serius observer can ignore the artificiality of the props.

Nowadays, when statistics are neatly streamlined and ballyhooed for propaganda purposes, bearing of figures of expansion on balloting next November should not be overlooked. The usual process is for the "ins" to seek to make capital of any favorable trends and to find scapegoats for the adverse tendencies.

Mr. Rukeyser

The armament program, which is a phase of governmental spending, raises the issue of bootstrap economics.

Government spending, which is financed by absorbing an increasing ratio of citizen earnings, is obviously not as healthy or as self-perpetuating as citizen spending along lines which raise family living standards.

However, this country did not enter the new chapter of enlarged defenses at a time when the productive facilities of the country were fully employed on normal peace-time activities.

On the contrary, an unbalanced national economy was causing the frightful economic waste of unused manpower and partially unused tools.

The economic objective was to restore an equilibrium which would call forth a fuller use of the Nation's human muscles, tools and natural resources.

Without the intervention of Hitler and the forces he set loose, this goal could have been attained along constructive, peaceful lines through bringing the various productive groups, including those of agriculture and industry, into better balanced economic relationships. It has been computed that farm income in recent years had been running $4,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 annually short of what was needed for balance on the basis of full employment and expanding material well being.

But now there is a tendency to break the deadlock and the disequilibrium through noneconomic factors, namely, the vast contemplated armament proram.

If the heap of goods and services produced is no larger than in 1939, then inevitably the Government spending will divert things from the citizens.

However, if the rising Government demand is answered by a vast increment in national productivity, with the partial absorption of hitherto idle men and machines, then the adverse economic effects will be minimized.

Bank Reserves Drop 10 Million During Week

By the Associated Press

Lendable excess reserves of banks, the Federal Reserve Board said yesterday, declined $10,000,000 to $6,530,000,000 in the week ended September 18.

The decrease was caused by increases in Treasury cash, Treasury bank deposits, and a slight boost in money in circulation.

The board's statement said:

"During the week ended September 18 member bank reserve balances increased $28,000,000. Additions to member bank reserves arose from increases of $112,000,000 in gold stock, $10,000,000 in reserve bank credit, and $2,000,000 in Treasury currency, offset in part by increases of $24,000,000 in Treasury cash, $28,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks, $2,000,000 in money in circulation, and $39,000,000 in Nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts. Excess reserves of member banks on September 18 were estimated to be approximately $6,530,000,000, a decrease of $10,000,000 for the week."

Changes in member bank reserve balances and related items during the week and the year ended September 18, 1940, were reported as follows:

Week's Loadings Reach Top Level Since November

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday 804,309 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday.

This was an increase of 109,051 cars, or 15.7 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 3,878, or .5 of 1 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 144,146, or 21.8 per cent, compared with 1938.

Loadings were the highest since the week ended November 4, 1939, when they totaled 805,862. The previous 1940 high was 768,821 for the week ended August 1.

Newport News Shipbuilding Co. Reports $400,000,000 Backlog

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 29.—Unfilled orders of Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. currently aggregate over $400,000,000, the biggest volume of forward business ever written on the company's books, directors announced after a meeting today.

The company currently is employing 12,800 men, and when new ship ways under construction are completed, the number of workers is expected to expand around 18,000.

Heavy Government business, including construction of aircraft carriers, helped swell orders on hand.

Directors voted a dividend of 40 cents a share on the common stock and the first regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on the new convertible $5 preferred stock, both payable November 1 to holders of record October 15.

The board elected four new directors. They were Charles Francis Adams, former Secretary of the Navy and chairman of the board of State Street Trust Co., Boston; H. David Campbell, president of Chase National Bank, New York City; John M. Miller, jr., chairman of the board of First & Merchants National Bank, Richmond, Va., and Samuel L. Slover, chairman of the National Bank of Commerce, Norfolk, Va., and publisher of the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch and Petersburg Progress-Index.

Edward A. Adams, long secretary and treasurer of the company, resigned. George A. Parker and W. Graham Scott, both employes for many years, were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Oil Industry May Pick 'Czar' As Defense Step

Administration Said To Favor Ickes As Co-ordinator

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 19.—Mobilization of the Nation's oil industry under a self-appointed commission or a Federal administrator to assure adequate crude petroleum and high-test gasoline supplies for defense needs is expected in the very near future, usually well informed sources reported today.

The Administrtaion in Washington, it is was said, leans toward naming Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, as Federal Administration in charge of coordination of oil production, distribution, pricing, etc. Ickes as administrator, it was pointed out, would serve as "czar" of the industry, as Will Hayes serves as "czar" of the motion picture industry.

Disfavor U. S. Control

On the other hand, while many leading oil executives think there is no need yet for a central oil coordinating body, if some central control must be set up they would prefer supervision by an industry-named committee, like the one that was in charge of oil supplies in the World War.

Recent conversations between Ickes, President Walter Teagle of Standard Oil of New Jersey, and independent Western oil men have led to the belief creation of some defense oil control facility is not far away.

Prompt Action Sought

If the United States should become involved in a war, oil needs would be increased around 25 per cent, officials say. As a result, it is the wish of Washington that the oil industry, as a step in the defense program, take measures at once to assure adequate supplies under all conditions.

In view of the fact that oil control is being actively discussed, the trade noted with interest overnight news that the Attorney General was yet undecided as to whether to press a proposed antimonoply suit to disintegrate the activities of 22 large oil companies. The Attorney General during the past 24 hours received a communication from the National Defense Commission pointing out disintegration of the companies might hamper defense oil production, exploration of new fields and new pipe line construction.

Military Housing Contracts Boost Week's Building

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—Passage of the conscription bill was reflected this week in the awarding of $45,000,000 in contracts for temporary military housing, Engineering News-Record reported today.

Total engineering construction awards for the week were $120,809,000, the third largest volume for the year. The total was 76 per cent greater than the previous week and almost double the corresponding week last year.

Public construction topped the previous week by 162 per cent and the same week last year by 122 per cent. Private awards were 19 per cent smaller than the previous week but 28 per cent larger than a year ago.

Comparisons follow:

	Last Week	Previous Week	Year Ago
Private	$26,686,000	$32,769,000	$20,917,000
State and Municipal	1,848,000	28,102,000	31,533,000

Exchange Markets

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The open-market quotation of the Canadian dollar rose .37½ of a cent today in terms of the United States dollar as small orders found offerings scarce.

The British pound "free" rate was unchanged and only nominal quotations were available for other outstanding European currencies. The Hongkong dollar—also in a thin market—jumped .22 of a cent. Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents:)

Official Canadian Control Board rates for United States dollars: Buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent. Canadian dollar in New York open market 15⅞ per cent discount, or 84.12⅛ U. S. cents.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—Advanced prices for cotton goods tempered buying enthusiasm today. Worth street selling agents reported the market's position continued strong, but it was believed volume would fall below Wednesday's heavy yardage. Demand broadened for woolen piece goods. Moderate sales of rayon goods were divided equally between spot and distant deliveries at unchanged price levels. Silk dealings remained quiet.

The Market

List Points Unevenly Higher in Brisk Deals; Shifting Foreign Scene Discourages Traders

New York, Sept. 19.—Firmness in merchandising and manufacturing shares kept the stock market on the pus side again today, although by the slimmest of margins. With turnover near the 500,000 share mark, narrow price changes ruled in the active sections. There were a number of sharp advances among the preferreds which accounted for the bulk of 11 new highs recorded during the session.

Domestic news, including political, was generally favorable to the long side of the market but new complexities made their appearance in the foreign picture, discouraging operations for the advance. Italy's drive in the Near East; the mysterious Axis conferences in which Spain is represented, and unremitting bombing of England by Germany and British retaliation against the Reich, were studied. The "experts" appeared to agree that Hitler may strike on a new front before attempting an invasion of British shores. It was also suggested that Spain has been called in by Berlin and Rome to head off a possible revolt of French colonials in Africa.

The shifting scene abroad again tended to obscure the development at home of what will undoubtedly be a record period of business and industrial activity in this country. So busy will everyone and everything be, in fact, and according to various commentators including Mayor LaGuardia, that the WPA forces will be fully absorbed on private work or public services as the defense program gains momentum.

The powerful case made out against a third term by a leading independent newspaper in announcing for the first time its support of Wendell Willkie for President may have caused joy in Wall street offices, but there was no indication of it in the course of trading. In addition to the brake of war, buying was slowed by new estimates of tax handicaps, including the overnight warning by the National Association of Manufacturers. This emphasized that while spending for defense must not be stinted, the new national deficits make the problem of postwar debt payment the more difficult of solution.

Profit taking also may have been an influence today. Although offerings were limited few issues moved significantly. Steel common led the market and ended ⅛ higher with Republic next, up the same amount. Bethlehem firmed ½. Packard, which had opened on 3,000 shares, closed out the day with a total of 12,000 shares traded with no change in price. Anaconda and Kennecott eased fractionally although there was a slight markup in copper metal in the outside market.

There was a great spurt in Revere Copper & Brass securities with no adequate explanation. The company issued a statement during the day to the effect that it could not undertaken further expansion of facilities for defense purposes until the profit and amortization of plant situation had been clarified. The $7 preferred leaped $16 a share, the 5¼ per cent preferred, 2½ points, and the common a large fraction.

Listed bonds were quiet but firm, with interest still centered principally in the more speculative railroad securities. Fractional advances were common among such bonds and a few issues showed gains of 1 to 3 points. United States Treasury issues moved up fractionally and some interest also appeared in best-grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds. Foreign dollar issues were irregular. Turnover in all bonds amounted to $6,179,000.

Gains in the speculative carrier bonds attracted much interest and plainly were due to the better earnings performances of the rails, along with expectations that the improvement will continue under the armaments program. The holding company and share privilege groups were steady, and some demand appeared for communications, amusements and other special groups.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 19 (AP).—Wheat prices rose feebly today to new highs for the past fortnight but after gains of about ½ cent were chalked up the market backed down and deferred contracts closed slightly lower.

Most strength was in September, in which trading will cease after Saturday, with buying attributed to consuming interests who regarded the contract as the cheapest source of cash grain and to previous "short" sellers not wishing to make delivery. Transferring of hedges into deferred contracts accounted for some of the weakness late in the session while profit-taking also was in evidence.

Closing prices were at or near the day's lows with wheat unchanged to ⅞ lower compared with yesterday's finish, September 76⅞, December 77⅛@77⅛, May 77¾@77⅞. Corn was ⅜ off to ⅛ up. September 61⅝, December 55⅝@55¾; oats ⅛-⅜ down; soy beans ¾-1¼ off; rye ⅛ up and lard 2-10 lower.

Liquidation of September corn contracts unsettled that market but new crop deliveries were steady. A storm at Lake, Ia., grain man reported early September frosts were believed to have damaged corn in north central and northwestern Iowa 10 to 15 per cent. He said this is causing some farmers to reseal more old corn than they had intended.

Sugar Futures

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The domestic sugar futures trade today waited for action at Washington on legislation affecting the commodity. Sales totaled 3,000 tons and the final range was unchanged to 3 points higher.

There was a fair demand from trade and commission houses, which was supplied readily by brokers with producer connections.

The world contract was likewise narrow, ending ½@1⅛ points higher on sales of 600 tons. December, 71† and March, 75½†.

The Post Radio Time Table

11 a. m., WJSV—The Post's Louella Parsons tells how she plans that Hollywood column which reaches 20,000,000 newspaper readers.

1 p. m., WMAL—Elsie May Gordon is in Chicago for her broadcast this week and for the very curious reason that she's guesting tomorrow evening on the National Barn Dance. 'Bout time some one took to cleaning up these hayseed accents and the Your-Voice-an-You-Lady's the one to try it.

3, WMAL, WOL and WJSV—President Roosevelt is heard over a nation-wide galaxy when an honorary degree is conferred upon him by the University of Pennsylvania at its two-hundreth anniversary.

7, WJSV—"God Bless America:" Kate Smith may be corny and you may be tired of some of the current vehement patriotism, but there's no denying it that when Kate sings this Irving Berlin tune, you've heard something fine. She returns with her song for the winter season tonight with Tyrone Power, Mary Astor and Dean Jagger in an air version of "Brigham Young." Her permanent guest is comic Willie Howard.

7:30, WRC—Senator James Byrnes, of South Carolina, asks "Is it Principle or Politics?"

8, WMAL—Gov. Arthur H. James, of Pennsylvania, will make a speech which marks the formal opening of the 1940 Republican campaign in his State.

8:30, WRC—"There'll Always Be an England:" A special airing by the British War Relief Society. Henel Hayes and Sir Cedric Hardwicke play the moving closing scene of Noel Coward's "Cavalcade"; Clifton Fadiman reads excerpts from Dickens and Lord Lothian, as British Ambassador to the United States, voices his thanks for the aid America has given his country the past year.

Grin and Bear It

By Lichty

"Don't go yet, folks—the life of the party'll pass out soon, and then we can have fun!"

Listen! with Glynn

It makes the Columbia Broadcasting System pretty happy this fall to be able to claim the services of two of the country's foremost entertainers who, by coincidence, are both Washington gals.

Helen Hayes, first lady of the American theater, starts her first dramatic series in radio over C. B. S. Sunday, September 29, with a specially adapted play based on "Victoria Regina" with which she's had such tremendous success throughout the country these past few years.

Kate Smith, undoubtedly the first lady of radio, returns to the C. B. S. air waves tonight after a couple of months' vacation with that very superlative "Variety Hour" of hers. We've thought and thought and thought (for almost several minutes) on what we could best say about the program and then decided that all we had to do was say "Kate Smith's Variety Hour" and it could take care of itself as it has done very nicely in all the popularity polls these past few years.

In addition to Kate's singing, the show this year will feature Dialect Comedian Willie Howard and those trusty musical standbys Ted Straeter's Chorus and Jack Miller's Orchestra. As usual, a highlight will be a dramatic excerpt from a hit movie or a specially written play, with Hollywood's most popular stars taking the parts. Tonight it's to be "Brigham Young," with Tyrone Power, Mary Astor and Dean Jagger. Commander Raymond Kelly of the American Legion is to be a guest on the program to pay tribute to Kate's patriotic endeavors.

Contract Bridge

It is not a good idea to give lessons to strange bridge partners, for sometimes they listen in order to trip you up the next time they play against you. This is what happened on today's hand to K. G. McL., who taught his partner not to lead away from four cards including the queen-jack, defending no trump. Here is what he writes:

Today's Hand

East-West Vulnerable

SOUTH DEALER

♠ 8 7 4 2
♡ Q 8 3

♠ Q J 5
♡ K 5 4

♠ A K 3
♡ A J 10 9
◇ A 6 2
♣ A 8 4

♡ 7 6 2
◇ Q J 9 3
♣ 10 9 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 NT
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 2 ♡.

"A few weeks ago I played with a lady in a duplicate game, and I explained to her the fallacy of leading the fourth best from the strongest suit in defense of no trump when the suit is headed by queen-jack. So often the declarer will make three tricks if the defender leads, but if forced to play the suit himself he will make only two.

"The lesson was well learned—too well learned—for this week she gave me a bottom score by holding me to four no trump when every one else made five. She led a heart, but every other South player opened a diamond. As you can see, a diamond lead will allow me to make five no trump as long as I guess the heart finesse.

"On a low diamond lead I play the ten. If the queen is led, I win with the ace and finesse South for the jack. Simple, eh what? But the lady was too smart."

D. C. to Revise Regulations On Civil Rights

Commissioners Pledge Action After Hearing On Peace Group's Plea

The District Commissioners gave an assurance in the District Court yesterday that police regulations governing public meetings, handbill distribution and other civil rights will be revised immediately to give effect in Washington to recent Supreme Court decisions upon civil liberties.

Pending the revision, the Commissioners promised, regulations believed inconsistent with the Supreme Court's civil rights declarations will not be enforced by the police and other agencies.

The Commissioners and other officials gave the assurance before Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, of the District Court, at a hearing on the petition of the American Peace Mobilization that officials be restrained from violating the civil rights of its members and sympathizers. The suit then was dismissed, without prejudice to being renewed.

The peace mobilization and 10 persons associated with it brought suit September 10, asserting that their constitutional rights were infringed by repression of their agitation against passage of the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill.

Several persons were injured September 6 when a pacifist meeting on the steps of the Capitol was broken up. This incident was not involved in the suit settled yesterday, and the order signed by Chief Justice Wheat reserved the peace workers' rights to take other action with regard to it.

Beside the Commissioners and the police, the suit asked the court to restrain unlawful activity by officers of the National Parks Police and Chester W. Jurney, sergeant at arms of the Senate.

For Jurney and the park police yesterday appeared District Attorney Edward M. Curran and Assistant Attorney General Francis M. Shea, and the District officials and police, Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal. All agreed to an order which gave assurance that:

The peace leaders may exercise right to distribute handbills, carry banners and insignia, meet in public places and be free of unlawful arrest, as declared in recent Supreme Court decisions.

That existing District regulations on these subjects will be revised to give effect to the Supreme Court's decisions.

That the regulations are being reviewed with a view to promulgation of revised regulations in harmony with the Constitution.

Specifically attacked by the peace leaders were regulations requiring permits for speaking in a public place and for parades, and giving the police control of the routes and forbidding public distribution of handbills.

The Supreme Court has declared similar regulations of other cities to be in violation of the Constitution.

U. S. Says Former Employe Kept Plane Invention

The Government yesterday declared that Inventor William C. Clay patented for himself a valuable plane propeller safeguard he developed while a Federal employe and asked the District Court to award it the patent.

Clay's patent, now asigned to the Airplane Die & Equipment Co., Inc., 416 Fifth street northwest, is an improved process for keeping ice off propellers.

The complaint held that the National Advisory Council for Aeronautics since 1928 had directed research on preventing ice from forming on airplanes. As a laboratory employe, said the complaint, Clay was assigned to work on this problem and discovered a new method, but kept it himself and patented it in his own name September 6, 1938.

Bernt Balchen Training Fliers To Aid R. A. F. in U. S. Planes

Norwegian Pilots Who Escaped Gestapo And Volunteers From U. S. and Canada Make Up Squadron Being Formed at Toronto

Copyright by New York Times

Toronto, Sept. 19.—A Norwegian air corps whose nucleus consists of naval and army pilots who eluded the vigilance of the Gestapo and escaped from Norway is training at the Toronto Island airport under the supervision of Bernt Balchen.

BALCHEN

It is operating on the general lines, though on a much smaller scale of Canada's own empire air training plan. Swelled by Norwegian volunteers from Canada and the United States, its numbers are expected to reach 900.

When it has been trained it will take the air in the Battle of Britain and, in fighting for Britain, will fight for the eventual rescue of Norway from the Nazi conquerors. It is equipped with American airplanes that had been ordered in the United States by the Norwegian government before the fateful day last spring when Germany attacked. It is being financed by the exiled Norwegian government and behind it is said to be a fund of $93,000,000.

Dramatic is the story of how these experienced Norwegian army and naval fliers who managed to slip through the net spread by their Nazi conquerors. According to the story they tell it was made possible only by one of the more successful efforts of the British forces to interfere with the German invasion of Norway. A ship carrying 500 members of the Gestapo to Norway was bombed by a British naval airplane on its way to Oslo and sunk. The Gestapo had a list of Norway's trained war pilots and orders to lay them by the heels as soon as they landed. It was part of Germany's meticulous preparation for its swoop on Norway.

In the sinking of the ship that bore them, both the list and those who would have made such good use of it were lost. In the delay that ensued before another list could be procured, most of those whose names were on it managed to make their way from Norway to Sweden. From there they sailed for Canada.

Ottawa, Ontario, Sept. 19.—United States airmen enlisting in the Royal Canadian Air Force represent a saving of around $4,000,000 to Canada.

Air Minister Power announced today that 172 trained United States flyers had been enlisted. It costs $25,000 to train a pilot. Most of the United States recruits require only a brief course in R. C. A. F. procedure.

Some of them will be instructors. Others are already employed ferrying planes from plants to air fields. Sixty-five arrived this week. Many more, Power said, are waiting to get in.

Chevy Chase Bus Routes Change Sept. 29

Alterations Designed To Divert Traffic From H Street

Changes in the Chevy Chase bus routes, effective September 29, were announced yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission.

In the main, the changes will take northbound buses off traffic-congested H street, between Thirteenth and Eighteenth street northwest, and place the buses on I street, which was recently widened.

The new route for the L-4 line in the southbound direction is: From terminal at Chevy Chase Circle, south on Connecticut avenue and Twentieth street to I street, east on I street to Thirteenth street, south on Thirteenth street to E street, east on E to Fourth street, south on Fourth to D street, west on D street to terminal.

Northbound route of L-4: From terminal, west on D street to Fifth street, north on Fifth to E street, west on E to Thirteenth street, north on Thirteenth to I street, west on I street to Twentieth street, north on Twentieth street and Connecticut avenue to terminal at Chevy Chase Circle.

Southbound trip of the L-2 bus will remain the same as present, but the northbound trip will take the bus north on Thirteenth street to I street, west on I street to Eighteenth street, north on Eighteenth street to Calvert street, west on Calvert street to Connecticut avenue and north to the terminal.

Aeronautic Association Reelects Capt. Wilson

Capt. Gill Robb Wilson, New Jersey director of aeronautics, yesterday was reelected president of the National Aeronautic Association at a directors' meeting here. Also renamed were Col. G. deFreest Larner, executive vice president and secretary, and William P. Redding, treasurer.

Among the members of the board who were reelected are two Washingtonians, Col. John H. Jouett, president, Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, and Franklin K. Kane, jr., attorney.

Red Cross Quota Here Raised To 130,000

Charles H. Doing Is Again Named Roll Call Chairman

The District Chapter, American Red Cross, has raised its goal for 1941 to 130,000 members, General Chairman Edgar Morris announced yesterday after the last meeting of committee chairmen before the roll call begins Monday. Last year's goal was 125,000.

"While the population of Washington has grown rapidly during the past year," Morris said, "the obligations of the District of Columbia Red Cross Chapter have increased proportionately." The defense program, he added, will demand expansion of Red Cross services as it is accelerated.

Charles H. Doing, president of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., was named roll call treasurer for the fourteenth consecutive year. The advisory committee will include James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations, National Red Cross; Walter L. Davidson, assistant chairman, Eastern area, National Red Cross; Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, Commissioner J. Russell Young, Marcy L. Sperry, president, Washington Gas Light Co.; Lloyd B. Wilson, president, Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., and John Saul, president, B. F. Saul Co.

$23,250 Tax Refund

The Treasury yesterday refunded $23,250 to Belle L. W. Willard, Fairfax, Va., because of overpayment of 1935-36-37 income taxes.

E. M. Curran's Father Dies At Son's Home

District Attorney's Parent Had Retired From Maine Business

Michael Joseph Curran, 79, died yesterday at the home of his son, District Attorney Edward M. Curran, 5607 Western avenue northwest.

Mr. Curran was a grocer in Bangor, Me., until about four years ago, when he retired and came here, with his wife, to make their home with his son. He was a native of Bangor and a life-long member of the Catholic Church and the Democratic Party.

The body will rest at Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N street northwest, through tomorrow, and then will be taken to Bangor, where the funeral will be held at the Curran home, with burial in the Curran cemetery plot.

Mr. Curran leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary Agnes Curran; his son, two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Estes, and Miss Mary Curran, Bangor, and four brothers, William F. Curran, Thomas A. Curran, James Curran, all of Bangor, and the Rev. Matthew E. Curran, Lewiston, Me.

James Welch To Be Buried In Holy Rood

The funeral for James Edward Welch, 67, associated with the Griffith-Consumers Co. for many years, will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow at St. Augustine's Catholic Church. Burial will be in Holy Rood Cemetery. Mr. Welch died Wednesday at Sibley Hospital after a brief illness.

A native of Washington, Mr. Welch was educated in Georgetown schools and entered the milling business which his family had run in Georgetown for two generations. He later joined the P. T. Moran Feed & Grain Co. In 1928, he became associated with Griffith-Consumers. After the death of his wife, his home was at 1332 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Surviving are his brothers, William A., Eugene F., and J. Clarence Welch; his sisters, Miss C. L. Welch, Miss I. R. Welch, Miss C. B. Welch, Mrs. I. L. Davis, all of Washington, and Mrs. Clinton Dunbar, of Chester, Pa.

The pallbearers will be T. J. du Fief, L. R. Potts, W. J. de Butts, J. J. McDermott, T. O. Dowell and James E. Black, all business associates of Mr. Welch.
